PREFACE

THE present volume consists of literary texts, like Parts V and XI. The papyri of Lysias (1606), Hyperides (1607), Aeschines Socraticus (1608), and an oration on the cult of a Roman Emperor (1612) belong to the first of the three large literary finds of the 1905-6 season, which produced 841-4, &c., and has now been completely published; those of Ephorus (1610), a work on literary criticism (1611), and Herodotus (1619) belong to the second, which is not yet exhausted. Most of the other texts were found in the early part of the same season.

Prof. Hunt's continued absence from Oxford on military duties has prevented him from taking an active part in the decipherment and editing of this volume, but he has revised some of the papyri and the proofs. We are much indebted to Mr. E. Lobel, who has made numerous suggestions in the reconstruction and interpretation of the new classical texts, and to Dr. J. V. Bartlet for similar help in regard to the new theological texts. The assistance on various points afforded by Mr. T. W. Allen, Profs. J. Burnet, J. B. Bury, and A. E. Housman, Dr. C. Hude, Mr. H. Stuart Jones, Sir William M. Ramsay, Prof. M. Rostowzew, and Sir John E. Sandys is acknowledged in connexion with the individual papyri.

The two sections consisting of Contracts and Private Accounts, which were omitted from Part XII owing to want of space, are held over for Part XIV, which will contain non-literary documents and is in active preparation. We hope to issue it in the course of 1919, and that Mr. J. de M. Johnson's edition of the valuable Theocritus papyrus discovered by him at Antinoë will be issued simultaneously.

NOTE ON THE METHOD OF PUBLICATION AND LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS

THE general method followed in this volume is the same as that in Parts I–XII. 1604 (Pindar) is printed in dual form, a literal transcript being accompanied by a reconstruction in modern style. In the other texts the originals are reproduced except for separation of words, capital initials in proper names, expansion of abbreviations, and supplements of lacunae. A reconstruction in modern form of the more complete portions of 1606–7 and 1610–12 is also given. Additions or corrections by the same hand as the body of the text are in small thin type, those by a different hand in thick type. Square brackets [] indicate a lacuna, round brackets () the resolution of a symbol or abbreviation, angular brackets < > a mistaken omission in the original, braces { } a superfluous letter or letters, double square brackets [] a deletion in the original. Dots placed within brackets represent the approximate number of letters lost or deleted; dots outside brackets indicate mutilated or otherwise illegible letters. Letters with dots underneath them are to be considered doubtful. Heavy Arabic numerals refer to the texts of the Oxyrhynchus Papyri in this volume and Parts I–XII, ordinary numerals to lines, small Roman numerals to columns. In the case of vellum fragments the terms recto and verso are used with reference to the upper and under sides of a leaf, not to the hair-side and flesh-side.

The abbreviations used in referring to papyrological publications are practically those adopted in the Archiv für Papyrusforschung, viz. :—

I. THEOLOGICAL FRAGMENTS

1594. NEW RECENSION OF TOBIT xii.

6.2 × 7.5 cm. Late third century. Plate I (recto).

A nearly complete leaf of a diminutive vellum codex, containing Tobit xii. 14-19 in a recension which is not extant. Another fragment of a novel version of this popular apocryphon (ii. 2-4, 8) was published in 1076, but is later in date (sixth century) than 1594, which is written in a small neat uncial hand of an unusually early type, resembling the hands of 656 and 1007 (both Genesis: Part iv, Plate ii and Part vii, Plate i). 656 is probably earlier than A. D. 250 and likely to be somewhat older than 1007 and 1594, being written on papyrus and having no contractions, whereas in the other two fragments θεός is contracted; but, like 1007, 1594 was probably written in the second half of the third century. The leaf when complete was nearly square, and of approximately the same size as P. Ryl. 28 (Part i, Plate v), a fourth-century treatise on μαντική: for other miniature codices of biblical texts cf. 842 and 1010. No punctuation is discernible, but a diaeresis over an initial v apparently occurs on the verso, which is much damaged and difficult to decipher. There are traces of what may be lines of ruling in the margin of the recto, which is probably the hair-side.

There are two main Greek recensions of Tobit, one represented by the Codex Sinaiticus (S), the other by the Cod. Vaticanus (B) and Cod. Alexandrinus (A). The recension of S, which is fuller and more picturesque than that of BA, is tending to be regarded as the earlier. Besides these two there is for chs. vi. 9-xiii. 8 a third Greek redaction represented by three cursive MSS., and from vii. 11 supported by the Syriac version, which before that point agrees with BA. This third recension occupies an intermediate position, being allied to S but less verbose, and is sometimes supported by the Old Latin version, which, like the Aramaic and earlier Hebrew versions, generally supports S. The view put forward in 1076 int., that 1076 belongs to the third Greek recension partially preserved by the cursives, was adopted in the latest and only fully equipped edition of Tobit, that of Mr. D. C. Simpson in Charles's Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha of the O. T. i. 174 sqq.; cf. Journ. of Theol. Stud. xiv. 516 sqq.

Leaving undecided the question whether the original language of Tobit was Greek or Semitic, he thinks that the book was composed in Egypt not long before 170 B. C., and that the recension of N is the nearest approach to the original, while that of BA did not reach its present form until about A. D. 180, and the third recension was later still.

The conditions of the problem are somewhat altered by the discovery of 1594, which is on the whole much nearer to BA than to N or the third recension, here fortunately extant. In vv. 14-17, where the two main recensions do not greatly differ, 1594 agrees with BA against N in the insertion of ἐκ (l. 3), ἀγίων (l. 3; ἀγίων ἀγγέλων BA; ἀγγέλων N), προσαναφέρουσιν (l. 3; add. τὰς προσευχὰς τῶν ἀγίων BA; παρεστήκασιν N), the omission of αὐτῶν (l. 8), and the insertion of ἔσται (l. 12); against these can be set only the agreements with N in the form ἔπесαν (l. 8), the insertion of ἀπαι[τα in l. 13 (πάντα N; om. BA), and καί for BA's ὅτι in l. 9. In vv. 18-19, where the text of N is longer than that of BA and differently arranged, the new fragment agrees with BA in having ἐμαντοῦ, not ἐμῇ, in l. 15 and in constructing πάσας τὰς ἡμέρας with ὥπτανόμην ὑμῖν (ll. 18-19), whereas N connects the first phrase with the preceding εὐλογεῖτε or with an added repetition of it, αὐτῷ ὑμνεῖτε. Against this must be set the partial agreements between 1594 and N as to the verb in l. 16 (ἤμην μεθ' ὑμῶν: om. B; ἦλθον A), and the occurrence in 1594. 20 of θεωρεῖτέ με (cf. Old Latin videbatis me) corresponding to N's θεωρεῖτέ με. With the peculiar readings of the third Greek recension 1594 agrees against the other two in respect of the omission of Σάρραν in l. 2, and of ἀγγέλων in l. 3, the insertion of ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν in l. 9, and the reading θεοῦ in l. 6 (θεοῦ without τοῦ μεγάλου the cursives; cf. Dei Old Lat.). But elsewhere the third Greek recension follows N rather than 1594, and is shorter even than BA in v. 19.

The new recension has also a number of peculiar readings, such as the constant use of καί as a connecting particle, where BA vary the monotony by δέ (l. 12; om. N) or ὅθεν (l. 17; om. N) or the absence of connexion (l. 19), and especially the new arrangement of vv. 18-19, which avoids both the obvious omission in B and the redundancy of N at this point. On the whole 1594, while belonging to the BA type of text, is distinctly better. Is this superiority to be explained as resulting from a revision of the BA text in the light of N, or from the priority and greater purity of the text illustrated by 1594, of which BA is a later form? The second hypothesis seems to us much the more probable for several reasons. In the first place 1594 is an older MS. than B or A. Secondly, the constant use of καί in 1594 points to a more archaic text than that of BA. Thirdly, the text of BA, where in comparison with that of 1594 it is markedly inferior, as in vv. 15 and 18, seems to have arisen out of the text of 1594, not vice versa. In v. 15 the employment of ἅγιος by BA three times within the same sentence, referring to different persons in each case, is intolerable, and the addition of τὰς προσευχὰς τῶν ἁγίων looks like a Christian gloss on προσαναφέρουσιν, which is intelligible by itself, while BA's ἁγίων ἀγγέλων (ἀγγέλων N; ἁγίων 1594 and the third recension) may be the result of a conflation of readings or of a confusion between αγίων and ἀγλων, a contraction of ἀγγέλων found e.g. in 1603. 12. In v. 18 1594 has ἐγὼ μεθ' ὑμῶν οὐχ ὅτι τῇ ἐμαντοῦ χάριτι ἤμην ἀλλὰ τῇ θελήσει τοῦ θεοῦ corresponding to B's ὅτι οὐ τῇ ἐμαντοῦ χάριτι ἀλλὰ τῇ θελήσει τοῦ θεοῦ ὑμῶν without a verb, which is supplied by A (add. ἦλθον). The phrase 'your God' is very inappropriate in the mouth of an angel, and it is noticeable that the third recension, which at this point follows BA rather than N, ignores ὑμῶν. The explanation is probably that ὑμῶν had really nothing to do with θεοῦ, but is the survival of ἤμην μεθ' ὑμῶν found in both 1594 and N, and that A's ἦλθον is merely a correction inserted to restore the defective grammar. 1594's phrase οὐχ ὅτι... in place of BA's (ὅτι) οὐχὶ... gives a more literary touch to the passage, and might easily cause difficulty to some one who did not understand that ἤμην was to be supplied with ἐγὼ μεθ' ὑμῶν, with the result that a simpler construction was substituted. Fourthly, the result of an attempt to combine the merits of BA and N is partly extant in the third recension, and though that edition now appears to have taken into consideration the text represented by 1594 as well as those of N and BA (cf. p. 2), it does not coincide with 1594, and is in fact nearer to N than to 1594 or BA, just like 1076. That fragment on account of its affinity to N is still to be considered as probably a specimen of the missing portion of the third recension, not as part of the recension illustrated by 1594. We are therefore disposed to regard 1594 as an earlier form of the BA text, which developed out of 1594 partly owing to certain editorial changes, partly owing to corruptions introduced in the normal course of transmission.

There remains the question whether 1594 or N more closely represents the original text of Tobit. Owing to the small size of the fragment it is difficult to speak with certainty; but with regard to the characteristics of the BA text which Simpson (Journ. of Theol. Stud. xiv. 527-8) selects as evidence for the later date of BA it is noticeable that (1) 1594 does not tend, like BA, to avoid καί as a connecting particle, (2) if 1594 is less redundant than in ll. 14-18, in ll. 19-20 it has a repetition which is absent from N, and (3) the two uncommon words in 1594, προσαναφέρουσι and ὥπτανόμην, and the unusual construction in ll. 14-16 are absent from N, though as a rule the BA text is more commonplace than that of N. The N text is certainly not conspicuously better than that of 1594 in these six verses. The addition in N of Σάρραν before τὴν νύμφην in l. 1 and the omission of ἐκ in l. 3 and ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν in l. 9 are no improvements; ἀγίων without BA's ἀγγέλων in l. 3 and προσαναφέρουσι without BA's τὰς προσευχὰς τῶν ἀγίων are hardly open to the inferences which Simpson (op. cit. 521) draws from a comparison of the 'angelology' of BA and N concerning the later character of BA. The use of θεοῦ τοῦ μεγάλου in l. 6 in place of N's κυρίου perhaps illustrates the 'tendency to emphasize the transcendental character of the Godhead' which according to Simpson (loc. cit.) serves to distinguish BA from N, and δπτάνεσθαι (l. 19), as he pointed out, came to have a definite Christian connotation, being found in Acts i. 3 with reference to the appearances of Christ after the Resurrection. But the word occurs in the LXX and Ptolemaic papyri, and curious linguistic affinities between Tobit xii. 16-22 and the Gospels (cf. Simpson's n. ad loc.) are traceable in the text of N as well as BA, so that the mere occurrence of δπτάνεσθαι does not prove much. The reading of 1594 in v. 18 ἐγὼ μεθ' ὑμῶν οὐχ ὅτι τῇ ἐμαντοῦ χάριτι ἤμην is defensible against N's ἐγὼ ὅτε ἤμην μεθ' ὑμῶν οὐχὶ τῇ ἐμῇ χάριτι ἤμην μεθ' ὑμῶν: but the arrangement of vv. 18-19 as a whole is more satisfactory in N; for πάσας τὰς ἡμέρας is more appropriate in conjunction with εὐλογεῖτε than with ὠπανόμην, and the repetition εὐλογεῖτε . . . ὑμνεῖτε in N is probably better than the repetition ὠπανόμην . . . ἐθεωρεῖτε in 1594, which here combines the two verbs found singly in N and BA, though whether N's θεωρεῖτε is superior to ἐθεωρεῖτε in 1594, here supported by the Old Latin, is very doubtful. In l. 3 ἀγγέλων (N) is perhaps preferable to ἀγίων (1594), the two words being liable to confusion as soon as contractions came into use (cf. p. 3).

Our conclusion therefore is that, while the recension of N is probably older than that of BA, N had before the age of the Antonines, perhaps even from the earliest times when Tobit was read in Greek, a rival in the shape of the text to which 1594 belongs. This was largely superseded after A.D. 200 by the BA recension, which was based on it; but traces of the influence of the 1594 text are discernible in the Old Latin version, which was made probably before 300, and the 1594 text remained sufficiently important by the side of the BA text for it to be used in the compilation of the intermediate text found in the cursives and 1076, which was designed (in the fourth or fifth century?) as a compromise between the various conflicting versions of the story. The result of the discovery of 1594 is, we think, to diminish somewhat the superiority in point of age which can be claimed for the recension of N over others, and to increase the respect due to both BA and the third recension, as being either based upon or, in the case of the third recension, influenced by an older recension which is independent of N and may well contain some original elements.

3. προσαναφέρουσιν: this word occurs twice elsewhere in the LXX, Judith xi. 18 ἐλθοῦσα προσανοίσω σοι and 2 Macc. xi. 36 ἃ δὲ ἔκρινε προσανεχθῆναι τῷ βασιλεῖ.

11-12. That οτι should be read in l. 11 before εἰρηνη with A is improbable, the line being long enough without it, and similar words of connexion being avoided elsewhere in the fragment; cf. p. 3. It is just possible that υ]μειν should be read instead of υμιν in l. 12.

13. εις: επι might be read, but εις is regularly used in this phrase in the LXX and N. T.

15. ουχ οτι: κ is the only alternative to χ and the vestige of the next letter suits ο, but not ε, so that ουκετι is an unsatisfactory reading, even if it suited the context. The traces of τι are slight, but suggest no other appropriate reading, so that ουχ οτι is practically certain; cf. int.

20-1. οτ[ι] ου[κ] (so N) is very uncertain, but suits the slight traces somewhat better than κα[ι] ου[κ] (BA) or ου[κ] ε[φ]α[γ]ον.

1595. ECCLESIASTICUS i.

18 × 11.2 cm.

Sixth century.

A leaf from a papyrus codex, containing the first nine verses of Ecclesiasticus in the LXX, written with brown ink in large heavy round uncials of the type represented by e.g. Schubart, Pap. Graec. Berol. 44a (Iliad xxii), probably in the sixth century, to which documents found with or near 1595 belong. The numbering of the pages, if it existed in the position occupied by the numberings in e. g. 1598, is not preserved, so that it is uncertain whether this is the first leaf of the codex or only of a section. The beginnings of verses are marked by fresh lines which project slightly, and the ends by high stops apparently throughout, though owing to injuries to the surface these are not always discernible. The usual contractions for θεός, κύριος (but not in l. 1), and οὐρανός occur.

Verse 7 ἐπιστήμη σοφίας τίνι ἐφανερώθη καὶ τὴν πολυπειρίαν αὐτῆς τίς συνῆκεν; which is generally regarded as a doublet of v. 6, is omitted, as in the chief uncial MSS.; but v. 5 (πηγὴ σοφίας λόγος θεοῦ ἐν ὑψίστοις, καὶ αἱ πορεῖαι αὐτῆς ἐντολαὶ αἰώνιοι) is retained, as in some cursives and versions (cf. ll. 16-19, n.), though this too has generally been rejected as a doublet of the preceding verse; cf. Box-Oesterley in Charles's Apocr. and Pseudepigr. i. 318. The resemblance, however, between vv. 4-5 is much less marked than that between vv. 6-7, and since v. 4 ends with αἰῶνος, v. 5 with αἰώνιοι, the hypothesis that the disappearance of v. 5 is an error due to homoioteleuton has, we think, more to justify it than the view that it is a Pharisaic addition. In other respects the text of 1595 is not remarkable, the spelling and arrangement agreeing with SAC rather than with B. A note at the bottom of the recto perhaps refers to an omission. This is the first papyrus of Ecclesiasticus.

9-10. καὶ σοφίαν: om. Syriac and Latin versions.

16-19. This verse (5), omitted by the uncial MSS., is found in cursive 248 and others and in the Syro-Hexaplar, Latin, and Sahidic versions; cf. int.

22. πανουργήματα: so NAC; πανουργεῖματα B.

23-4. Between these lines several cursives (not 248), the Syro-Hexaplar, Latin, and Sahidic versions insert verse 7 ἐπιστήμη σοφίας κτλ.; cf. int.

24. σοφός: this word, though found in the Greek MSS., is omitted by Box-Oesterley, l. c., following the versions. In place of ll. 24-5 the Syriac and Arabic versions have 'One (there is) who hath dominion over all her treasures'.

28. κς: B alone of the Greek MSS. assigns this word to the previous verse. That αυτην, the reading of the MSS., was added at the end of the line is not quite certain, though without it the line would be rather short; cf. l. 33, n.

29. ειδεν: so NC; ιδεν BA.

33. Whether this line, which was written in uncials by a different hand in darker ink but intentionally obliterated, has any connexion with the main text is uncertain. The readings of all the letters except the first four are very doubtful, and there are several ink smudges on both sides of the papyrus which seem to be accidental. If επανω is right, the reference is perhaps to an omission by the first hand, i. e. of αυτην in l. 28 rather than αυτου in l. 32.

1596. ST. JOHN'S GOSPEL vi.

10.7 × 5.2 cm.

Fourth century.

A fragment from the lower part of a leaf of a papyrus codex of St. John's Gospel, containing vi. 8-12 and 17-22, but with the loss of slightly more than half the lines. It was found together with third-fourth century documents, and probably belongs to the early or middle part of the fourth century, the script being a medium-sized semiuncial. Ἰ(ησοῦ)s is the only contraction, and one high stop occurs (l. 41); pauses are indicated by a slight space in l. 46, and probably by a larger space in the lacuna in l. 49. The papyrus, though hardly so old as 208 (parts of i and xx) and 1228 (xv. 25-xvi. 31) and not very correctly spelled, is interesting on account of its early date, being probably older than 847 (ii. 11-22 on vellum). The text is eclectic in places (e. g. l. 22), as often happens in early Biblical MSS., but tends, like 847, to support B rather than N, to which 208 and to a less degree 1228 incline, or A. There are 8 agreements with B in the 10 places where B and N differ, and in only 1 out of 5 places, where A differs from both N and B, does 1596 apparently support A (l. 21, n.). A new order of words seems to occur in a passage where all three of the chief MSS. differ (ll. 40-1, n.).

16-18. The restorations of these lines, based on $\mathfrak{N}$ and B, are quite long enough, even allowing for the slope of the column towards the left, which is noticeable on the verso. Hence it is very improbable that 1596 agreed with A and many later MSS. in adding εν after παιδαριον in l. 16 and δε after ειπεν in l. 18.

19. χορτ]ος πολυς: so nearly all MSS.; πολυς χορτος A.

20. ουν οι ανδρες: this, the reading of $\mathfrak{N}$ B &c., suits the space better than ουν οι αν(θρωπ)οι ανδρες (A &c.). Some MSS. omit ουν or οι, and 1596 may have had οι αν(θρωπ)οι ανδρες, omitting ουν.

21. [ωσει (A and most MSS.) suits the length of the lacuna better than ως ($\mathfrak{N}$ B).

 εληλ. ο Ι(ησ.) B; ουκ εληλ. προς αυτ. ο Ι(ησ.) A. There is not room for ουπω here.
 41. τε: so most MSS.; δε D &c.
 42. διεγει[ρετο: so B &c.; διηγειρετο NAD &c.
 43. ως: so NB and most MSS.; ωσει AD &c.; om. a few MSS.
 σταδιους: so N^a vel bAB and most MSS.; σταδια N^{*}D.
 43-4. θεωρου[σι]ν: the supplement in l. 43 is rather long; and possibly ορω[σι]ν occurred, though no such variant is known here. Before Ι(ησου)ν the MSS. insert τον, but there is certainly not room for [το]ν here.
 46. ο δε: so all Greek MSS. except N, which has και.
 47. φοβεισθαι: l. φοβεισθε.
 49. επι της γης: so N^eABD and most MSS.; επι την γην N^{*} &c.
 [υπηγον: so all MSS. except N^{*}, which has υπηντησεν. That reading is possible here, for the supplement (13 letters) is 3 or 4 letters shorter than would be expected, but there may well have been a considerable space before τη επαυριον, which begins a new section.
 51. ιδεν: so ND &c. (ειδεν); ειδον AB &c.; ιδων some MSS.

1597. ACTS OF THE APOSTLES xxvi.

5.7 × 2.8 cm.

Late third or fourth century.

Plate I (verso).

This scrap from the bottom of a leaf of a papyrus codex is tantalizing, for it belongs to an abnormal recension of Acts. The script is a good-sized, somewhat irregular uncial, which is certainly not later than the fourth century and may belong to the latter part of the third. M has the middle brought down below the side strokes; the top stroke of Ξ is curved and the middle of Ω is slurred. θεός is contracted, as usual. Whether stops were employed is uncertain. All that survives is 7-10 letters from the beginnings or ends of 10 fairly long lines which covered xxvi. 7-8 and 20, and the reconstructions of the lacunae are in several places doubtful; but enough remains to show that the text presented many novelties. In ch. xxvi D (Codex Bezae), the principal rival of the current text, is defective; but in ll. 3 and 8 there are strong indications of agreements between 1597 and some of the variants preserved in Old Latin MSS., so that the fragment seems to represent a very ancient Greek text akin to the 'Western', apparently avoiding some of the difficulties of construction and sense presented by the current text in this chapter. That a piece of the 'Western' text of Acts should make its appearance in Egypt is an interesting circumstance, but perhaps not very surprising. The reading of D in Matt. iii. 16-17 occurred in the Oxyrhynchus Irenaeus fragment (405; Part iv, pp. 264-5), and in other papyrus or vellum fragments of Acts from Egypt occasional agreements with D are found (in P. Amh. 8 at ii. 13, and in von Soden's *a*⁸ at iv. 32).

1-3. The ordinary Greek text is ἐν ἑκτε(ε)ῖα νύκτα καὶ ἡμέραν λατρεῦον ἐλπίζει κατανῆσαι (-ῆσιν B)· περὶ ἧς ἐλπίδος ἐγκαλοῦμαι, but Cod. Gigas (13th cent.) which has instante nocte ac die deseruiunt in spe peruenire, de qua spe nunc accusor in place of the usual nocte ac die deseruientes sperant deuenire, de qua spe accusor, seems to be based on a Greek text closely allied to 1597. ἐλπιδι in l. 3 makes a verb, not a participle, necessary in l. 2; but whether ἐν should be inserted at the end of l. 2 is doubtful, for it produces 20 letters in the lacuna, whereas in l. 1 there are only 16 in the corresponding space. Line 1 is, however, very short compared with the lines on the recto, and possibly a dittography or unknown variant occurred in the lost part of it. If so, there was no appreciable difference in the length of the lines on the two sides of the leaf, and not only is there plenty of room for λατρευει εν in l. 2, but ἐλπίδος, for the omission of which there is no parallel, can be restored instead of νυν in l. 3, and βασιλευ inserted in l. 4 (cf. n.). But on the whole we prefer on account of l. 1 to suppose that the lines on the verso are somewhat shorter than those on the recto.

4. After Ιουδαιων, before which many cursives insert τῶν, most Greek MSS. except A insert βασιλεῦ; but Cod. Gigas omits rex, and there may well have been a blank space before v. 8. There is no room for βασιλευ here without creating a great difficulty in the restoration of l. 1; cf. the preceding n. How 1597's recension of v. 8 was arranged is not clear. The Greek MSS. all have τί ἄπιστον κρίνεται παρ' ὑμῖν, εἰ ὁ θεὸς νεκροὺς ἐγείρει, which is reproduced in the Latin, and the omission of a line containing τι . . . νμιν is an easy hypothesis. But in view of the other new readings in 1597 the passage may represent a genuinely different recension of a verse which comes into the context somewhat abruptly, and which Nestle wished to place after v. 23.

6. Verses 9-19, which are missing at the top of the recto, would occupy 33 or 34 lines corresponding to ll. 6-10, if the text was approximately as long as the ordinary one; but 1597 seems to be somewhat shorter than usual.

7. The restorations of ll. 9-10, which are practically certain, favour the insertion here of either τε before και with ΝΑΒ (but not traceable in the Old Latin) or εν before Ιερο]στολομοις with Α, but not of both.

κα[ι | τη Ιουδαια : this restoration, though implying a new variant, suits the presumable length of the lacuna in l. 8 (if και τοις εθνεσιν is retained) much better than κα[ι | τοις Ιουδαιοις, which would have the support of in omnem regionem iudeis, the reading of the Cod. Colbertinus (13th cent.) and a corrector of the Cod. Perpinianus (13th cent.). ΝΒΑ have πασαν τε την χωραν της Ιουδαιας, which is retained by Tischendorf in spite of the difficulty caused by the unexplained accusative, in later MSS. governed by an inserted εις (so von Soden). That 1597, which was shorter here than the current text, had κα[ι | εις πασαν την χωραν της Ιουδαιας] and omitted και τοις εθνεσιν is possible, but less likely.

8. εκηρυξα : απηγγελλον (ΝΒΑ) is the best attested reading, and the numerous variants are all compounds of ἀγγελλειν in some form. The Old Latin MSS. have adnuntiare in some form, except the Floriacensis (6th–7th cent.) which has praedicauit, apparently representing ἐκήρυξα.

9. τον θ(εο)ν : τον ζωντα θ. some cursives, &c. (including von Soden's chief 'Pamphilus' group); cf. xiv. 15.

1598. I THESSALONIANS iv—II THESSALONIANS i.

Fr. 4 8.8 × 6.2 cm. Late third or fourth century.

Parts of two consecutive leaves and an unidentified scrap of a papyrus codex, containing I Thess. iv. 12–II Thess. i. 2 with considerable lacunae. The script is a large heavy round uncial of the early biblical type, not so formal and calligraphic as e.g. 1166 (Part ix, Plate i); but, like 406, probably of the late third rather than the fourth century. The usual contractions of θεός, Ἰησοῦς, κύριος, πατήρ, and Χριστός occur. No stops are actually found, but a >-shaped sign is used for filling up short lines. The numbers of the pages, which are twice preserved (pp. 207–8), suggest that the book was a collection of St. Paul's Epistles, and it is noteworthy that the usual order of these from Romans to I Thess. would exactly account for the preceding 206 pages.

The text is interesting, being, as often, eclectic in character. It agrees with B four times against ΝΑ, once with BA against Ν, twice with ΝΑ against B, once with Ν against BA. In ll. 60, 77, and 109 the papyrus clearly presented a longer text than any of the MSS., but in no case is the addition preserved, though fairly probable conjectures can be made. In l. 70 the papyrus is shorter than the MSS. The unidentified fragment does not agree with the ordinary text of any passage in either of these two Epistles. A seventh-century vellum fragment of I Thess. iii. 6–9, iv. 2–5 has been published by Wessely (Stud. zur Palaeogr. xii. 192).

59-60. $\eta[\mu\omega\nu\ \pi\alpha\nu\tau\omega\nu\ ?\ \iota\nu]\alpha$: om. $\pi\alpha\nu\tau\omega\nu$ MSS. No variant except $\gamma\rho\eta\gamma\omicron\rho\omicron\nu\mu\epsilon\nu$ for $\gamma\rho\eta\gamma\omicron\rho\omega\mu\epsilon\nu$ is known at this point, but the traces of letters in l. 60 are irreconcilable with the ordinary readings, $\alpha\epsilon$ being nearly certain, though the other vestiges are inconclusive.

67. $\pi\rho\omicron\iota\sigma\tau[\alpha\nu[\sigma]\mu\epsilon[\nu\sigma\iota$: so $\mathfrak{NA}$, this being a common Egyptian form of the usual $\pi\rho\omicron\iota\sigma\tau\alpha\mu\acute{\epsilon}\nu\omicron\upsilon\varsigma$. The reading is not quite certain, but suits the vestiges better than $\pi\rho[\sigma\iota\sigma\tau\alpha]\mu\epsilon[\nu\sigma\iota$, which seems to be the only alternative.

69. $\kappa\alpha\iota$: so $\mathfrak{NAB}$ and most MSS.; $\omega\sigma\tau\epsilon$ FG.

70. $\epsilon[\kappa\ \pi\epsilon\rho\iota\sigma\sigma\omicron\nu\ :\ \upsilon\pi\epsilon\rho\epsilon\kappa\pi\epsilon\rho\iota\sigma\sigma\omicron\nu\ \mathfrak{NA}$ and most MSS.; $\upsilon\pi\epsilon\rho\epsilon\kappa\pi\epsilon\rho\iota\sigma\sigma\omega\varsigma$ BD*FG. In iii. 10 and Eph. iii. 20 there is no variant for $\upsilon\pi\epsilon\rho\epsilon\kappa\pi\epsilon\rho\iota\sigma\sigma\omicron\nu$, but in Mark xiv. 31 $\mathfrak{NBCD}$ &c. read $\epsilon\kappa\pi\epsilon\rho\iota\sigma\sigma\omega\varsigma$ in place of $\epsilon\kappa\ \pi\epsilon\rho\iota\sigma\sigma\omicron\nu$.

71. The supposed traces of $\epsilon[\rho]\gamma\omicron\nu$ are very doubtful, but no variant is known.

72. $\alpha\nu\tau\omicron\iota\varsigma$: so $\mathfrak{NO}^*$ &c.; $\epsilon\alpha\nu\tau\omicron\iota\varsigma$ ABD^c &c.

77. $\sigma[\theta]\epsilon[\nu\omega\nu\ \epsilon\nu\ \nu\mu\iota\nu\ ?$: so Bartlet; the MSS. have nothing between $\alpha\sigma\theta\epsilon\nu\omega\nu$ and $\mu\alpha\kappa\rho\theta\upsilon\mu\epsilon\iota\tau\epsilon$.

82. $\kappa\alpha\iota$: so $\mathfrak{N}^c\text{B}$ &c.; om. $\mathfrak{N}^*\text{AD}$ &c.

104. $\kappa\alpha\iota$: so BD* &c.; om. $\mathfrak{NAD}^c$ and most other MSS.

106. $\epsilon\nu\omicron\rho\kappa\iota\zeta\omega$ (ABD* &c.) suits the space better than $\omicron\rho\kappa\iota\zeta\omega$ ($\mathfrak{ND}^b$ and most others).

109. $\alpha\delta\epsilon\lambda\phi[\iota\sigma\iota\varsigma\ \tau\omicron\iota\varsigma\ \alpha\gamma\iota\omicron\iota\varsigma$: $\alpha\delta\epsilon\lambda\phi\omicron\iota\varsigma\ \mathfrak{N}^*\text{BD}$ &c.; $\alpha\gamma\iota\omicron\iota\varsigma\ \alpha\delta\epsilon\lambda\phi\omicron\iota\varsigma\ \mathfrak{N}^c\text{A}$ &c.

111. After $\nu\mu[\omega\nu$ the papyrus may have had $\alpha\mu\eta\nu$ with $\mathfrak{NA}$ &c.

112. The title agrees with $\mathfrak{NB}^*$; other MSS. add $\acute{\epsilon}\pi\lambda\eta\rho\acute{\omega}\theta\eta$ or $\acute{\epsilon}\tau\epsilon\lambda\acute{\epsilon}\sigma\theta\eta$ or $\acute{\epsilon}\gamma\rho\acute{\alpha}\phi\eta$ $\acute{\alpha}\pi\omicron$ $\text{'A}\theta\eta\nu\acute{\omega}\nu$.

113. The title agrees with $\mathfrak{NAB}$; other MSS. prefix $\acute{\alpha}\rho\chi\epsilon\tau\alpha\iota$.

114. $\Sigma\iota\lambda[\omicron\nu\alpha\nu\sigma[\varsigma]$: so $\mathfrak{NAB}$ &c.; some MSS. have $\Sigma\iota\lambda\beta\alpha\nu\acute{\sigma}$.

117. $\text{I}\eta(\sigma\omicron)\nu\ \chi(\rho\iota\sigma\tau)\omega$: so $\mathfrak{NAB}$ &c.; $\chi(\rho\iota\sigma\tau)\omega\ \text{I}(\eta\sigma\omicron)\nu$ D and some others.

144. This line corresponds in position to l. 143, the upper part of the recto being lost. The first contraction was presumably some case of $\kappa\acute{\upsilon}\rho\iota\omicron\varsigma$ or $\chi\rho\iota\sigma\tau\acute{\omicron}\varsigma$, but l. 144 cannot be combined with l. 117.

1599. HERMAS, Pastor, Sim. viii.

24.5 × 19.8 cm.

Fourth century.

A complete leaf of a papyrus codex containing Sim. viii. 6. 4-8. 3 of the Shepherd of Hermas, this being the eighth Greek fragment of that popular work which has been obtained from Egypt, besides a few Coptic fragments; cf. 1172. int. and Berl. Klassikertexte, vi, p. 16. The two pages are numbered 72 and 73, the columns being slightly longer than those in 1172, where Sim. ii occupies pp. 70-1. The script of the major portion is a medium-sized upright semiuncial with a tendency to exaggerate the last stroke of α, κ, and λ. Something seems to have gone wrong with the verso, where the original writing has been obliterated in ll. 5-6 and from 7 onwards, and a larger and less practised hand, which imitates the style of the first, takes its place up to the end of the page. The leaf was found with dated third-century documents, but the writing hardly suggests so early a date, and it more probably belongs to the fourth century, like 1172, than to the last quarter of the third. θεός and κύριος are contracted, as usual. Pauses are indicated by high stops and blank spaces. An apostrophe is sometimes used to mark elision or divide double consonants.

The text is not very good, being prone to omissions, especially owing to homoioteleuton, as in ll. 19-20, 25, 27, 40-1; cf. ll. 3, 9, 18, 22, 24, 32, 33, 41, 45, where 1599 is in nearly all cases clearly wrong. Other slips occur, e.g. in l. 29. But naturally the difference of nine centuries between the dates of 1599 and the Codex Athous, which for this part of the Shepherd is the sole Greek authority, expresses itself by a number of improvements in the older text. In five places (ll. 9 ἐλάλησας, 20, 31, 37, 54) it supports one or both of the Latin versions against the Athous, which in l. 54 had corrupted αὐτόν to λοιπόν, as discerned by Hilgenfeld. Of the other variants the most noteworthy occur in ll. 3-4, 5, 11, 25, 38, 42, 46, 48, 50, 56. Most of these are probably right; that in ll. 3-4 is apparently supported by the Aethiopic version. There are, as usual in Hermas papyri, several changes in the order of words (ll. 6, 30, 44, 47, 49, 52), where the evidence of the older witness is generally the more credible; cf. 1172. int.

The collation with the text of the Codex Athous (ca) is based on Lake's transcript in Facsimile of the Athos fragments of the Shepherd of Hermas, which supersedes Simonides's transcript used by Gebhardt-Harnack and the imperfect collation of Georgandas. The information as to the Latin Vulgate and Palatine versions (L¹ and L²) and Aethiopic version (A) is obtained from Gebhardt-Harnack's and Hilgenfeld's editions. A new edition of the Shepherd is much to be desired.

1. τοιουτων: so ca and L²; L¹ adds ergo, A igitur. The termination of the word following τοιουτων is very uncertain; but, though the obliteration might be accidental instead of intentional, τοιυνν does not seem long enough.

3. ουτοι· εγγυς αυτων ησαν: οὔτοι ἐγγὺς αὐτῶν· ἦσαν γὰρ ca, supported by L¹L² and A.

3-4. [διδ]αχας εισφεροντες ετερας: διδ. ξένας εισφ. ca. pravas in L¹L² perhaps implies a different adjective, but A's duplicem (doctrinam) seems to support ετερας, for which cf. Gal. i 6 ἑτερον εὐαγγέλιον. The Gnostics are supposed to be meant.

5. μο[λλ]ιστα: or possibly μαλ'ιστα.

παλιν: om. ca, L¹L².

ημαρτηκοτες: ἡμαρτηκότας ca; cf. l. 9, where the accusative in -ες recurs, and Jannaris, Hist. Gr. Gram. p. 120.

6. αφεντες : αφιεντες ca in accordance with the other participles.
 αυτοις μετανοειν : μετανοειν αυτ. ca.
 7. πειθοντες : so ca and L¹ (detinentes); detinebant L²; seducunt A.
 9. εξ αυτων : πολλους εξ αυτ. ca with L¹L².

 Cf. the passage immediately preceding l. 1, where ca has ελάλησα, but L¹ implies ελάλησας.
 10. μετανοησωσιν : μετανοησουσιν ca; cf. ll. 26-7 and Jannaris, op. cit. p. 555.
 11. μετενοησαν : μετανοήσουσιν ca; egerint (v.l. egerunt) L¹L². μετανοήσουσιν is probably due to a reminiscence of l. 10.
 ψυχην : ζων ca; vitam L¹L².
 12-3. αγαθ[ο]ς εγ[ε]νοντο· και : om. L¹.
 16. ειχεν : εχει ca; inesse (vitam) L¹L².

 19-20. αι ραβδα[ι] ημιξηρους διψυχοι εισιν και καταλαλοι : αι ράβδοι καθά (l. κατὰ) τὸ αὐτὸ ημιξηροὶ διψυχοὶ εἰσιν· οὔτε γὰρ ζῶσιν οὔτε τεθυήκασιν. οἱ δὲ ἡμιξηροὶ ἔχοντες καὶ ἐν αὐταῖς σχισμάς, οὔτοι καὶ διψυχοὶ καὶ καταλαλοὶ εἰσιν ca, the omissions in 1599 being mostly due to homoioteleuton; cf. int. The archetype of 1599 may well have already lost κατὰ τὸ αὐτό, which is omitted by L² and A (tantummodo L¹).
 20. μηδέποτε : et nunquam L¹L²A; καὶ μηδὲ ca. καὶ μηδέποτε Gebh.-Harn.; but καὶ is superfluous.
 22. και : ἀλλὰ καὶ ca; et (his) quidem L¹; nam et L².
 23. ηδη : om. ca, L¹L².
 24. ετι ελπις εστιν εν αυτοις μετα[νοιας] : ἔτι, φησίν, ἐστὶν ἐν αὐτοῖς ἐλπίς μεταν. ca.
 25. οσοι ουν : καὶ ὅσοι ca; quicunque vero L¹; quicunque enim L².

 26. κατοικησωσιν : -σουσιν ca. Cf. l. 10, n. The supposed stop may be part of the κ of κα[σι] in l. 25.
 27. οι δε ου μετανοησωσιν : so L¹, qui vero non egerint; ὅσοι δὲ οὐ μετανοοῦσιν ἀλλ' ἐμμένουσι ca. Cf. ll. 10, 19-20, and 29, nn.

 30. ουτοι παντοτε : πάντοτε οὔτοι ca.
 31. δε : om. ca; but sed L¹L².
 32. δοξας : l. δοξης. δόξης τινὸς ca with L² (dignitate quadam); L¹ omits quadam. Cf. l. 41, n.
 33. εν αλληλοις : add ἔχοντες περὶ πρωτείων ca, which edd. emend by inserting ζῆλον after ἔχοντες from L¹ habent inter se aemulationem de principatu and L² de principatu certantur.
 35. εκαθαρισαν : ἐκαθάρισαν ca.
 37. αυτων : so L¹L² (eorum); om ca.
 επιστραφη : ἐπιστρέψω ca; redierit L¹L². In classical authors the passive was used in this sense; but cf. Matt. xii. 44 ἐπιστρέψω εἰς τὸν οἶκόν μου.
 38. εκκολληθησεται : ἐκβληθήσεται ἀπὸ ca; expelletur L¹L². ἐκκολλᾶν is not attested, but seems not unlikely here; cf. l. 47 τοις αγιοις μη κολλωμενοι. β and κ are often very similar in cursive hands from the second century onwards.
 40-1. των τηρουντων τας εντολας του κ(υρι)ου και τας εντολας δε : τῶν τὰς ἐντ. τοῦ κ(υρ). φυλασσόντων ἐν ταῖς ἐντολαῖς δὲ ca with L²; (vila enim) eorum qui custodiunt mandata domini in mandatis consistit L¹. και may be a mistake for κατα, but εν τοις δε τοιουτοις occurs in l. 43.

41. δοξης: δόξης τινός ca with L¹L².
 42. ταπεινοφρο[σ]υνης: ταπεινοφρονήσεως ca; humilitatem animae L¹; animi humil. L².
 ταπεινοφροσύνη occurs several times in the N. T. and 1 Clem. and in the Shepherd twice, Vis. iii. 10. 6, Sim. v. 3. 7; but for ταπεινοφρόνησις Stephanus only quotes Tertullian. 1599 is likely to be right.
 43. εν τοις δε τοιούτοις: εν τοῖς τοιούτοις οὖν ca. L¹ has for ll. 42-3 per patientiam . . . vilam homines consequuntur.
 44. εν δε τοις διχοστατοις: εν τοῖς διχοστάτοις δε ca. εν δε has been corrected. διχοστάταις edd.

1600. TREATISE ON THE PASSION.

22.5 × 7.8 cm.

Fifth century.

This and the next three fragments (1601-3) all come from works which do not seem to be extant, though in the absence of an adequate patristic lexicon, except for the Apostolic Fathers and Apologists, this is not quite certain. None of them is likely to have been composed before the third or fourth century. 1600, which is most of a leaf from a papyrus codex, contains part of a treatise on the Passion as foreshadowed in the Old Testament by various types such as Abel, Joseph, and Moses, and being therefore at once both old and new; illustrations from Deuteronomy and the Psalms are quoted. The verso clearly follows the recto, with an interval of perhaps not more than a single line at the top. The script is a good-sized round uncial of a formal type. The mound in which 1600 was found produced mainly fifth-century documents, and that century rather than the sixth is likely to be the date of the papyrus. The customary contractions for θεός, κύριος, and Χριστός occur. Pauses are indicated sometimes by high stops or blank spaces, but the employment of them is irregular. There are a few marginal corrections in a similar but not identical hand. On both sides of the papyrus the surface is much damaged in places. The restorations are largely due to Dr. Bartlet, who suggests that 1600 may come from Hippolytus, Πρὸς Ἰουδαίους.

Thus the Passion of the Lord which was (foreknown) for a long time and revealed by a pattern, to-day finds itself fulfilled in us . . . new which was thought old. For the mystery of the Lord is new and old, old in respect of the law, but new in respect of grace. But if thou wilt consider the pattern, thou wilt see that it is new by the giving (?) of God. If then thou wishest to know the mystery of the Lord, consider Abel who was killed through his brother; . . . who was likewise . . . ; Joseph who was likewise sold; Moses who was likewise exposed; . . . who was likewise . . . ; the others who likewise suffered evil things. And consider also him who in Isaiah was slain as a sheep, who (was ?) struck . . . and saved (many). Concerning the blood . . . the mystery of the Lord is (revealed) through prophetic writing. For Moses prophesied "And ye shall see your life hanging before your eyes night and day, and ye shall have no assurance of your life". And David said "Why did the nations rage and the peoples imagine vain things? The kings of the earth set themselves and the rulers took counsel together against the Lord and against his anointed". Whom . . . they considered as a lamb led to the slaughter . . .

8-9. τετελειωμενον or τετελεσμενον would be expected, but hardly fills up l. 9, which is shorter than the rest and perhaps ends a sentence.

17. τον τυπον: the reading is very doubtful; but neither παλαιον nor το παλαιον is satisfactory, and cf. l. 6. It is not quite certain that a fragment containing the supposed $\bar{o}$ of τυπον, $\bar{u}$ in l. 18, and the top of the ν of βου and εα[in l. 19 is rightly placed here.

19. The marginal note apparently corrects ει βουλει to εαν βουλη. λη may have been written in the margin below εαν or at the beginning of l. 20, or possibly εαν | [βου]|λ[η] should be restored at the ends of ll. 19-21. δ[is, however, preferable in l. 21; cf. n.

21. There is a space between αποβλεψον and δ[, which perhaps belongs to a marginal addition beginning in l. 19; cf. n. δ[ε is not wanted, αποβλεψον being the apodosis of ει βου[λει (but cf. l. 33, where there is room for δε); and δ[η is more likely.

22. The readings after Αβελ are very uncertain, but τον υπο του | [Καιν φ]ονευομενον does not suit the vestiges.

24-5. εις [τον Ισ]αακ τον ομοιωσ [υπο πρ]ς σφαζομενον is unsuitable, though οζομενον does not suggest an appropriate word.

32-3. πα[σχοντες: cf. 1599. 5, n.

34-5. Cf. Isa. liii. 7 ως πρόβατον ἐπὶ σφαγὴν ἤχθη and ll. 56-7.

36. παταξαν[τα: παταχθεντα would be expected.

43-8. A loose quotation of Deut. xxviii. 66 καὶ ἔσται ἡ ζωὴ σου κρεμαμένη ἀπέναντι τῶν ὀφθαλμῶν σου, καὶ φοβηθήσῃ ἡμέρας καὶ νυκτός, καὶ οὐ πιστεύσεις τῇ ζωῇ σου.

49-55 = Psalm ii. 1.

56-8. Cf. Psalm xliii. 22 ἐλογίσθημεν ὡς πρόβατα σφαγῆς and ll. 34-5, n.

59-60. This unplaced fragment, being blank on the verso, presumably came near the ends of lines; but at the ends of ll. 13-15 there is apparently nothing lost. It is not clear which way up it is to be read.

1601. HOMILY ON SPIRITUAL WARFARE.

12.7 × 10.2 cm.

Late fourth or fifth century.

The lower part of a leaf of a papyrus codex containing a homily of some kind on the warfare of the soul, largely concerned with Joel i. 6 (ll. 2 sqq.) and 8 (ll. 23-8), but also referring to Hosca iii. 3 (ll. 29-30) and perhaps the Pentateuch

(l. 32). For much of the reconstruction we are indebted to Dr. Bartlet. The script is a medium-sized semiuncial of the late fourth or fifth century, with occasional high stops and the usual contractions of θεός and probably κύριος, but not of νίος. Abbreviations are found on the recto, which probably followed the verso, and these perhaps occurred at the ends of lines of the verso also. Brown ink was employed.

1602. HOMILY TO MONKS.

12.5 × 10.8 cm. Late fourth or fifth century.

A leaf of a vellum codex containing apparently the beginning of a section of a homily to ascetics on the spiritual warfare as illustrated by the history of Israel. The vellum is stained and shrivelled in places, rendering the decipherment sometimes difficult, especially on the verso (the flesh-side?), where the ink is fainter; and we are indebted to suggestions of Dr. Bartlett for several readings. The script is a good-sized uncial of the early biblical type, not quite as old as 406 (Part iii, Plate i) or 849 (Part vi, Plate i), but probably of the late fourth century rather than the fifth. O is written small and the middle of ω is slurred, as in 1597 (Plate i). Stops are freely employed, these being generally in the middle position, but double dots and a mark like an apostrophe are also used. A breathing is inserted in l. 4. θεός, Ἰησοῦς, Ἰσραήλ, κύριος, πνεῦμα, and Χριστός are contracted. Some remarkable expressions occur in ll. 32-7.

‘Soldiers of Christ, hear how often God delivered Israel from the hand of the lawless, and while they kept the things pertaining to the Lord He did not withdraw from them—for He saved Israel from the hand of Pharaoh the lawless, and from Og, a more unholy king, and from Arad with the men of other nations, and when they kept the things pertaining to God He still gave to them from the fruit of strength, having promised to them the land of Canaan, and He subjected to them the men of other nations—and again how

He supplied them in the desert and waterless place, and in addition He sent forth prophets to herald our Lord Christ Jesus, men who receiving in order and lot and due portion the spirit of Christ and suffering ills from the people were put to death. They were destroyed because they departed from the living Spirit after their own lawlessness; they lost the eternal inheritance. And now, brethren, remain conquerors. Remain until having endured we attain the approach unto the Lord, and receive as innate and a shield of well-pleasing Christ Jesus, Him who planted Himself for our sakes on earth so as He is; and accept the word, because a spirit of power in the last time . . .

4. ετηρουσαν: this form of the imperfect was introduced in the second century B.C.; cf. Mayser, Grammatik d. griech. Pap. aus d. Ptolemäerzeit, p. 323.

9. Αδαρ μετ[α τ]ων αλλοφυλων: 'Αδαρ is a Jewish month, not a proper name, and seems to be corrupt, probably for 'Αράδ the Canaanite (Numb. xxi. 1-3).

12. καρπου της ισχυος: a phrase apparently meaning 'spoil'.

17. και has dots above it; cf. l. 37.

23. The correction (if the supposed vestige of κ above the line is really ink) may be by the first hand.

25. ανηρεθησαν: the subject reverts to αυτοις in l. 15, i. e. the Jews.

32-5. We have not been able to find a parallel for the expressions in these lines.

36. φυντα is used transitively, as if it were φυσαντα. The traces suit φ very well. Cf. ἐφν for ἐφνυσε in two British Museum Greek inscriptions, nos. 1004 and 1074, discussed by J. A. R. Munro in Class. Rev. 1917. 142.

37. γηι: the dots above και indicating deletion are clear, but the scribe does not seem to have also placed dots over γηι. He (or the preacher) apparently meant εν γηι. πνῆ cannot be read instead. For γη as equivalent to human nature Bartlet compares Barn. vi. 9 ἄνθρωπος γὰρ γῆ ἐστὶν πάσχουσα.

38. λογον: i. e. the preacher's discourse probably, rather than the Gospel.

1603. HOMILY CONCERNING WOMEN.

21.1 × 13.3 cm.

Fifth or sixth century.

The upper part of a column of a roll written in a large sloping uncial hand of the fifth or sixth century with light brown ink. The subject is a diatribe, addressed probably to ascetics, against the female sex, through whom the Evil One is wont to exert his wiles. Examples from the Bible are cited in ll. 1-11, a passage which seems to be modelled on Hebr. xi; the rest consists of a more general condemnation. A contraction αγ(γε)λους and stops in the high and (more commonly) middle position occur. 403 (Apocalypse of Baruch; Part iii, Plate i; fifth century) is a somewhat earlier specimen of this type of uncial, of which sixth-century specimens in smaller hands occur in P. Cairo Maspero 67097 verso (i. Plates xxviii-ix) and 67177 verso (ii. Plates xix-xx).

II. NEW CLASSICAL FRAGMENTS

1604. PINDAR, Dithyrambs.

Fr. I 18 × 25.3 cm.

Late second century.

Plate I (Fr. 1).

To the valuable papyri of Pindar already obtained from Oxyrhynchus (cf. 1614. int.) have now to be added two fragments of a roll containing his dithyrambs, an important section of the poet's works hitherto represented only by the first 18 lines of an ode for the Athenians about Semele (Fr. 75 Schroeder) and a few short quotations. Two of these from the same dithyramb fortunately occur in the papyrus, thus establishing its authorship and character, while another Pindaric citation from an unspecified ode is also present. The larger fragment contains the middle portion of two columns, of which the first comes from a point near the conclusion of a dithyramb probably for the Argives, the second from the beginning of a dithyramb for the Thebans. The smaller fragment belongs to a third ode, possibly for the Corinthians, and may have preceded the other two instead of following them. According to the βίος Πινδαρόν prefixed to the Codex Vratislaviensis there were two books of his dithyrambs, and the scholiast on Ol. xiii. 25 states that in the 1st (book) Pindar attributed the discovery of the dithyramb to Thebes (Fr. 71). This claim is likely to have been made in an ode for the Thebans, which may well have been the second of the three poems in 1604. If so, all three odes probably belong to the 1st book. Little can be made of the first and third dithyrambs owing to the loss of the beginnings of lines, but the first 30 lines of the second are nearly complete. In the reconstruction and interpretation of this difficult papyrus we are indebted for a number of valuable suggestions to Professors J. B. Bury and A. E. Housman, Sir John E. Sandys, Mr. H. Stuart Jones, and Mr. E. Lobel.

The dithyramb according to the usual view, which has recently been disputed by Professor Ridgeway,¹ was originally a song to Dionysus, as the paean was a song to Apollo, but enlarged its scope in the time of Pindar's predecessors, Lasus and Simonides. The latter wrote dithyrambs entitled Europa and Memnon, and perhaps one on Danaë, if the well-known fragment about her comes from a dithyramb rather than from a θρήνος. Pindar and Bacchylides belong to the middle dithyrambic period. Later dithyrambic poets exercised greater freedom in their choice of subjects, and in Roman times 'dithyramb' seems to have been applied to any lyric poem which contained a narrative concerning the heroes; cf. Plut. De Mus. 10 and Jebb, Bacchyl. p. 39. Concerning the form and character of the dithyramb hardly anything was known before the discovery of the Bacchylides papyrus; but in this the last seven odes (xiv-xx Blass; xix and xx are mere fragments) are generally regarded as dithyrambs, though this classification of them is not altogether free from doubt, for, while xvi is called a dithyramb by Servius (c. 400 A.D.) and in 1091, it is in fact a paean to Apollo, and xix might be a ὑμέναιος. The titles of these odes are Ἀντηνορίδαι ἢ Ἑλένης ἀπαίτησις, [Ἡρακλῆς], Ἡίθεοι ἢ Θησεύς, Θησεύς, Ἴώ (Ἀθηναίους), Ἴδας (Λακεδαιμονίους), and [Κασσάνδρα?]. Dionysus is introduced only in xviii, the essential feature of these poems being the presentation of a myth. The metre is in only one case (xiv) dactylo-epitritic, which is generally employed in the epinician odes; but the division into strophes, antistrophes, and epodes is found in four out of the five well-preserved dithyrambs, the fifth having only strophes. The introduction of 'free verse' (ἀπολελυμένα), not in strophes, is ascribed sometimes to Melanippides, a younger contemporary of Pindar (so Jebb, op. cit. p. 46, Weir Smyth, Greek Melic poets, liii), sometimes to Lasus, or to Pindar himself (Crusius in Pauly-Wissowa, Realenc. v. 1214) on the evidence of (1) Horace, Odes iv. 2. 10 seu per audaces nova dithyrambos verba devolvit numerisque fertur lege solutis, (2) Pseudo-Censorinus, c. 9 Pindari . . . qui liberos etiam numeris modos edidit, (3) Fr. 75 about Semele, which is thought to be in 'free verse', (4) Pindar's reference in Fr. 79 to his predecessors' poetry as σχοινοτένεια, which has been supposed to imply division into triads as contrasted with his own verse.

The new find, so far as it goes, does not contribute much to support Horace's description of Pindar's dithyrambs. Apart from σχοινοτένεια (II. 1) there are only two new words εὐάμπυξ (I. 13) and ἀκναμπτεῖ (III. 12). Dithyramb I was certainly arranged in triads, II either in triads or, less probably, in strophes, while the remains of III are not long enough to show the arrangement. Hence, in the absence of any definite evidence for supposing that Fr. 75 is in 'free verse', that fragment can quite well be regarded as parallel to the first strophe of II, which is of about the same length. Fr. 79 happens to occur in II, and the recovery of the context of that passage so important for the history of the dithyramb shows that Pindar was not referring to the distinction between triads and ἀπολελυμένα. The metre of II, and probably of III also, is dactylo-epitritic, that of I logaoedic, like Fr. 75. There are some irregularities (cf. II. 4-6, 8-11, 12, 13-14, 15-16, 19, 30, nn.), but hardly more prominent than those in the epinician odes. With regard to the subjects of the dithyrambs, the title of II was 'Heracles the bold or Cerberus', an episode also treated by Stesichorus (Fr. 11), another exploit of Heracles being treated by Bacchylides (cf. p. 28). I was apparently concerned with the deeds of an Argive hero, perhaps Perseus. The subject of III is uncertain, for the extant fragment comes from a part of the dithyramb in which Dionysus was apparently addressed. He is also prominent in II, and is referred to in I, so that Pindar's dithyrambs were clearly more of the nature of Dionysiac odes than those of Bacchylides. There is no trace of any of the three odes having taken the form of a dialogue such as Bacchyl. xvii. On the whole the impression created by the new find is that Pindar as a dithyrambist was distinctly conservative, and the innovations introduced in the fifth century B.C. were not due to him.

The papyrus was found in the mound which produced 1082-3, 1231, 1233-4 &c., but it is doubtful whether it belonged to that collection of lyric and other texts. The handwriting is a medium-sized, rather square and sloping uncial resembling that of 223 (after A.D. 185; Part ii, Plate i) and the corrector who inserted two missing lines in 1234. 2. ii (Part x, Plate iv). That the main text was written before, not after, 200 is made probable (1) by the title of II, which is in a small cursive hand employing 4-shaped η and apparently different from that of the main text, (2) by the numerous scholia in another, still smaller cursive hand, referring to questions of reading or interpretation. These marginalia, which are practically contemporary with the main text, are very similar to those in 1234, and seem to belong to the second century rather than the third. The main text was originally corrupt in not a few passages, especially in III, and has been subjected to considerable revision. One of the correctors, who is responsible for the readings above the line in II. 27 and III. 9 av, is possibly identical with the original scribe or with the writer of the title, but more probably different. A second corrector, to whom we should assign all the other interlinear readings, is certainly distinct from the original scribe, the first corrector, and the writers of the title of II and the scholia. A few mistakes of spelling have escaped correction; cf. II. 8-11, 21, nn. An elaborate coronis, similar to those in 1234, occurred at the beginning of II, but there is no paragraphus after II. 18, where it would be expected. Accents, breathings, and marks of elision or quantity are not infrequent, being mostly due to the first hand, but in some cases added by the second corrector. The stops (high points, except two in the middle position in I. 10 (?) and II. 14) seem to be all due to the first hand, like the occasional diaereses.

I. Only the upper part of the column is of any value, but the slight traces of ll. 25-38 are sufficient to show that they correspond to ll. 11-24; cf. the reference to the antistrophe in l. 20 schol. Lines 1-10 evidently belong to the penultimate epode, which may have begun several lines earlier. The concluding epode is lost. To judge by the length of lines in II, not more than 10 letters (i.e. 4 syllables) would be expected to be lost before ll. 7-12, and 2 more letters before ll. 2-6 and 13-17. A shorter lacuna at the beginning (4 letters) would suit l. 15, but in l. 14 one or two words seem to be lost before ἀέ]ξετε. That the poem was for the Argives is indicated by the references in ll. 6-7 to the building of a city (Tiryns or Mycenae?) by Cyclopes in Argive territory, and in l. 9 to the house of Abas. The mention of the Gorgons in l. 5 suggests that Perseus was the subject, and possible mentions of Danaë and Acrisius or Proetus occur in ll. 1-3; but Phorcus himself (l. 5), apart from his being the father of the Gorgons and Graeae, is not known to be specially connected with the Perseus legends. The new strophe apparently introduces a change of subject. After a reference to the Dionysiac gathering and an address to the Muses, in l. 15 begins a narrative of an adventure of some one who seems to be newly mentioned. Phorcus and probably the Gorgons again occur, and Bury would refer this passage, not ll. 1-10, to Perseus. The approach of the end of the ode and some parallelisms with Fr. 75 suggest that Dionysus himself might be meant. Possibly Frs. 254 and 284 are to be connected with this poem; cf. ll. 1 and 17, nn. The metre is logaedic. Some of the lines (e.g. strophe 1 and 3) might be regarded as ending in dochmiacs, but these belong to tragedy rather than to lyrics.

II. This dithyramb for the Thebans was evidently well known in antiquity on account of its opening reference to the σχουνοτένεια ἀοιδή and σὰν κίβδηλον, which is quoted by several writers (Fr. 79^a) and enables ll. 1-3 to be restored. Another passage a few lines later (Fr. 79^b), quoted by Strabo alone, had been much corrupted in the MSS. of that author; in a third fragment which occurs (Fr. 208) there are also marked differences between Plutarch's citations and the text of the papyrus. Frs. 81 and 249 also have some points of connexion with II, but are probably from different poems; cf. l. 1, marg., n. The ode begins with a contrast between the older and newer form of dithyramb in favour of the newer, which claims inspiration from the festival held in honour of Dionysus at Olympus itself (ll. 1-8). There follows in ll. 8-23 a picturesque and vivid description of the celestial festival, and a characteristically grandiloquent reference to the poet himself, which leads to the subject of Thebes and the ancestry of Dionysus, whose mother Semele was the daughter of Cadmus and Harmonia (ll. 23-30). The poem breaks off shortly before the end of the antistrophe, where Dionysus himself was apparently being addressed. An epode probably followed; cf. p. 28. The metre is dactylo-epitritic, like that of Fr. 74^b, a corrupt quotation from Pindar found in Epiphanius, which has been assigned by Schroeder to the dithyrambs. The main subject of the poem, Cerberus, is not reached.

III. In this dithyramb about 10 letters seem to be missing at the beginnings of ll. 5-14, and about 5 more in ll. 15-25. There is no metrical correspondence in ll. 1-21, and whether ll. 22-6 correspond to some of ll. 1-10 or not is uncertain. Probably part of the fragment belongs to an epode, unless indeed this poem was in ἀπολελυμένα. Dionysus is apparently addressed in ll. 6 sqq., being invited to join in the festival celebrated at a certain city. Bury would regard this as Corinth on the evidence of the 'neighbouring rock' (l. 10) and some other indications; cf. ll. 14-15, 18, 22, nn. The metre is apparently dactylo-epitritic, with perhaps an admixture of other rhythms. The scheme of ll. 3-19 is

I. 1. Either Δανά[as (referring to Perseus) or Δανα[οῦ (e.g. τρίτον] ἀπὸ Δ., referring to Acrisius or Proetus) or Δανα[ῶν or else]α πόδα ν·[can be read, the last letter being quite uncertain. Pindar Fr. 284 from Schol. A Homer Ξ 319 αὐτὴ δὲ (Δανάη), ὥς φησιν Πίνδαρος καὶ ἄλλοι τινές, ἐφθάρη ὑπὸ τοῦ πατραδελφου αὐτῆς Προίτου, ὅθεν αὐτοῖς καὶ στάσις ἐκινήθη might refer to this dithyramb.

3. Possibly 'Ακρίσ]ιον. The first letter might be ν or π, but hardly τ, so that Προί]τον (cf. ll. 6-7, n.) is unsatisfactory. Lobel suggests Δύκ]ιον, referring either to Proetus or Iobates, king of Lycia, who restored Proetus.

4. The doubtful δ can be α or λ. For λειβόμενον cf. Pg. xii. 9 τὸν (sc. θρήνον) . . . αἶε λειβόμενον δυσπενθεῖ σὺν καμάτῳ.

5. The letter before σε can be ε, ι, σ, υ, or ω. For Phorcus (= Phorcys), the father of the Gorgons, cf. l. 17 and p. 30.

6. Bury suggests πρόγονόν τε Κυ]κλώπων, Phorcus being grandfather of Polyphemus through his daughter Thoösa.

6-7. The scholium is obscure, but seems to refer to the distinction between οἱ (= εἰαυτῶ) and οἱ (= αὐτῶ), and οἱ with or without an accent presumably occurred in the text. Whether the traces of a word following μεγαλωι belong to the text or a scholium is uncertain; τ[is possible. Bury proposes πτόλις ἄρ[ά οἱ | δέδμητο (or τέτυκτο) κείνω]ν ἐν Ἀργεῖ μεγαλωι τ[έχνα. The city in question was probably either Tiryns, which was built by the Cyclopes for Proetus, as described in Bacchyl. x. 59-81, or Midea or Mycenae, of which Perseus was the legendary founder (Paus. ii. 15. 4), being assisted by the Cyclopes (Schol. Eur. Or. 965).

8-9. If ζυγέντες is to be taken literally, ἱπ]ποι and ἱκο]ντ' (Stuart Jones) are probable; but ἐρατᾶ suggests that the context may concern music, and Bury proposed φόρμιγγι δ' ὕμ]νοι ζυγέντες ἐρατᾶ δῶμον | ἄχεον ἀνὰ σκιδέ]ντ' Ἀβαντος, comparing Homer λ 334 κληθμῶ δ' ἔσχοντο κατὰ μέγαρα σκιδέτα. ὕμ]νοι is, however, unsatisfactory, for if the doubtful letter was ν the middle stroke ought to have been visible, so that π (κόμ]ποι? Bury) or η or ι is preferable. The 'house of Abas' means the palace at Argos; cf. Pg. viii. 55 Ἀβαντος εὐρυχόρους ἀγυιάς.

10. The stop after λειν is not quite certain, and δ can be read for λ. Bury proposes τοὺς δ' ἄσμ' ἐκ]λειν, based on the scholium, in which τοὺς is apparently quoted from the text and Διονυσιακον refers to a different word. For ἐκῆ]λεεν cf. II. 22 and the Homeric verse cited in ll. 8-9, n. The objection to it is that Pindar elsewhere uses the contracted forms in imperfects.

11-13. A new strophe begins here. Bury proposes something like ἀλλ' ἀνδρῶν εὐ]δαιμόνων βρομιάδι θοῖνα πρέπει | ἔργοισι λόγων] κορυφᾶν | ἐπιχωρίοισι] θέμεν. Cf. Nem. ix. 8 ἀλλ' ἀνὰ μὲν βρομίαν φόρμιγγ', ἀνὰ δ' αὐλὸν ἐπ' αὐτὰν ὄρσομεν ἱππίων ἄεθλων κορυφᾶν.

13-14. εὐάμπυξ is not found elsewhere, but ἐλικάμπυξ, κυανάμπυξ, λιπαράμπυξ, and χρυσάμπυξ occur in Pindar. For ἀέ]ξετ' (Bury, Stuart Jones) cf. Ol. vi. 105 ἐμῶν δ' ὕμνων ἄεξ' εὐτερπὲς ἄνθος. Before it Bury proposes Περσεῖ νυν, in order to explain νυν in l. 16. Βρομίῳ νυν is also possible; cf. l. 17, n.

15. ὕμμι] was suggested by Bury, who proposes an epithet of αἰοδῶν, e.g. κλυτᾶν, before it.

16. Regarding νυν as Perseus, Bury proposes Λιβύας πεδί]α (or γύαλ]α) φυγόντα, κῆρ]α (Stuart Jones) is also possible. If Dionysus, who according to Paus. ii. 22. 1 attacked Argos from the sea, were meant (cf. l. 17, n.), δεσμ]ὰ (Lobel) would be suitable; cf. Eur. Bacch. 610 sqq. It is not clear whether ἔρκος was simply omitted by the first hand or was intended to take the place of ἄλμας. The corresponding line of the antistrophe hardly projects as far as would be expected if it contained equivalents of both words; but the collocation ἔρκος ἄλμας occurs in Py. ii. 80 ἀβάπτιστός εἰμι φελλὸς ὥς ὑπὲρ ἔ. ᾧ, where ἄλμας is usually connected with ἀβάπτιστος, not ἔρκος, and ἔρκος is thought to mean 'net'. This parallel makes us disposed to retain both words, and to regard them as a periphrasis for the sea, like the scholiast on Py. ii. 80, who explains ἔρκος as ἐπιφάνεια, 'surface'.

17. κορᾶν points to a word like it in the text, either a synonym or κορᾶν differently spelled (κουρᾶν?) or wrongly accented (cf. II. 19, n.). The Graeae or more probably the Gorgons (cf. l. 5 and p. 30) must be meant, and the line may have begun with ἐς followed by a word implying 'abode' (τάν?). Pindar Fr. 254 from Apollodorus ii. 38 αὐται δὲ αἱ νύμφαι πτηνὰ εἶχον πέδιλα καὶ τὴν κίβισιν, ἣν φασιν εἶναι πῆραν. Πίνδαρος δὲ καὶ Ἡσίοδος ἐν Ἀσπίδι ἐπὶ τοῦ Περσέως κτλ. may have referred to this dithyramb. σύγγονον πατέρων is obscure. If the stops before and after these words are correct, they seem to be in apposition to νυν, which is unsatisfactory. As Stuart Jones remarks, σύνγονον would be expected to agree with a word like ἀρετάν in the next line. πατέρων is probably the plural of amplification; cf. Fr. 75. 10 Βρόμιον ὃν τ' Ἐριβόαν τε βροτοὶ καλέομεν, γόνον ὑπάτων μὲν πατέρων μέλπεμεν γυναικῶν τε Καδμεΐαν ἔμολον (v. l. Σεμέλην). The resemblances between this passage and Il. 15-19 (βροτοὶ . . . πατέρων . . . ἔμολον) suggest that νιν might be Dionysus, not Perseus; cf. l. 16, n.

19.] πον: or] . ιον. μ of εμολον is corrected from τ.

20. The marginal note refers to ἔάν, which 'is rejected (?)', being superfluously introduced from the antistrophe, i. e. l. 34, which ends ἔάν and also contained a superfluous word. The last letter of απ[.]ο () might be δ or λ, but ἀπ[οβ]ά(λ)εται and ἀποδο(κιμά)ζεται are not satisfactory readings.

23. The ο of λεγο(μενον) is not raised above the line, as would be expected if the word is an abbreviation; but λετο is inadmissible.

28. In the margin are traces of a scholium.

34. ἔάν: cf. l. 20, n. το κεν περισσόν would be expected; cf. l. 6, schol.

II. 'Heracles the bold or Cerberus. For the Thebans.

Formerly both dithyrambic song issued from the lips of men long drawn out and the sigma under suspicion; but now new gates have been opened for sacred choirs: they (sing?), knowing what manner of festival of Bromius the celestials by the very sceptre of Zeus celebrate in their halls. Beside the majesty of the great mother of the gods begins the beating of drums; therewith swells the music of the castanets and the torch blazing below the yellow pine-brands; therewith resounding laments of the Naiads, wild dances and shouts are stirred in the fury of tossing the neck on high. Therewith moves the almighty thunderbolt breathing fire, and the sword of the god of War, and the valiant aegis of Pallas rings with the hissing of countless serpents. Lightly comes Artemis the lone huntress, who has yoked in the Bacchic revels the race of most savage lions for Bromius, while he is enchanted also by the dancing throng of beasts. Me too, a chosen herald of wise words, the Muse raised up to pray for prosperity (?) for Hellas with its fair dances and chariot-pressing Thebes, where of old, as the story tells, Cadmus by high design won sage Harmonia as his bride, and she hearkened to the voice of Zeus and became the mother of offspring famed among men. O Dionysus, . . .'

I marg. θρασ[ύς] Ἡρακλῆς ἢ Κέρβερος: Heracles is called θρασυνμάχανος in Ol. vi. 67. For other examples of alternative titles of dithyrambs cf. p. 28. It is tempting to connect with this ode Pindar Fr. 249^a (Schol. AB on Homer Φ 194) Ἡρακλῆς εἰς Ἄιδου κατελθὼν ἐπὶ τὸν Κέρβερον συνένυχε Μελέαργον τῷ Οἰνέως, οὗ καὶ δεηθέντος γῆμαι τὴν ἀδελφὴν Δηάνειραν, ἐπανελθὼν εἰς φῶς ἔσπενσεν εἰς Αἰτωλίαν πρὸς Οἰνέα, καταλαβὼν δὲ μνηστευόμενον τὴν κόρην Ἀχελῶν τὸν πλησίον ποταμόν, διεπάλαυσεν αὐτῷ . . . δοκεῖ δὲ τῶν ἐν τῇ Ἑλλάδι ποταμῶν μέγιστος εἶναι ὁ Ἀχελῶς διὸ καὶ πᾶν ὕδωρ τῇ τοῦτου προσηγορίᾳ καλεῖται. ἡ ἱστορία παρὰ Πινδάρῳ. But Fr. 249^b (221. ix. 14), which seems to belong to the passage in question about the Achelöus, is in a different metre, πρόσθα μὲν σ' Ἀχελώϊον τὸν αἰδοτάτον εὐρωπία κράνα Μέλ[ανό]ς τε ποταμοῦ ῥοαὶ τρέφον κάλαμον. A fragment concerning Heracles from a dithyramb (Fr. 81) is quoted by Aristides ii. 70 ὅτι καὶ ἐτέρωθι μεμνημένος περὶ αὐτῶν ἐν διθυράμβῳ τινί: σὲ δ' ἐγὼ παράμιν (παρ' ἄμμιν Boeckh, παρὰ νιν Bergk⁴), φησίν, αἰνέω μὲν, Γηρύνῃ, τὸ δὲ μὴ Διὶ (Διὶ Hermann) φίλτερον συγκῶμι πάμπαν. The metre of this from αἰνέω . . . πάμπαν corresponds to II. 1-3 κιβ], and the words preceding αἰνέω might correspond metrically to the end of an epode; but the capture of the oxen of Geryones is a different exploit, and Fr. 81 is likely to belong to another dithyramb. Fr. 169 (Plato, Gorg. 484 b, Aristides, ii. 68, Schol. Pind. Nem. ix. 35 νόμος ὁ πάντων βασιλεὺς κτλ.), which mentions Geryones and is in dactylo-epitritic metre, but does not correspond to the extant part of II, and Fr. 168 (Athenaeus, x. 411 b, Philostratus, Imag. ii. 24 δ(ο)ιὰ βοῶν θερμά κτλ.), which refers to the devouring of an ox by Heracles at the house of Coronus, an episode connected with the capture of the Cretan bull (Apollod. ii. 5. 7), and is not in dactylo-epitritic metre, certainly have no connexion with our dithyramb.

1-3 (= Fr. 79^a). Cf. Strabo x. 469 μάρτυρες δ' οἱ ποιηταὶ τῶν τοιούτων ὑπνοϊῶν (sc. concerning the Curetes and Corybantes)· ὃ τε γὰρ Πίνδαρος ἐν τῷ διθυράμβῳ οὗ ἡ ἀρχὴ πρὶν μὲν εἶρπε σχοινοτενίας (σχοινοτενεία edd.) τ' αἰοῖδ' (v. l. αἰοῖδαι) διθυράμβων (-βφ most MSS.), μνησθεῖς δὲ (δὲ om. most edd.) τῶν περὶ τὸν Διόνυσον ὕμνων τῶν τε παλαιῶν καὶ τῶν ὕστερον, μετάβας ἀπὸ τούτων φησί· σοὶ μὲν κατάρχει (κατάρχειν edd.) μάτερ παρὰ μεγάλοι (v. l. μεγάλοι· μεγάλα πάρα edd.) ῥοίμβοι (ῥοίμβοι edd.) κυμβάλων, ἐν δὲ κεχλάδων (κεχλάδων edd.) κρόταλ' αἰθομένα τε δᾶς (δαῖς some edd.) ὑπὸ ξανθαῖσι πεύκαις (= ll. 8-11), τὴν κοινωρίαν τῶν περὶ τὸν Διόνυσον ἀποδειχθέντων νομίμων παρὰ τοῖς Ἕλλησι καὶ τῶν παρὰ τοῖς Φρυγῶσι περὶ τὴν μητέρα τῶν θεῶν συνοικειῶν ἀλλήλοις, Athen. x. 455 b Πίνδαρος δὲ πρὸς τὴν ἀσιγμοποιηθεῖσαν ᾠδὴν, ὡς ὁ αὐτὸς φησι Κλέαρχος, οἰοῖναι γρίφου τινὸς ἐν μελοποιίᾳ προβληθέντος, ὡς πολλῶν τούτῳ προσκρουόντων διὰ τὸ δυνατόν (ἀδύνατον edd.) εἶναι ἀποσχεῖσθαι τοῦ σίγμα καὶ διὰ τὸ μὴ δοκιμάζειν, ἐποίησε (corrupt?)· πρὶν μὲν εἶρπε σχοινοτενία (l. -τενεία) τ' αἰοῖδ' καὶ τὸ σὰν τίβοηλον (κίβδηλον edd.) ἀνθρώποις, x. 448 c καθάπερ οἱ ἀσιγμοὶ καλούμενοι τῶν γρίφων· ὅθεν καὶ Πίνδαρος πρὸς τὸ ὅ ἐποίησεν ᾠδὴν (corrupt?), xi. 467 a τὸ δὲ σὰν ἀντὶ τοῦ σίγμα Δωρικῶς εἰρήκασιν. οἱ γὰρ μουσικοὶ, καθάπερ πολλάκις Ἀριστόξενός φησι, τὸ σίγμα λέγειν παρηγοῦντο διὰ τὸ σκληρόστομον εἶναι καὶ ἀνεπιτήδειον αὐλῶ· . . . καὶ Πίνδαρος δὲ φησι· πρὶν μὲν ἦρπε σχοινοτενεία τ' αἰοῖδ' καὶ τὸ σὰν κίβδηλον ἀπὸ στομάτων, Dionysius, De comp. verb. 14 εἰσὶ δ' οἱ καὶ ἀσίγμους ὅλας ᾠδὰς ἐποίησαν· δηλοῖ δὲ τοῦτο καὶ Πίνδαρος ἐν οἷς φησι· πρὶν μὲν ἦρπε σχοινοτενὴ φωνήεντα (or other corruptions) διθυράμβων καὶ τὸ σὰν κίβδηλον (v. l. κίβδαλον) ἀνθρώποις (v. l. -ποι). From these varying forms of l. 3 Hermann restored καὶ τὸ σὰν κίβδαλον ἀνθρώποισιν ἀπὸ στομάτων. The termination of the line is wanting in both ll. 3 and 18, but there is no reason to doubt Hermann's restoration; cf. for the metre l. 7.

1. σχοινοτενεία: this is formed on the analogy of ἡδυνέπεια, μουσογένεια, &c., and means 'stretched out like a rope', 'prolix'; cf. Philostr. Heroic. i. 14 μὴ ἀποτείνειν (τὰ ἄσματα) μηδὲ σχοινοτενὴ ἐργάζεσθαι. It does not refer to division into triads, for II itself is divided into triads or strophes; cf. p. 28 and l. 3, n.

2. The division αἰοῖδ' διθυράμβων would be expected from the arrangement of ll. 19-20, but δα (or δη) δ[does not suit the traces of l. 2, and the real dividing-point of the feet is probably after αἰοῖδ' here and ζευ- in l. 20.

3. καὶ τὸ σά[ν κίβδαλον: the meaning of this is a long-standing difficulty. Athenaeus and Dionysius (cf. ll. 1-3, n.) supposed that it referred to the ᾠδαὶ ἀσίγμοι, i. e. of Pindar's predecessor, Lasus, Athenaeus x. 455 c proceeding to quote a line without σ from Lasus' hymn to Demeter. The epitomator of Athenaeus, followed by Eustathius, p. 1335. 52, misunderstanding this, attributed the composition of odes without σ to Pindar himself. Boeckh and Dissen translate κίβδηλον 'pravum', supposing that it refers to the mispronunciation of σ in the Dorian dialect (so also Donaldson and Weir Smyth), and that Pindar meant to contrast the old-fashioned odes in which σ was used with the new kind without σ invented by Lasus, Pindar himself reverting to the old-fashioned type. Sandys (translation of Pindar in the Loeb series), connecting κίβδηλον (sc. ἦν) with ἀνθρώποισιν ἀπὸ στομάτων, translates 'when the sibilant san was discarded from the lips of men', i. e. was rejected as spurious. The mutilated condition of ll. 4-5 leaves the context obscure in some points, especially as to the precise nature of the transition to the account of the Dionysiac festival in Olympus (cf. ll. 4-6, n.); but it is tolerably certain that the new kind of dithyramb which is contrasted with the old is not the dithyramb of Lasus, but of Pindar himself, as is also shown by the definite reference to himself in l. 23. Hence Boeckh's view of Pindar's relation to the two kinds of dithyramb is just the opposite of what the context demands. Sandys's translation gives the right kind of sense, but ἀνθρώποισιν ἀπὸ στομάτων is much more likely to be dependent on ἔρπε than on κίβδαλον, and the position of τ' indicates that ἔρπε, not ἦν, is to be supplied with κίβδαλον. We are disposed, therefore, to regard τὸ σὰν κίβδαλον as a reference to Lasus' ῥῶδαι ἄστυμοι, σάν being used as the equivalent of σίγμα, and κίβδαλον comparing it to base coin which when produced is rejected, and implying a contrast with Pindar's own use of σ, which was unrestricted.

4-6. διαπέ[τ]α[νται δὲ and πύλαι were suggested by Sandys, νῦν by Lobel, κύ[κ]λοισι by Bury. The slight vestiges towards the end of the line suit πυλα[ι] rather well, especially the π and λ (for which α is the only alternative); but the preceding lacuna is rather short for the proposed supplement. The metre of l. 4 is fixed by l. 22. For opening the 'gates' of song cf. Ol. vi. 27 πύλας ὕμνων ἀναπίτναμεν, Nem. ix. 2 ἀναπεπταμένα ξείνων νενίκανται θύραι, Bacchyl. Fr. 5. 2 οὐδὲ γὰρ ῥᾶστον ἀρρήτων ἐπέων πύλας ἐξευρεῖν. κύ[κ]λοισι refers to the κύκλιοι χοροὶ of the dithyramb. To find an anapaest short enough for the lacuna before ἐ[ῖ]δότες in l. 5 is difficult. If πύλα[ι] is right, ἐ[ῖ]δότες must belong to a new sentence and may refer to χοροὶ (e.g. something like σοφοὶ οἱ ἐ[ῖ]δ.).; but Bury would connect it with the preceding line, suggesting διαπεπ[ρ]α[χασί δ' — — — — — κύ[κ]λοισι νέαν [σοφοὶ εὖ ἐ[ῖ]δότες | οἶαν Βρόμιος [ῖ]δ]εαν κτλ., and comparing Nem. ix. 3 ἀλλ' ἐπέων γλυκὺν ὕμνον πρᾶσσετε and Eur. Bacch. 471 τὰ δ' ὄργη' ἐστὶ τίν' ἰδέαν ἔχοντά σοι; νεαν for νεαι, Βρόμιος for Βρομιον, and ἰδ]εαν for τελε]ταν are possible readings; but τελε]τὰν (Sandys) suits ἰστάντι particularly well, and the metaphor of the gates is attractive. For Βρομίον [τελε]τὰν cf. Py. ix. 97 νικάσαντά σε καὶ τελευταῖς ὥρῃαις ἐν Παλλάδος εἶδον. Βρομῖαι is inadmissible. The metre of l. 5 is somewhat abnormal. After a choriambus is an anapaest and a cretic, or else an ionic a minore and iambus. For anapaests in dactylo-epitritics cf. e.g. Py. i. 2, 6, iii. 4; for 'iambic catalexis' cf. Ol. vi. 5, Nem. viii. 14.

7. The last syllable of Οὐρανίδαί was marked long by the first hand, short by the corrector, who wished to indicate (rightly) that the word was nom. plur., not dat. sing.; cf. I. 8 ἐρατᾶι. The syllable is long as a matter of fact, but there was no point in marking it long at the end of a line, unless indeed the first hand wished to connect it with ἐν in l. 8 and scanned -ρανῖδᾱι ἐν together in spite of the hiatus. But, as Housman remarks, the metre of l. 8 corresponds to e.g. Py. iv. 296 δαιδαλέαν φόρμιγγα βαστάζων πολίταις, and in each case the phrase — — — — — comes both before and after, so that αῖ is to be regarded as merely a slip.

8. The last syllable of the line seems to stand by itself (cf. the preceding n.), as frequently in Bacchylides' dactylo-epitritics. In Pindar's there seem to be instances of hypercatalexis in Frs. 29-30 (from an ὕμνος).

ἰ[σ(τ)ά]ντι: there is not room for στα in the lacuna and the marginal ἰστάντι indicates that the main text was in some respect different. If there had been a wrong accent over ἰ[σ] it ought to have been visible, and there is no doubt that the first hand read ἰσάντι, a Doric form not found in Pindar but quite suitable in itself. ἰσάντι would make sense (cf. ἐ[ῖ]δότες in l. 5), but ἰστάντι is preferable.

8-11. σεμνᾶ . . . πεύκαις: this passage (Fr. 79^b; cf. ll. 1-3, n.) is quoted by Strabo with several corruptions or variations, σοί for σεμνᾶ, μήτερ παρά for ματερὶ πᾶρ, ῥοίμβοι κυμβάλων for ῥόμβοι τυμπάνων, and κεχλάδων for κέχλαδ[ον] (or -δ[εν]). Misled by σοί, modern editors were unable to restore the passage on the right lines. The confirmation of the schema Pindaricum κατάρχει . . . ῥόμβοι against emendations is interesting. Another instance occurs in l. 13 μανίαι τ' ἀλαλ[αί] τ' ὀρίνεται, which had been obscured in the quotations of this by Plutarch. Two more occur in ll. 18-19 of the fragmentary dithyramb for the Athenians (Fr. 75); in the epinician odes this construction is rare. κυμβάλων may have stood in Strabo's text of II, but τυμπάνων is likely to be right; cf. Catullus, Alys 9 lyranum, tubam, Cybelle, tua, mater, initia, which may even have been an imitation of this passage. Bergk referred to this dithyramb Fr. 80, a quotation from Pindar in a Herculeum fragment of Philodemus, De pietate, which is restored Κυβέ[λα] μᾶτ[ερ] θεῶν. The metre may well be dactylo-epitritic, but there is no place for Fr. 80 in the context of the reference to Cybele in ll. 8-9. Owing to the lacuna at the end of l. 27 the correction of τύμπανων to τύπανων is not absolutely certain, for γᾶ[ρύει (Bury) can there be supplied instead of γᾶ[μετάν (Housman); but, as Housman observes, l. 9 seems to be unrhythmical as it stands, since $\cup \cup - -$ in this metre is not elsewhere followed by $- - \cup -$, unless there is a break between them, as at Ol. vi. 4-5 and Bacchyl. viii. 9-10, and scribes have often written τύμπανον where authors did not; e.g. Hom. Hymn. xiv. 3, Eur. Hel. 1347, Aesch. Fr. 57. 10, Apoll. Rhod. i. 1139, Anth. Pal. vi. 165. 5, and in the Catullus passage cited above the MSS. give tympānum against the metre. With τυπάνων l. 9 will have the rhythm of Ol. vi. 2 κίονας ὡς ὅτε θαητὸν μέγαρον. The point of ξαν[θα]ῖσι as applied to πεύκαις is not clear: Dissen explains it by the colour of the fire. With ll. 10-12 cf. Soph. Antig. 1126-9 σὲ δ' ὑπὲρ διλόφου πέτρας στέροψ ὅπωπε λιγνύς, ἔνθα Κωρύκται στείχουσι Νύμφαι Βακχίδες.

12. ἐν δὲ Ναῖδων: $- \cup - \cup$ corresponds to $- \cup - -$ (apparently) in l. 30; cf. l. 19, n., and e.g. Ol. iii, epode 1, 4, 5.

13-14. These lines are thrice quoted by Plutarch, (1) Quaest. conv. i. 5. 2, (2) vii. 5. 4, (3) De def. orac. 14, copied by Euseb. Praep. evang. v. 4, p. 185, and Theodoret, Graec. aff. cur., ed. Gaisford, p. 374. In (2) μανίαις τ' ἀλαλαῖς τ' ὀρινόμενοι occurs, the quotation being accommodated to Plutarch's sentence; (1) and (3) have ὀρινομένων for ὀρίνεται; (1) has ἐριαύχειν, (2) and (3) ῥιψαύχειν for ὑψαύχειν. Both ὀρινομένων (which would correspond to Ναῖδων in l. 12) and ῥιψαύχειν seem to be ancient variants (Theodoret, op. cit., p. 375 coins a verb ῥιψαυχεῖν from the quotation), and ῥιψαύχειν, which occurs nowhere else, is, as Housman remarks, more appropriate than ὑψαύχειν to both κλόνω and Ναῖδων: cf. Catull. Alys 23 ubi capita Maenades vi iaciunt hederigeras, Cic. II Verr. iii. 49 cerviculam iactaturum, Eur. Bacch. 864 δέραν εἰς αἰθέρα δροσερὸν ῥίπτουσα. The metre, as he observes, does not help much in deciding between ῥιψαύχειν and ὑψαύχειν, for though with ῥιψαύχειν the scheme of l. 13 $\cup \cup - \cup \cup - \cup - \cup - - \cup \cup$ corresponds to the last verse of the epodes in Py. iii, e.g. l. 23, $- \cup \cup -$ can generally take the place of $- \cup -$, and is preceded by $\cup \cup -$ and followed by $- \cup -$ in e.g. Nem. xi. 14. ῥιψ-(or ὑψ)-αύχειν is apparently the end of a member of the rhythm with syllaba anceps, and a member of the rhythm also comes to an end after σὺν κλόνω, as the hiatus there proves, so that these two words have to constitute a whole member; cf. ἰλάσκομαι in Ol. vii. 9 and αἰῶνος in Py. v. 7. The alternative is to write ἔνν κλόνω, but there seem to be only two examples of ἔνν in Pindar's MSS., and not one is established by metre, though cf. 1614. 9.

ἀλαλ[αῖ]: the first hand seems to have written ἀλαλ[α]λα originally. The final λα was then crossed out and ι no doubt added above [α], but whether the scribe himself or a corrector made the alteration is uncertain. Several of the MSS. of Plutarch have ἀλλαι for ἀλαλαῖ, but the third letter here is more like a than λ, and the loop of it, though narrow, does not seem to be a correction.

15-16. κεραυνὸς ἀμνέων πῦρ: cf. Fr. 146 πῦρ πνέοντος ᾧ τε (Pallas) κεραυνοῦ ἄγχιστα δεξιὰν κατὰ χεῖρα πατρὸς (ἡμένη). In l. 15 $- \cup - \cup$ occurs twice, very likely as equivalent to $- \cup - -$ in the antistrophe (lost); cf. ll. 12 and 19, nn.

17. ἀλκάεσσα: in Ol. ix. 72 and Py. v. 71 ἀλκάεντας is found, but the metre here requires αε to be separate syllables. The scholium perhaps indicates a variant, but may be no more than αἰγίς accented; cf. l. 19, n.

18. This verse is a Στησιχόρειον. ῥῥ[εων] is a gloss on δρακόντων.

19. ῥίμφα δ' εἶσιν: $- \cup \cup -$ here corresponds to $- \cup - -$ in l. 1; cf. ll. 12, 15-16, nn. οἰόπολος: this word, which seems to have been wrongly spelled but rightly accented by the first hand, was wrongly accented by the corrector; cf. l. 17 and l. 17, nn. οἰόπολος δαίμων (unnamed) occurs in Py. iv. 28.

20. The syllable ἔνν really belongs to l. 19; cf. l. 2, n.

21. The misspelling βακχίαις is not corrected. ἀγροτέρων was suggested by Sandys and Bury; cf. Nem. iii. 46 λεόντεσσιν ἀγοτέροις. Βρομίω (Bury) is required to explain ὁ δέ in l. 22. The metre is practically certain; cf. ll. 1-3, n.

22-3. κα[ι] θη[ρῶν]: so Housman and Bury. The a of κα[ι] is nearly certain, the only alternative being o. The sentence is suggested by the mention of lions in the line above. Bacchus is flattered not only by the attentions of his fellow-gods, but also by the worship of brute creatures. ἀγέλαι λεόντων occurs in Pind. Fr. 239.

25-6. Cf. Fr. 151 Μοῖσ' ἀνέγκέ με. κα[λ]λ[ι]χόρῳ and δ[ι]λβον τε were suggested by Bury; Sandys proposes κα[ι] γ[ε]νέαν with ο[ἰ]κόν τε, but the traces of a letter after κα[.] suggest a, δ, λ, or ν. For the late position of τε cf. Nem. ix. 34 παρὰ πεζοβόαις ἵπποις τε. That Θήβαις occurred at the end of l. 26 is clear from what follows (cf. Fr. 195 εὐάρματε Θήβα), but a restoration in which εὐχόμενον meant 'boasting myself' rather than 'praying for' would be more appropriate. ἄγαλμα is, however, inadmissible in l. 26, the o before the lacuna being almost certain. For the metre of that line cf. l. 7, n.

27. The first hand wrote ποτ αρμονιαν. φ[ι]άμα γα[μετάν] is due to Housman, who corrects τυμπάνων in l. 9 to τυπάνων: Bury, retaining τυμπάνων there, proposed φ[ι]άμα γα[ρ]νύει: cf. ll. 8-11, n. The first hand wrote φ[ι]άμεν γα[λ]: the first corrector then added a above the line, deleting ε and perhaps ν also; cf. III. 9, n. As Housman remarks, a verb does not seem necessary with φάμα (sc. ἔστι): cf. Aesch. Septem 217-18 ἀλλ' οὐν θεοὺς τοὺς τῆς ἀλώσεως πόλεος ἐκλείπειν λόγος, and φάτις in Pindar himself (according to the usually accepted emendation of Bothe) in Is. viii. 40 Αἰακίδα, ὅν τ' εὐσεβέστατον φάτις Ἰαοικῷ τράφειν πεδίον, and ubi fama in Stat. Theb. i. 699.

28. ὑψ[ι]σταί[ς] could be read in place of ὑψη[λ]αί[ς]. There is little doubt about the s, τ being the only alternative. λαχεῖν κεδ-] (or ἀγ-)]νάν is due to Bury. Nonnus, Dionys. iv. 28 sqq., represents Harmonia as at first reluctant to marry Cadmus. Housman prefers ἄγειν σεμ[ι]νάν, comparing Nem. v. 47 σεμνὰν θέτιν Πηλέα θ', Aesch. Prom. 560 ἄγαγες Ἡσιόναν . . . δάμαρτα, and, for the present infinitive with ποτέ in a past sense, Py. vi. 21-4 τάν ποτ' . . . φαντὶ . . . παραινέειν. σεμνός has however occurred in l. 8. For πραπίδες in connexion with a suitor he compares Is. viii. 30 ἀλλ' οὐ σφιν ἄμβροτοι τέλεσαν εὐνὰν θεῶν πραπίδες.

30. εὐδοξο[ν]: if ξ is right, the parts of it were joined instead of being written, as elsewhere in 1604, as a dot between two strokes. The second o is also doubtful, a being quite as suitable. But the position of the accent over ευ strongly favours εὐδοξο[ν], for εὐδοκί[μον] and -κη[τον] are inadmissible, and though a crossed out τ might be read in place of ξ, εὐδοτε[ιραν] is not a known word and εὐδο[τ]κ[ι]μον is unsatisfactory apart from the wrong accent. At the beginning of the line — — — corresponds to — — — in l. 12; cf. l. 19, n. παρ'] ἀνθρώπο[ις] γενεάν is due to Bury. Σεμέλαν may be substituted for γενεάν, she being in any case the person chiefly meant, as is shown by the reference to her in l. 32.

31. Διονυσ[ι] must be vocative, for any other case would fill up the lacuna, leaving no room for the letter preceding θ, which apparently had an acute accent and was therefore a vowel. Probably Διονυσ[ε] was written and the ε not elided; cf. τε ορίνεται in l. 13. If the two letters in the lacuna formed a diphthong, the accent ought to have been more to the left.

32. ματέ[ρος]: i. e. Semele; cf. l. 30, n. o could be read in place of ε.

III. 1. The doubtful λ can be ν.

3. στάσις elsewhere in Pindar means 'sedition', but here may, as Bury remarks, refer to the chorus either in the sense of κατάστασις (χορῶν) or of a division; cf. l. 5, n.

5. Bury proposes κατέ[ναντί]ον.

6. τεδν must refer to Dionysus, if τε[λετ]άν is right; cf. int. p. 29.

7-8. Bury suggests βαλὼν δέ] πλόκον σ[τεφά]νων κισσίνων | ἀμφὶ τεδὸν κρόταφον, making μελίξοι the end of a clause and connecting ll. 7-8 with ἔλθε in l. 9. A stop may, however, have been lost after κρόταφον. The scholium probably refers to the unusual expression πλόκον στεφάνων. For πλέκων, sc. στεφάνων, cf. Eur. Hippol. 73 πλεκτὸν στέφανον. ῥ[μ]ον (cf. Nem. iv. 17) does not suit the vestiges.

9. Apparently φιλιδη was altered first to φιλωσ δη and then, the correction being crossed out, to φιλαν δη. The ι after φιλ is not crossed out; but the αν above the line begins close to the λ and φιλαν δη (which makes the line end with two choriambi) is metrically preferable to φιλιαν δη or simply φίλιαν. Moreover it is not certain that the ο of φθον was crossed out like the φ and ν when ελθε was substituted, and in Il. 27 there is a similar doubt concerning the deletion of a superfluous letter.

πολεῦ is corrected from πολεω. The mark of quantity is not quite certain, but α alone does not account for all the ink. πόλιν is clearly meant, but no form πολέα is known, though, since πόληα occurs in Hesiod, it does not seem impossible.

10. Bury proposes πελώρ]ιον . . . πρύτανιν, and would see in this line a reference to the Acrocorinthus; but πρυτανι . . . [may be vocative, as in Py. ii. 58.

11.]αμα: the first letter might be λ and the second ν; the third is more like α with a high stop after it than [.]ς. Bury suggests something like ἔποιτο δ'] ἄμα, but the stop is an objection to ἄμα.

12. ἀκναμπτεῖ, 'inflexibly', is a new adverb. ἄκαμπτος occurs in Is. iii. 71 and ἄκαμπτος in the MSS. of Py. iv. 72 (ἄκαμπτος Hermann).

13. τὰς ἐπιδορατίδας is a gloss on χάρμας, which was used in the sense of 'spear-shafts' also by Stesichorus and Ibycus according to Schol. Pind. Ol. ix. 128.

14-15. Bury suggests ἄλιος δ' ἀπ[είρα]ντος αὐχὴν ῥύοιτο πα[νάγυριν | ἔρκος τ' ἐγχαορί]αν πέλοι, 'Let the impassable sea-neck protect the festal gathering and be the bulwark of the people,' comparing Ol. viii. 48 ἐπ' Ἴσθμῷ ποντία and Eur. Med. 212 πόντον κληδ' ἀπέραντον. αὐχὴν would on this view mean the Isthmus of Corinth. The general sense of ll. 12-15 is, he thinks, 'Put aside arms and preparations for war, and trust for defence to the Isthmus.' αὐχὴν elsewhere in Pindar means the human neck, but that does not combine easily with ῥύοιτο.

17. Perhaps πολυγαθ]έες. αοιδαι can, however, be dative.

18. Bury suggests Σισύφ]οιο or Γλαυκ]οίο φύλον, referring to the Corinthians.

19. For πετάλοισ ἡρ[υνοῖς (Bury) cf. Py. ix. 46 ὅσσα τε χθὼν ἡρινὰ φύλλ' ἀναπέμπει. The first letter of the line might be ρ.

22. Bury suggests στόμιον ἵπ[πειον (or ἵπ[πον), referring either to the legend of Bellerophon and the bridle (φίλτρον ἵππειον) of Pegasus, a story told by Pindar in an ode written for the Corinthian Xenophon (Ol. xiii), or perhaps to a particular kind of mouthpiece, i. e. one of the ἵππεια ἔντεα said to have been invented by the Corinthians (Ol. xiii. 20).

1605. MENANDER, ΜΙΣΟΥΜΕΝΟΣ.

15 × 5.2 cm.

Third century.

This exiguous fragment of a comedy, though containing only the beginnings of 27 lines from the top of a column and a few letters from the ends of lines of the preceding column, has some interest, since it can with much probability be identified. The name of a speaker, Γέ(τας), is inserted in the margin against ll. 34-5, and characters of that name are known to have occurred in three of Menander's plays, the Ἡρώς, Μισούμενος, and Περὶνθία (if Koerte is right in assigning 855 to the last-named play), while the apparent mention in l. 25 (cf. l. 29, n.) of Θρασωνίδης, the name of the leading character in the Μισούμενος, indicates the second of the three. Parts of about 50 lines near the end of that play are extant in 1013, and there are 14 other fragments of it known, but no correspondence with 1005 is at all likely, though one or two are just possible; cf. ll. 24-5, nn. Geta was the slave of Thrasonides, but who his interlocutor here was is quite obscure. Other known characters in the play are Clinias, Demeas, and Cratea. For the plot, which turned upon the redemption of Cratea through her father Demeas from servitude with Thrasonides, a rough soldier, see 1013. int. and Koerte, Menandrea, li.

The handwriting is a medium-sized sloping uncial resembling 1376 (Part xi, Plate iii), and probably of the third century, to which some dated documents found together with 1005 belong. The speaker's name is written more cursively by a different hand, which does not seem to be appreciably later than that of the main text. Paragraphi occur, indicating changes of speaker, but no stops.

Another papyrus (3rd cent.) containing 23 lines divided between two scenes, which has recently been published by Wilamowitz (Sitzungsb. d. Berl. Akad. 1918, 747-9) as part of an uncertain comedy, perhaps by Menander, is probably to be assigned to the Μισούμενος. In the second scene a woman called Cratea unexpectedly recognizes her father, whereupon the owner of the house intervenes, and in the margin of l. 18 Γε() occurs as the name of a speaker. Wilamowitz, though noticing the agreement with the Μισούμενος with regard to Cratea, attributes the fragment to a different play, chiefly because Γε() is supposed also to occur in the margin of l. 12 in reference to a character who is addressed in the next line as τηθία. From this he infers that Γε() is an unknown feminine name. But it is much more likely that Γε() in l. 18 is Γε(τας), and that in l. 12, where the decipherment is admitted to be very uncertain, either the marginal note is to be read differently or some rearrangement of the supposed speakers is to be introduced. Geta and Cratea will then be the characters in the Μισούμενος, the father will be Demeas, and the owner of the house Thrasonides, the action being highly appropriate to that play. This explanation is confirmed by the striking parallelism between Fr. 11 of the Μισούμενος, ἀφανείς γεγόνασιν αἱ σπάθαι and l. 11 of the Berlin papyrus,]ρ οἰκῶ τὰς σπάθας τῶν γειτόνων.

24. ουκετι is apparently the first word in the last line of a small detached fragment of 1013 (l. 26). But an actual coincidence is unlikely.

25. Θρασωνιδ : this might possibly coincide with the corrupt Fr. 14 (Koerte) of the Μισούμενος, which is generally restored μισούσι μὲν | Θρασων(ιδην), ὦ πάτερ, ἀπεκτάγκασι δ' οὐ.

29. ζηλοτυπ[ο : cf. Περικειρομένη 408-9 ὁ δ' ἀλάστορ ἐγὼ | καὶ ζηλότυπος ἄνθρωπος, spoken by Polemon, the counterpart of Thrasonides in that play.

34. Perhaps αναγε[σ] [αυτον, as in Σαμία 145. The γ is however very doubtful and αναισ[.] . [can be read. It is not clear whether Γε(τας) refers to l. 34 or to l. 35. The surface of the papyrus between ll. 33-4 is rubbed, but there is no trace of a paragraphus, so that if Γε(τας) refers to l. 34 there was probably a change of speaker in the middle of that line.

1606. LYSIAS, Orations πρὸς Ἱπποθέρσην, Against Theomnestus, &c.

Height 29.5 cm. Late second or early third century.
Plate II (Fr. 6, Cols. i-ii).

Lysias has hitherto been represented in papyri only by some small third-century B. C. pieces of the oration against Theozotides (P. Hibeh 14); but the following fragments of several of his lost private speeches are more extensive and valuable. Like 1607-8 and 1612, they form part of the first of the three large finds of literary papyri in 1905-6, which also produced 841-4, 852-3, 1012, 1016-17, 1364, and 1376, the publication of this find being now completed. The small group consisting of Frs. 8-18 was found separately in a different part of the same mound, but no doubt belongs to the same roll. Originally about 200 in number, the fragments have been reduced by combinations to 150. Much the longest of them is Fr. 6, which contains (1) the last three columns of a speech, with the title (ll. 237-8) πρὸς Ἱπποθέρσην ὑπὲρ θεραπαίνης followed by a blank space, (2) the first two columns of a speech directed against a certain Theomnestus by an unnamed plaintiff. πρὸς Ἱπποθέρσην is known as the title of a speech by Lysias (no. lxi) from Harpocration, who makes two quotations from it, Fr. 122 (Sauppe) ἀφανὴς οὐσία καὶ φανερά and Fr. 123 Ἱερώνυμος. Fr. 122 seems to be connected with Fr. 2 of the papyrus, where οὐσ[αν] . . . ἀφ[ανίσ]αι is a probable restoration in ll. 29-32, and φαν]ερά is possible in l. 48; but Ἱερώνυμος does not seem to occur in 1606, though it is tempting to restore his name in l. 89. The title of the second speech would at first sight be expected to be κατὰ Θεομνήστου: but two orations of Lysias with that title are extant (x and xi), xi being merely an abbreviation of x. Since both of these are quite distinct from the speech against Theomnestus in the papyrus and presumably refer to a different person, while Harpocration seems to have known of only one speech κατὰ Θεομνήστου, i. e. the extant oration x (Blass, Attische Beredsamkeit, i. 611), the title of the second speech in 1606 is likely to have been something else. Fr. 9, belonging to the smaller group, contains parts of the last 16 lines of what is obviously a third speech, with part of the title, which seems to be unknown, and a few letters from the beginning of what is much more likely to be a fourth speech than the oration πρὸς Ἱπποθέρσην, and among the numerous minute scraps from the main find are certainly three (Frs. 19, 20, and 22), and perhaps two more (Frs. 21 and 44), which contain parts of titles. The minimum number of speeches represented by the fragments as a whole is four, a figure which could be obtained by assigning Fr. 9. ii to the speech πρὸς Ἱπποθέρσην, Fr. 19 (κατὰ Θεομνήστου?) or Fr. 22 to the speech against Theomnestus, and Fr. 20 to the title of the third speech, and ignoring Frs. 21 and 44. But at least six of the lost orations are much more probably represented, and though all of these may have been quite short, it is clear that the fragments are widely scattered over different parts of the roll. Lysias is credited by Plutarch (Vita Lys. 836 a) with no fewer than 425 speeches, of which Dionysius and Caecilius recognized 233 as genuine. The names of about 170 are known, and 34 are extant.

The script is a handsome uncial approximating towards the early biblical type, like 1234 (Part X, Plate iv) and 1365 (Part XI, Plate vi), and probably belongs to the early part of the third century or even the end of the second. Iota adscript was generally written. Paragraphi and two kinds of stops, in the high and middle position, are employed; that Fr. 82, in which a coronis occurs, belongs to 1606 is not certain. Fr. 6, in which the upper and lower margins are preserved, shows that there were 46-49 lines in a column. The other fragments are or may be from the middles of columns except when it is otherwise stated. The lines, which tend to begin and end more to the left as the column proceeds, range from 15 to 22 letters, generally having 18 or 19, and the >-shaped sign is used for filling up short lines. Deletions are indicated by a line drawn (by the first hand) above the letters in question; but the text has not apparently been subjected to any independent revision, and several mistakes are noticeable, generally omissions; cf. ll. 47, 115, 139, 141, 173, 217, 349-56, 536.

Of the oration πρὸς Ἰπποθέρσην the three concluding columns (ll. 126-238), though requiring a good deal of restoration, are fairly well preserved, and some intelligible passages are provided by four other fragments (1-2 and 4-5) evidently belonging to earlier columns of the same speech (ll. 7-19, 28-47, 76-86, 114-24). The respective order of these is doubtful, but Fr. 4 may be placed below Fr. 2 with an interval not exceeding 2 or 3 lines between ll. 48 and 76; cf. ll. 38-44, n. Frs. 3 and 26 also probably belong to this oration, and perhaps Frs. 28-30, 87, and 100-1. It must have been one of Lysias' more important speeches, being concerned, like the oration against Eratosthenes (xii), with the administration of the Thirty Tyrants and his own grievances. In xii Lysias prosecuted Eratosthenes, who was one of the Thirty, for the murder of his brother Polemarchus (cf. 1606. 8-9, 161); the present action mainly turned on the question of the restoration of Lysias' property on his return from exile. As the title implies, the speech was on the side of the defence; but that the real defendant was not the θεράπεινα but Lysias himself, is clear not only from the general tenour of the fragments, in which Lysias is very prominent, but from the expression φεύγει τὴν δίκην applied to him in ll. 183-4, and the closing appeal in l. 221 ἀποψηφίσασθαι Λυσίου. How the θεράπεινα became involved in the case does not appear, but presumably she was acting merely as Lysias' agent. With the plaintiff Hippotherses were associated one or more other individuals, the plural being employed in reference to the side of the prosecution, which is called οἱ ἄντιδικοὶ in ll. 32 and 229 and perhaps οἱ ἀντιδικοὶ in l. 133. Nicostratus and Xeno[cles] (ll. 17-18) may well be two of the persons meant, and possibly Sosia[des] (ll. 92-3, n.). The dispute was concerned with the ownership of property (οὐσία) worth 70 (?) talents, formerly belonging to Lysias, which had been seized by the Thirty and apparently sold by them to Hippotherses and his associates (ll. 28-34), and which Lysias was now trying to recover. By the terms of the amnesty arranged at the time of the restoration of the democracy in B.C. 403, sales made during the administration of the Thirty remained valid; but unsold property reverted to its original owners, an exception being made in the case of land and houses, i.e. immovable property, which were to be returned in any case (ll. 38-48). This reference to the amnesty is important, confirming Grote's views (Hist. of Greece, viii, ch. 66) on the nature of the agreement; but the precise application of it to the dispute between Hippotherses and Lysias is obscured by the incompleteness of Frs. 1-5. Lysias evidently regarded the terms of the amnesty as in favour of his contentions, but Hippotherses too may have appealed to it, and perhaps the interpretation was one of the chief points of dispute. In ll. 13-17 Lysias complains that he was being prevented by the prosecution from buying back his own property from the purchasers; but in ll. 76 sqq. he is found objecting to a claim of Hippotherses for half the price of, apparently, the οὐσία described in ll. 28-34, and in ll. 114 sqq. he criticizes the legality of the sales effected by the Thirty. This evidence is not very easy to combine into a connected argument; but apparently the οὐσία bought from the Thirty by Hippotherses contained land and houses, and Hippotherses refused to surrender these without compensation, whereupon Lysias, through the θεράπαινα, took some step towards ejecting Hippotherses which resulted in the prosecution, possibly in some form of δίκη ἐξούλης. The peroration, to which ll. 127-236 belong, does not throw much light on the facts of the case, which are referred to only in general terms (ll. 224-36), but in itself is of much interest, since it contains an eloquent comparison of Lysias' behaviour towards the State with that of his opponent. The patriotism of Lysias, who after losing his brother and much property made large sacrifices in support of the democrats, is recorded in a passage which was evidently before Plutarch when writing his account of this part of Lysias' life (ll. 163-71, n.), and is contrasted with the pro-Spartan zeal of Hippotherses. The speech must have been delivered very soon after the restoration of the democracy, i.e. in 403 or 402 B.C.

The second oration, that directed in prosecution of Theomnestus, after a very short introduction (ll. 239-46), proceeds to the narration of the facts. The unnamed plaintiff claims to have lent his friend Theomnestus 30 minae in order to pay a debt to a certain Theozotides for which judgement had been entered against Theomnestus. The transaction took place without witnesses, and Theomnestus, having subsequently quarrelled with the plaintiff, now denied the loan (ll. 246-61). After a mutilated passage apparently explaining the nature of the quarrel, which seems to have been connected with the guardianship of some property, and the unsuccessful attempts of the plaintiff to get his money returned (ll. 261-95), a dilemma is propounded for the defence. Theomnestus must maintain either that he borrowed the money from some one else, or that he did not borrow any money at all, in order to pay Theozotides (ll. 295-301). Of these alternative lines of defence the first is rebutted in ll. 301-40, Fr. 7 probably belonging to the column following Fr. 6. v, while the second is dealt with in ll. 340-66 by putting a number of questions designed to show that Theomnestus would not have run the risks which he actually incurred, if he had had the requisite money at hand. The rest of the speech is lost, and there are no indications of the date of its delivery.

The third speech (Frs. 8, 9. i and probably some of Frs. 10-18), apparently against a person whose name ended in -ylius, seems to have been concerned with the sale of a ship at Carthage, and a question of partnership; but there is nothing to show what was the subject of the fourth speech (Fr. 9. ii and probably some of Frs. 10-18). With regard to the remaining fragments the more or less probable position of Frs. 13, 16, 28, 45, 53, 73, 80, and 128 has been ascertained. Fr. 25 apparently comes from a fifth speech about an inheritance (κληρος), and Frs. 31 and 39, which probably belong to the same oration, may be connected with a reference in Harpocration to βεβαιώσεως δίκη in two unnamed speeches of Lysias (cf. l. 493, n.), while probably one of Frs. 19-22 belongs to the title of it. Fr. 64 might come from the speech πρὸς Ἀλκιβιάδην or that πρὸς Ἀρχεβιάδην.

We are indebted to Mr. E. Lobel and Dr. C. Hude for several good suggestions in the restoration of this papyrus.

‘. . . we leave it to you, after hearing the actions of Lysias and Hippothereses, to give whichever verdict on the matter you choose with regard to the question which of the two is the better citizen. And I beg you to listen, in order that both Lysias, having been judged by you to have done his duty, may be still more zealous in the future, and Hippothereses hearing the truth about himself may behave better. . . . For while you were prosperous Lysias was the richest of the metoeci; but when disaster came he stayed on; for he did not in the least fail to share in your misfortunes, being illegally deprived by the Thirty of both his brother and much money. When he left Athens in flight, he sent 300 mercenaries to help in the restoration and provided both 2,000 drachmae in money and 200 shields . . . (and going to) Thrasylaeus the Elean, who was his guest-friend, he persuaded him to provide two talents in taxes, though in return for this he has never obtained any recompense or favour from you. Such was his behaviour in exile, while since his return he has never given offence to a single Athenian either by recalling the benefits conferred by himself or by making reproaches for the sins of others. But now it is necessary to speak about him, since his accuser is a man of this character: in the time of the Four Hundred he took to flight, and making Decelea his headquarters fought with the enemy against his country; and it was the foes of the city who restored him and made him your fellow-citizen. Hence it is, I think, plain to all that he is now less pleased with the walls which were built than with the walls which were then destroyed, and bases quite dissimilar hopes upon your good fortunes and your disasters, and then being a full citizen, and never having repented or improved through age, he slanders the democracy after what he has done against you . . . (it is just) that Lysias should receive the thanks of the people for having conferred the greatest benefit upon them. I entreat you therefore, gentlemen of the jury, to acquit Lysias, remembering both this and the other arguments which I have used. Otherwise who in the world will be more unfortunate than Lysias, if his opponents are to take part of his property by force and part of it is to be given to them by you, or who will be happier than they, if you intend not only to pardon them for their past misdeeds but also now, whatever proposals they may make to you, to vote for all their demands? Against Hippothereses on behalf of a maidservant.’

‘. . . As he was my associate, I gave Theomnestus 30 minae, when he was obliged to pay a penalty to Theozotides before sunset or else become liable for default. Having given him the money naturally without witnesses and being defrauded of it, I am compelled to go to law. Theomnestus previously was my friend and associate, but now at the persuasion of my enemies this is how he acts, and he would have dared to do anything else against me. Before this quarrel between us arose, I neither troubled him nor demanded back the money . . . (l. 295) He must, if he has not had the money from me, make one of two pleas, either that he has received it from some one else, or that he himself paid Theozotides in full. If on the one hand he is going to assert that he received it from some one else, . . . (l. 315) . . . he hesitated to ask from me who was aware of his straits (?), but thought fit to borrow from persons who were going to inform his enemies. Is it, however, probable that my money should be lent out (?) to others, and that he should borrow from others than myself? To show that he did not think fit . . . to borrow from some one else, I will produce an important piece of evidence. When he was providing a men’s chorus at the Dionysiac festival, . . . (l. 338) With regard then to the assertion that he received the money from some one else, that is my answer. But if (he paid from) the money which he had by him, you must put these questions to Theomnestus. Is it likely that he would have overlooked the extreme danger which he incurred and put so much power into his enemies’ hands? Who ever had such excessive trust in fortune, even if suddenly he became possessed, that he was obliged to endanger his body and life as well, having come to this pass if the sun set leaving him a defaulter? Who is so senseless as to place himself at the mercy of his enemies, or who is so foolish as to . . .’

3. συκ]οφαν[τ]: cf. xii. 5 ἐπειδὴ δ' οἱ τριάκοντα πονηροὶ μὲν καὶ συκοφάνται ὄντες εἰς τὴν ἀρχὴν κατέστησαν, to which ll. 2-4 were probably similar.

5. οὗτος means Lysias, as apparently throughout the fragments of this speech; cf. ll. 43, 81, 144, 225. His opponents are spoken of as οὔτοι in ll. 32 and 229, while τούτων in l. 140 refers to both Lysias and Hippotherses. The letter following οὗτος can be γ, ι, or π.

8. [Πολεμαρχον is rather long for the lacuna, but seems necessary; cf. the next n. and xii. 17 sqq.

9-10. την [ουσια]ν ἀφειλοντο: cf. ll. 29, 162, and Plut. Vit. Lys. 835e τῶν τριάκοντα παραλαβόντων τὴν πόλιν ἐξέπεσεν . . . ἀφαιρεθεῖς τὴν οὐσίαν καὶ τὸν ἀδελφὸν Πολεμαρχον. [οικία]ν could be read both here and in l. 29 (cf. l. 44), but is unsuitable; for Lysias with his brother owned three houses (xii. 18), and the price mentioned in l. 30, which must be not less than 30 and seems to be 70 talents, is too high for a single house; cf. xix. 29, where a house costs 50 minae, and xix. 42, where a house and land cost 5 talents. A list of Lysias’ losses, given in xii. 19, includes 700 shields, 120 slaves, money, clothes, and furniture.

11. εν Πειραιει: according to xii. 17 Lysias went to Megara from Athens, and Plut. op. cit. 835f states διῆγεν ἐν Μεγάροις. The Piræus is mentioned here as being the headquarters of the exiles after its capture by Thrasybulus. One of the houses of Lysias and his brother was there; cf. Plato, Rep. 327a.

11-12. ἡξίουν: cf. l. 78.

12-13. ἀποφθερῖσθαι: or ἀνακομιζέσθαι; cf. κ[ομιζεσ]θαι in l. 16. αγ[.] or αι[.] could also be read, and the verb may be intransitive; but possibly τα εαυτον, which in l. 16 has a line above it, was added in the margin of ll. 12-13.

16-17. κ[ομιζεσ]θαι: cf. l. 43 and 12-13, n. The omission of τα εαυτον here is no improvement, unless the words had been inserted in the margin of ll. 12-13.

17-18. Neither Nicostratus nor Xenoc[les] is known from other sources.

20. ασπιδ: Lysias had a shield-manufacturing business; cf. xii. 19 and Plut. op. cit. 835f, quoted in ll. 163-71, n.

29. ουσιαν: cf. ll. 9-10, n. ουσιαν . . . σ[υλ]ληφ[θεισαν αξ]ιαν | δε is possible.

30. εβδ[ομηκο]ντα: the first letter might be σ or ω, and the traces of the second and third are very doubtful, but unless there was another word before the number, εβδ[ομηκο]ντα is preferable to e.g. εξ[και τριακο]ντα.

31. [απεδο]ντο is far from certain, especially since ι or ω can be read in place of ν, so that the subject might be singular. If [απεδο]ντο is right, the subject seems to be the Thirty Tyrants as contrasted with οντοι in l. 32, which refers to Hippotherses and his associates.

32. αφ[ανισ]αι: i.e. ἐξαργυρίσαι: cf. the contrast between ἀφανής and φανερὰ οὐσία in the fragment of this speech quoted on p. 48.

35-6. Cf. l. 163.

38-44. For οὗτος meaning Lysias cf. l. 5, n. The context does not suit the reference of οὗτος to Hippotherses, though there may be only a short gap between ll. 48 and 76; cf. int. p. 49.

47. This line seems to be corrupt, though α[.] (but not α[ντ] or any other letter than α[.]) can be read in place of ε[.]. A dittography of αν δε is the simplest hypothesis, but there may well be an omission of μη before αποδω[σ]ι, and possibly [ω]ν δε αν [μη] αποδω[σ]ι should be read.

48. The letter before ρα can be s, but φαν[ε]ρα is possible; cf. int. p. 48.

83. [ε]υρηκotos suits the space better than [η]υρηκotos: in l. 153 the spelling of ηυδα]μονειτε is uncertain.

86. [χαλε]πως φεροντος: cf. xix. 50.

89. υλον: ον του is less suitable, and Ιερων]υμου (cf. Lys. Fr. 123 quoted on p. 48) is inadmissible.

92-3. Σωσιαδην?: Σωσια (genitive) or Σωσια]νακτα is possible; but cf. Fr. 64, where αναισχυν]τος Σωσιαδης can be restored in ll. 736-7. παραλαβων [τον αναισχυν]τον Σωσιαδης could even be read here. Fr. 75, where Σω]σιαδης is not unlikely in l. 781, may also refer to this person.

93-4. δανειστην should perhaps be restored in l. 93, but ν εις την η[μεραν την] συγκριμε]νην is possible.

102. This line is in the same position in the column as l. 92.

113-18. Cf. xxxiv. 11 δεινὸν γὰρ ἂν εἴη, ὃ (ἄνδρες) Ἀθηναῖοι, εἰ ὅτε μὲν ἐφεύγομεν ἐμαχόμεθα Λακεδαιμονίους ἵνα κατέλθωμεν, κατέλθόντες δὲ φευξόμεθα ἵνα μὴ μαχώμεθα.

119. [οργιζο]σθε: cf. xii. 30, 80, 90. With τοῖς ἐωνημέ[νοι]ς τα υμετερα cf. ll. 510-11.

124-5. Perhaps ε[.]πειτα.

127-8. τας συνθη]κας τε και το]υς νομους could be read, but is contrary to Lysias' use of τε. ταις (or των) συνθη]καις (or -κων) κατα το]υς νομους is more likely.

129. ακη]κοατε: i.e. in ll. 38 sqq. probably.

129-35. Either η| in l. 129 or .| is in l. 130 is likely to belong to ημας, which is expected about this point, being perhaps contrasted with τ[ου]ς ἀντιδικ[ους] in ll. 133-4. If there was a pause after ἀντιδικ[ους], the next sentence may have begun ημ[ε]ις [του]ν[υ]ν υμιν. In view of the stop, however, at the end of l. 132, τ[ου]ς ἀντιδικ[ους] may be connected with what follows, and mean both parties to the suit, not Lysias' adversaries. υμιν in l. 134 clearly goes with ἐπιτρέπω[μεν]: cf. Plato, Apol. 35 d ἡμῖν ἐπιτρέπω . . . κρίναι. There is room for [δε περι] before τουτων in l. 135, but περι τουτων occurs shortly after in l. 140.

139. [κρίσιν]: cf. xxv. 10 οὕτως γὰρ ἂν δικαιόσταιν (τὴν) κρίσιν περὶ αὐτῶν ποιόισθε. For [γνωμὴν] there is not room. περι του would be expected before πραγματος, but since περι τουτων occurs in the next line, the sentence would be improved by the omission of πραγματος.

141. There seems to have been an omission of τε at the beginning of this line, as in l. 115.

144-5. Cf. xxv. 17 οὕτως γὰρ τότε οὐδὲν ἐξήμαρτον . . . , ἥ που νῦν σφόδρα προθυμήσομαι χρηστὸς εἶναι. δο[ξ]ας or δο[κ]ων seems to be inevitable, for the letter before ο is more like δ than λ, which is the only alternative.

148. [προσηκ]οντ: or [συμφερ]οντ.

149. It is not certain that the space (the width of a letter) between ηι and οτ[ι] was blank, the surface of the papyrus being damaged. Whether μεν had a δε answering to it is not clear, and perhaps μεν[τοι] should be read.

150. υμιν: or ημιν.

155-6. Cf. xii. 43 ἐπειδὴ δὲ ἡ ναυμαχία καὶ ἡ συμφορὰ τῇ πόλει ἐγένετο.

157-9. Cf. xii. 20 οὐδὲ κατὰ τὸ ἐλάχιστον μέρος τῆς οὐσίας ἐλέου . . . ἐτυγχάνομεν, xii. 22 μετὴν γὰρ ἂν καὶ ἐμοὶ τοῦτον τάγαθόν οὐκ ἐλάχιστον μέρος, and especially xviii. 2 τῶν μὲν κακῶν οὐκ ἐλάχιστον αὐτὸς μετέσχε μέρος. The υ of [υ]σεν in l. 159 is fairly certain. A verb meaning 'avoided' is expected, but ἐφ[υ]γεν cannot be read.

160-2. Cf. ll. 8-10, nn.

163-71. Cf. Plut. op. cit. 835 f ἐπιβεβένων δὲ τῶν ἀπὸ Φυλῆς τῇ καθόδῳ, ἐπεὶ χρησιμώτατος ἀπάντων ᾤθη, χρήματά τε παρισχῶν δραχμὰς δισχιλίας καὶ ἀσπίδας διακοσίας πεμφθεῖς τε σὺν Ἑρμῇ ἐπικούρους ἐμισθώσατο τριακοσίους, δύο τ' ἐπεισε τάλαντα δοῦναι Θρασυδαῖον τὸν Ἥλειον, ξένον αὐτῷ (better αὐτῷ) γεγονότα, which is clearly based upon the present passage, not, as Blass (op. cit. p. 339) supposed, upon the speech περὶ τῶν ἰδίων εὐεργεσιῶν (cf. ll. 177-9 n.). A shorter verb than ἐμισθώσατο seems to have occurred in l. 165, though cf. xii. 59 ἐπικούρους μισθοῦσθαι. With the spelling τ[ε]λῃ in ll. 170-1 cf. ἀναγκῃ as the nominative in ll. 181-2.

173. παρ υμιν: the traces of ι are very slight, but there is not room for υμων, which is what Lysias probably wrote (cf. ll. 216-19, n.), though later writers, e.g. Dio Cass. Exc. p. 66. 34, often use the dative with παρά in place of the genitive.

177-9. The speech πρὸς Ἱπποθέρσην was probably delivered before that περὶ τῶν ἰδίων εὐεργεσιῶν, of which the contents and date are unknown.

178. α[ν]αμνησκων: for μνημίσκειν, which appears as a form of μμνήσκειν in the Roman period, but is not likely to have been used by Lysias himself, cf. Porphyry. Vit. Plotini 13 ἐν δὲ τισὶ λέξεσιν ἀμαρτάνων, οὐ γὰρ ἂν εἶπεν ἀναμνησκέται ἀλλὰ ἀναμνημίσκεται, and P. Hamburg 37. 4 (2nd cent.) μνημίσκεσθαι, quoted by W. Schmid in Berl. Phil. Woch. 1914. 1568.

184. ἐπὶ μεν των τετρα[κο]σίων: i. e. at the fall of the Four Hundred, when several of the leaders escaped to Decelea; cf. Thuc. viii. 98.

191-4. That two originally separate fragments, one attributed to the middles of ll. 192-3, the other (Fr. 80) to the ends of ll. 191-4, are correctly placed admits of little doubt.

194-7. The general sense is that Hippotheses took more pride in the destruction than in the building of the walls; cf. xii. 63 καίτοι σφόδρ' ἂν αὐτὸν οἶμαι μετὰ Θεμιστοκλέους πολιτενόμενον προσποιεῖσθαι πρᾶττειν ὥπως οἰκοδομηθήσεται τὰ τείχη, ὅποτε καὶ μετὰ Θηραμένους ὥπως καθαυρεθήσεται, and xiv. 39 ἡ τῶν τειχῶν καθηρημένων ἀγανακτεῖ. The first letter of μ[ε]ο[ν] is, however, very uncertain, γ, η, ι, κ, ν, π, or τ being equally possible. σ[τ]ι ο[μ]ο[ι]ο[ν] could be read instead of σ[τ]ι μ[ε]ο[ν], with καὶ instead of η in l. 196 (which as it stands is rather short); but this does not combine well with οὐδ ομ[ο]ίας ἐλπίδας in l. 198. τῶν τειχῶν κτλ. seems to be a genitive absolute.

201. ων: The first letter can be η, ι, or ω, but hardly ν.

203. μεταμελη[σα]ν: cf. the use of the present participle absolutely in Isocr. 382 c and Plato, Phaedo 114 a.

207. εἰργα[σ]α[το]: εἰργα[σ]τ[αι] is inadmissible. The next word may have been κακά.

212-13. Perhaps πει[τηκοντα] ταλαν[των].

216-19. Though the remains are scanty, the general sense is fairly clear; but in l. 217 βαν[] would be expected to end the line, and there is certainly not room for both εἰν and εὐ after it. Λυσ[]ian cannot be read. For χαριν[] παρα του [δημου απολαμ]βαν[ε]ιν cf. l. 172 and xx. 30 χάριν παρ' ὑμῶν ἀπολαμβάνειν.

230. The cancelling of περι is supported by x. 2 συγγνώμην ἂν εἶχον αὐτῶ τῶν εἰρημένων: but cf. ix. 22 ὑπὲρ τῶν περιφανῶν ἀδικημάτων συγγνώμην ποιείσθε, and xix. 56 περὶ δὲ τοῦ πατρὸς . . . συγγνώμην ἔχετε.

239-46. [δι]α το[ν] λο[γον] του[του] is unsatisfactory, for the slight traces after το[ν] do not suit λο, and if the letter preceding]του were ν, the tail of it would rather be expected to be visible. [δι]α το[ν] του[του] λο[γον] is also unsuitable, and since this speech is for the prosecution it is not likely to have begun with a reference to a speech by the defendant. [δι]α το[ν] αγ[ω]νος του[του] is possible, but we have not been able to restore the whole passage satisfactorily. [ειρ]κε]ναι could be read in l. 242, but like λο[γον] is not appropriate, and διε[θ]κε]ν in ll. 242-3 is rather short. With επ[ι]τροπους and ουσιαν in ll. 244-5 cf. ll. 267-8. The vestige of a letter at the end of l. 244 suggests ε, ι, or ν. κε[]λεναι α]λλα is too long.

249. Θ[ε]οδοτιδ[η]: cf. l. 300. He is not likely to be the same person as the Θεοζοτίδης against whom lix was directed, for the fragments of that speech in P. Hibeh 14 are concerned with a γραφή παρανόμων on account of Th.'s proposals to alter the pay of soldiers and arrangements for benefiting orphans. Nor is he to be identified with the Θεοζοτίδης χορηγὸς τραγῳδῶν mentioned by Dem. xxi. 59. With regard to the spelling, Θεοζοτίδης is the only form recognized in the Prosopogr. Att.; but Θεοσοτίδης or Θεοδοτίδης is commonly found in Byzantine MSS.

266. . .]ν: or επε]ι.

267-8. Cf. ll. 244-5.

269. The letter preceding το may be ι or ω.

270.]αι can be read in place of]ν.

271. Perhaps το]τε, unless ο]τε was written twice by mistake. γε is the only alternative to τε.

272. ανεν μ[αρτυρων]: cf. l. 252.

275. ποιο[]νμενος: η, ι, or ω can be read instead of ν.

276. Cf. xii. 35 ἡ που σφᾶς αὐτοὺς ἡγήσονται περιέρχους ὑπὲρ ὑμῶν τηρουμένους.

293-4. Probably απαιτη]σεως or αποδο]σεως.

294-5. αν[τιλε]γει cannot be read without altering the text, though it is the word expected.

297. δνουν θατ[ερον]: cf. vi. 8, xii. 34.

302-3. Possibly [ειληφε]ναι ου]κ απ[].

312. The letter before τοκον might be ω, but is apparently not ν.

317-18. οκν[ειν] δεηθ[η]ναι: cf. l. 335, where these words seem to recur. But the ο is lower in the line than would be expected and there might be one or two letters lost after it. The letter following κ, if not ν, is μ.

320. The ἐχθροί are those of Theomnestus (cf. l. 349), not those of the plaintiff (l. 258).

322. The ν of μεν is corrected from μ.

325-6. Possibly ουκ [αυ]τος: ουχ [ου]τος is not a satisfactory reading. The last three letters of αυται are very doubtful, but the following μ is nearly certain, so that π[αρ]ιουτος and ε[ξ]ουτος are excluded.

330-2. Cf. xxi. 2 ἔτι δ' ἀνδράσι χορηγῶν εἰς Διονύσια . . . ἐνίκησα καὶ ἀνήλωσα σὺν τῇ τοῦ τρίποδος ἀναθέσει πεντακισχίλις δραχμάς. αλ]λας δραχ[μας] could be read.

333 a-41. That Frs. 45 and 73 join together and are to be placed near the beginnings of these lines was ascertained after they had been printed in the miscellaneous section.

335. Cf. ll. 317-18, n. δε ε[] could be read. If δεη[θῆναι] is right, the next word may be το]τε.

337. Cf. ll. 246 and 256-7.

338-40. Cf. ll. 298-300.

344-5. The word or words before αργυριον may well have ended ον[το]ς, corresponding to ll. 340-1. ν[παρχον]το]ς is inadmissible.

348. ἐπι[δ]ειξαι: or ἐπι[.]ηξαι, which suggests no suitable word, though ἐπι[δ]ηξαι may have been written for ἐπι[δ]ειξαι, as perhaps in l. 738. [δ]υναμιν is also difficult, but the ν of [δ]υν is almost certain.

349. That τις has been omitted before ουτ[ω] is clear from ll. 356-7. For ουτ[ω] σφοδρα cf. ll. 418-19.

350. Cf. ii. 79 οὐκ ἐπιτρέψαντες περὶ αὐτῶν τῇ τύχῃ.

351-6. As the text stands, there is no construction for the infinitive αναγκασθ[ῆναι] in l. 353 and no verb for ωστε in l. 355. The simplest course is to transpose ωστε to l. 352 after [ε]παθεν, but the corruption may go deeper; e. g. ωστε ει εδυ [ο] ηλι[ος] υπερημερου ουτ[ος] may be transferred to l. 352, or ωστε may be inserted there and a verb added for the second ωστε. For εις τουτ[ο] πρ[ο] ηκο]ντα cf. Dem. xxviii. 5.

362-3. Perhaps ν[μω]ν or ς[ο] ν[τω]ς.

367. Fr. 13 is perhaps to be placed immediately above Fr. 8, so that the stroke visible under the μ of ομαι in l. 437 represents the stroke lost above [ε in l. 367.

370-2. These lines apparently began more to the left than ll. 368-9.

377-80. Cf. xxxi. 14 ὡς οὖν ᾧκει τε ἐν Ὠρωπῷ . . . ἀκούσατε τῶν μαρτύρων. μάρτυρες. Here the mention of μάρτυρες comes first.

387. την] νανν: cf. l. 369.

389. προς]. υλιον: or possibly]. υλην or]. . αιον or]. . νον. προς Ἀρμόδιον, π. Ἀρχίνον, and π. Χυτρίνον are titles of lost speeches of Lysias; but Αρ]μοδιον cannot be read, and the speech π. Ἀρχίνον was concerned with Lysias' citizenship, which is clearly foreign to the subject of Frs. 8-9. Of the speech π. Χυτρίνον only one fragment is extant, which is concerned with an assault, and the vestiges do not suit Χυτρίνον. Fr. 20 possibly belongs to this line; but cf. int. pp. 48-9.

397. Possibly Λυ]σias in some form; but cf. int. p. 48.

410. There was perhaps a blank space after αλλα, indicating the end of a line.

416. It is not certain whether a letter has been obliterated after οντα, or there was a blank space before the vestige of the next letter, which might be α, i. e. αδικα ι[] or α δικαι[. ω δικασ]ται could be read, but Lysias regularly uses ὁ ἄνδρες δικασταί.

418-20. Cf. ll. 349 sqq. It is, however, unlikely that Fr. 11 belongs to the speech against Theomnestus.

436-8. Cf. l. 367, n.

440-1. εφα]σκε: Fr. 16, in which l. 449 ends [*ε*φα, may well belong to the ends of l. 440 and the two preceding lines.

447-9. Cf. the previous n.

456. Possibly, but not very probably, κατὰ Θεομνησίου: cf. int. p. 48. The two extant orations κ. Θεομν. are distinguished as α' and β'. There is a blank space above and below του.

457. Cf. l. 389, n. There is a blank space above προς [, but the lower margin is broken away.

458. The blank spaces above and below this line indicate a title. 'Υπὲρ Φανίου παρανόμων was the title of a speech of Lysias according to Athenaeus xii. 551 d, who quotes a long extract from an invective against Cinesias, a writer of dithyrambs and comedies, this being one of the two speeches πρὸς Κινησίαν mentioned by Harpocration. The speech κατὰ Θεοζοτίδου was also concerned with παρανόμων (cf. l. 249, n.), and Blass (op. cit. p. 350) assigns five other speeches to the same category. But none of the other miscellaneous fragments of 1806 suggests any of these speeches as its source.

459-60. Possibly a letter is lost before απει [. There is a space below l. 460, but none between ll. 459-60, such as is found elsewhere between the last line of a speech and the title; possibly therefore προσ [.] is a heading like μάρτυρες, and not a title. The vestige of a letter would suit γ, η, ι, κ, μ, ν, π, τ, or υ, and the lacuna between it and προς, if not blank, is likely to have contained ο, since any other letter ought to have left visible traces. No speech of Lysias πρὸς Ο. . . is known, and there is no reason to connect this fragment with the title of civ περὶ τῆς Ὀνομακλείους θυγατρὸς.

468-83. It is not at all certain that Fr. 24 comes from a point near the beginnings of lines; cf. l. 483, n.

472-4. Cf. xii. 77 πολλὰς πίστει αὐτοῖς ἔργω δεδωκώς, and l. 716, where πισ[τις perhaps recurs.

481. Apparently not δη[λοσσι].

483. ἦρεν καλὸν : or ἦρ ενκαλὸν [μεν : in which case ἦρ is probably not the beginning of a line.

490. σωτ [: σωσ[ιαδμ (cf. ll. 92-3, n.) is inadmissible.

493. βεβα[ι : cf. l. 602 β] εβαιοι and Lys. Fr. 310 (from Harpocration) βεβαιώσεως δίκης ὀνομά ἐστιν ἣν δικάζονται οἱ ὠνησάμενοί τι τῷ ἀποδομένῳ, ἂν ἕτερος μὲν ἀμφισβητῇ τοῦ πραθέντος, ὁ δὲ μὴ βεβαιῶσι. ἐνίστε καὶ ἀρραβῶνος μόνου δοθέντος εἰτα ἀμφισβητήσαντός του ἐλάγχχανε τὴν τῆς βεβαιώσεως δίκην ὁ τὸν ἀρραβῶνα δοὺς τῷ λαβόντι. Δυσίας ἐν δυσὶ λόγοις. ἀμφ] σβητ [occurs in l. 604 and ἀμφι] σβητ ει in l. 547, so that all three Frs. 25, 31, and 39 may have come from one of the two speeches to which Harpocration was referring. In any case they probably belong to an oration different from those against Hippotheres and Theomnestus; cf. int. The colour of Frs. 31 and 39 suggests that they are to be placed near each other.

496. τε . [: τερ[ωνμος (cf. Lysias Fr. 123 and p. 48) might be restored, but cf. the previous n.

506-11. Cf. ll. 118-20 καίτοι[ι] δικαίως αν [οργιζοι] σθε τοις εωνημε[νοις] τα υμετερα and xxxi. 33 μόνος δὲ . . . δικαίως οὐδ' ἂν ἀγανακτοίη μὴ τυχών. Fr. 26 may well belong to the speech πρὸς Ἰπποθέρησιν, but the proposed restoration of ll. 506-7 makes those lines shorter than usual by one or two letters, and ἐπι των πατριων seems to be a mistake for ἐπι τοις πατριοις: cf. i. 1 ἐπὶ τοῖς γεγενημένοις ἀγανακτοίη.

520-9. Fr. 28 probably joins Fr. 29; cf. the next n.

530-5. That Frs. 29 and 30, both from the bottoms of columns, join, as indicated in the text, admits of hardly any doubt; the position assigned to Fr. 28. 524-9 at the beginnings of these lines is attractive, but not certain. A new sentence begins in l. 533 with αποδει[, and αποδει[ξω [τ] οι[υν α] υτον would be expected; but the traces of the letter following ξ suggest no other vowel than α, and αποδειξα[ι or αποδειξα[ς is difficult to construct. The ο of οι . in l. 534 is nearly certain, but the next letter might be υ and the third is quite doubtful.

536. The left-hand part of the τ of $\tau\alpha$ is missing, and there is no external evidence for τ being the first letter of the line. There is certainly not room for a $[αν\alpha]υ\omega$.

537-8. $\phi\epsilon\rho\omicron\iota\tau\omicron [τ]ην | [χαρι]ν$ is possible. Frs. 28-30 might belong to the speech $\pi\rho\acute{o}s$ $\iota\pi\pi\omicron\theta\acute{\epsilon}\rho\sigma\etaν$: cf. ll. 171-3.

539-48. Cf. l. 493, n. It is tempting to place Fr. 53 to the left of Fr. 31, so that the tip of the σ of $\mu\phi\epsilon\sigma$ in l. 696 would belong to the bottom of the σ of $\sigma\beta\eta\tau\epsilon\iota$ in l. 547. The fibres suit well enough, though the two fragments would still not actually join each other. Lines 544-7 would then run $[. . .]αι . [. . \pi]ολλα ημαρ|[τ . . .]λει$ (or $[α\epsilon\iota] τις σοι$ (or $τισι$ $οι$) $μηδεν | [. . . κ]αθηκων φροντι|[. . . η]μ\phi\epsilon\sigma\beta\eta\tau\epsilon\iota τ\omega\iota$, which remains obscure.

554. The letter following $\epsilon[ι]σεν$ seems to begin with a vertical stroke and not to be ϵ .

559. $\delta\iota\alpha\gamma\omicron\mu\epsilon\nu\omicron\varsigma$: the middle of this verb is used by Plato, but not elsewhere by Lysias. $\eta\gamma\omicron\mu\epsilon\nu\omicron\varsigma$ can be read.

601-6. Cf. l. 493, n.

641-7. It is not certain that Fr. 44 belongs to 1606.

648-53. Cf. ll. 333 a-41, n.

693-7. Cf. ll. 539-48, n.

716. Cf. ll. 472-4, n.

725. $\pi\lambda\omicron\upsilon\sigma\iota\omega\tau\alpha[τ$: cf. ll. 153-4.

735. $\iota\delta\eta\xi\alpha\iota$: the η is clear, but $\epsilon\pi\iota\delta\epsilon\iota\xi\alpha\iota$ may be meant; cf. l. 348, n.

773-6. Cf. ll. 333 a-41, n.

781. For $\Sigma\omega\sigma\iota\alpha\delta\eta$ cf. ll. 92-3, n.

785. Perhaps $\Theta\epsilon\omicron\mu\eta\eta\sigma\tau\omicron\varsigma$ or $\Theta\epsilon\omicron\zeta\omicron\tau\iota\delta\eta\varsigma$ (cf. l. 249, n.).

801-4. Cf. ll. 191-4, n.

809-12. Whether this fragment belongs to 1606 is doubtful. There is no other instance of a coronis in the papyrus.

829. $\eta\alpha\iota\omicron\Lambda\upsilon\sigma\iota\alpha\varsigma$ can be read, in which case Fr. 87 would belong to the speech $\pi\rho\acute{o}s$ $\iota\pi\pi\omicron\theta\acute{\epsilon}\rho\sigma\etaν$.

858-9. Fr. 128 is probably to be placed to the left of Fr. 97 with a slight gap between them, in which case the combined reading is $\eta\kappa\alpha\nu\pi\omicron\tau\epsilon\epsilon\pi\epsilon$ and $\omega\alpha\eta\delta\rho\epsilon\varsigma\delta\iota\kappa\alpha\iota\sigma\tau\alpha\iota$.

865. Possibly $\eta\alpha\iota\omicron\Lambda\upsilon\sigma\iota\alpha\varsigma$; cf. l. 829, n.

869. Possibly $\Lambda\nu\sigma\iota\alpha\varsigma$; cf. l. 829, n.

1607. HYPERIDES (?), For Lycophron.

Height 27.5 cm. Late second or early third century.
Plate III (Frs. 5 + 4).

These fragments of a lost oration, found with 1606, were originally more than 60 in number, but have been reduced by a quarter through combinations. At least ten columns are represented, the longest fragment (1) containing parts of three with some continuous passages; but of the other pieces only Fr. 5 is of much value, and not more than about 100 lines in all can be restored. The order of the fragments is uncertain; but the similarity in colour and texture of Frs. 2-12 suggests that they are to be placed near each other, and suitable positions have been found for Frs. 3 and 4 in combination with Frs. 2. ii and 5 respectively. That Fr. 14 belongs to Fr. 2. ii is far from certain (cf. ll. 159-62, n.), for Frs. 13-20 form another group, differing from the rest in colour. The handwriting is an upright, rather irregular uncial of the late second or early third century, the letters being as a rule somewhat widely separated. The script sometimes, e.g. in Frs. 13-20, tends to become more compact; but there seems to be no change of hand. There were 39-40 lines in a column, and 11-18 letters, usually 13-15, in a line. The common >-shaped sign is used for filling up short lines, being duplicated in l. 87. Iota adscript was written. High stops were employed, these sometimes approximating to the middle position, but probably without any intentional distinction. All these, together with occasional diaereses over ι and υ, a mark of elision in l. 230, and an accent in l. 455, are due to the original scribe, as are certainly most of the corrections; but the alterations in ll. 15, 71, 93, and 424 were possibly made by a different person.

The oration was evidently in defence of a certain Lycophron, who is mentioned several times by name (ll. 28, 106, 160?, and 287), but elsewhere is usually called οἷτος. He was accused of adultery with a woman whose husband was ill (ll. 180-8), the main subject of Fr. 1 being a denial of the charge that Lycophron had dug a hole in the wall which divided his house from hers. It is also evident that this person is identical with the Lycophron defended by Hyperides in an oration of which a few fragments from the beginning and the whole of the concluding portion are extant in P. Brit. Mus. 115. That speech was similarly concerned with an accusation against Lycophron of adultery with an unnamed woman whose husband was in a dying condition; her brother Dioxippus, a distinguished athlete (Hyperid. Lycophr. § 5), is obviously identical with the Dioxippus of 1607. 285, and the Theomnestus alluded to in 1607. 219 as one of the chief witnesses for the prosecution is no doubt the same as the accuser Theomnestus who is bitterly attacked in Lycophr. § 2, while there is probably a reference in 1607. 283 to Charippus, the second husband of the woman in question (Lycophr. § 3). Since the British Museum oration was composed for delivery by the defendant himself, who speaks in the first person, 1607, in which Lycophron is mentioned in the third person, cannot belong to the missing part of it, though it must have covered the same ground. The Oxyrhynchus fragments therefore belong to another speech delivered in connexion with this cause célèbre of about 340 B. C.

From the British Museum papyrus it is known that the proceedings against Lycophron took the form of an εἰσαγγελία, which in the first instance was brought before the δῆμος by the famous orator Lycurgus in the absence of Lycophron from Athens on military service at Lemnos. In the fifth and the earlier half of the fourth century B.C. εἰσαγγεῖλαι brought before the δῆμος, either directly or through the agency of the βουλή, were usually tried by the whole δῆμος, as e.g. in 388 in the case of Ergocles, against whom a speech of Lysias is extant; but after 361 the normal practice, as illustrated chiefly by the orations of Hyperides for Lycophron and Euxenippus and that of Lycurgus against Leocrates, seems to have been to refer such cases to a court of dicasts; cf. Lipsius, Attisches Recht, i. 176 sqq. Lycurgus is known from quotations to have composed two speeches against Lycophron, and it is generally supposed that one of these was delivered by himself before the whole δῆμος, while the other was written for delivery before the dicasts by the chief plaintiff, a certain Ariston, this being the speech to which Hyperides' oration for Lycophron was the reply (Blass, Att. Beredsamkeit, iii. 59). The line of argument adopted in 1607 renders it impossible to regard the speech as the work of Lycurgus, and there is some a priori probability that the author of it was Hyperides. This orator was rather widely read in Egypt, for six of his speeches are preserved more or less completely in four papyri from that country (682, a fragment of a lost oration, may also belong to him), whereas, of his contemporaries other than Lycurgus, Demades and Dinarchus are not represented in papyri, and neither Aeschines, who according to Pseudo-Plutarch 840 e wrote only four speeches, nor Demosthenes, whose orations are nearly all extant, is suitable as the author of 1607. Like Lycurgus, Hyperides may well have taken part in the proceedings before the δῆμος concerning Lycophron in addition to the subsequent trial before the dicasts; but the employment of the phrase ὦ ἄνδρες δικασταί in 1607. 221-2, not ὦ ἄνδρες Ἀθηναῖοι as in Lysias' speech against Ergocles, is irreconcilable with the hypothesis that the δῆμος as a whole was being addressed. Lycurgus in his oration against Leocrates uses ὦ ἄνδρες, ὦ Ἀθηναῖοι and ὦ ἄνδρες δικασταί indiscriminately, but in a speech delivered before dicasts, and if Hyperides was the author of 1607 he must have written two orations for delivery at the same trial, one (the British Museum papyrus) spoken by Lycophron, the other (1607) spoken either by the author himself or by a third person. The British Museum oration concludes with an appeal from Lycophron to a certain Theophilus to speak on his behalf, and it is to this speech, also composed by Hyperides, rather than to a speech delivered by Hyperides in the first person, that we are disposed to attribute 1607. This hypothesis is distinctly supported by internal evidence. Hyperides was censured by several ancient critics, particularly Hermogenes, for carelessness in his choice of λέξεις (cf. Blass, op. cit. iii. 25 sqq.), and 1607 has several not strictly Attic expressions, which seem to be taken from common life. Thus ἀπείρασθαι with an accusative (l. 28) and παρασιωπᾶν (l. 69) are not attested before Polybius, nor is ἐγενήθη (l. 63, n.) with certainty before Philemon. σῶμα in ll. 32 and 76 is used in a manner approximating to its third century B. C. use as 'slave', and it is possible that διαλέγεσθαι in l. 97 is used de concubitu, which would be exactly parallel to the rare use of διαλέγεσθαι in the sense of πλησιάζειν ταῖς γυναῖξί ascribed to Hyperides by Moeris, p. 195 (= Blass, Fr. 171). That quotation, together with two similar references in Pollux to Hyperides' use of διειλεγμένος, is assigned by Blass to the oration περὶ Φρύνης, but the Moeris quotation might even refer to the present passage. There are also several other agreements with Hyperides in points of diction; cf. ll. 26, 71-3, 82, 86-8, 108, 111, 128, 220-3, nn.

Against the attribution of 1607 to Hyperides it may be urged that the British Museum papyrus has the title at the end (ἀπολογία ὑπὲρ Λυκόφρονος) without the addition α' or β', and proceeds to the speech for Euxenippus, and the ancient references to the speech for Lycophron (four in Pollux, one in Antiatticista in Bekker, Anecd. p. 97) do not mention more than one. But the British Museum papyrus contains only three selected orations, and since the quotations in Pollux and Antiatticista from the speech for Lycophron do not occur in it, they might even refer to 1607, not to that speech. If there were two speeches for Lycophron, sometimes distinguished as α' and β', the ignoring of that distinction by Pollux and Antiatticista would be no more remarkable than the failure of Harpocration in seven out of nine cases and of Suidas twice to state which of the two speeches of Lycurgus they meant by κατὰ Λυκόφρονος. Moreover the title of 1607 may have been something different from ὑπὲρ Λυκόφρονος β'. According to Pseudo-Plutarch 849d Hyperides composed 77 speeches, of which 52 were genuine. The titles of nearly 70 are known, and none of these is at all suitable for identification with 1607, except possibly a speech which is vaguely described by Pollux as συνηγορικός. But the scholiast on Aeschines, De falsa leg. § 18, gives the number of Hyperides' orations as 170, and though the figures assigned by this scholiast to the speeches of the orators are in general less trustworthy than those of Pseudo-Plutarch, and in some cases (e. g. in regard to Lysias and Isaeus) certainly corrupt, the figure 77 for Hyperides may well be too small, while, even if correct, it leaves a small balance of unknown speeches, of which 1607 may have been one. That Athenian advocates sometimes composed two orations for delivery by different speakers at the same trial is known from the two extant orations of Lysias against Alcibiades, of which the second is not a reply by the speaker of the first, and is not parallel to the second speech of Demosthenes against Aphobus; cf. Blass, op. cit. i. 492. Though open to some difficulties, the view that 1607 passed in Egypt as the composition of Hyperides offers the most satisfactory explanation. Whether it was actually genuine is more doubtful, in view of Pseudo-Plutarch's rejection of one-third of the speeches assigned to Hyperides. While the first oration of Demosthenes against Stephanus is generally regarded as authentic, the second is not; cf. Blass, op. cit. iii. 409 sqq., 472-5. But against the hypothesis that 1607 is a later composition ascribed to Hyperides must be set the apparent mention in ll. 218-20 of two individuals, Anaschetus and Criton, who are known from an inscription of 340 B.C., the approximate date of the British Museum speech.

We are indebted to Mr. Lobel and Dr. Hude for several good suggestions in the restoration of this papyrus.

'That he dug through the wall for the sake of intercourse with the woman is not at all credible. For the accuser has not shown either that he quarrelled with the persons who were in his service and readily submitted to any of his orders, or that owing to an altercation with him they renounced their intimacy, in consequence of which Lycophron was reduced to digging through the wall, since the servants were no longer . . .

. . . he would not have dug through the wall. For why should a man, who was not in straits, but in a position both to get news from her and to send messages from himself, . . .?

. . . and Chremes never forbade him the house (?). Moreover that her maids quarrelled with him was as good as impossible. For which of them could have become so bold as to pass over in silence either his messages to her or her messages to him for the sake of private enmity? The danger was close at hand; for . . . But, as it was, they saw that he was in an excessively weak state, while she who was about to become the owner of the house was kept before their eyes, for fear that if anything happened to him they would suffer punishment for their revenge. It is therefore incredible that Lycophron dug through the wall, and he was not in the habit, as stated by the accuser, of conversing with the maidservants. Why should he have done so? What need was there for them to quarrel with him when, their mistress being on quite familiar terms with him, they . . . ?

53-4. τηλικ[ο]υτος? ω]ν: the reference might be to the age of dying husband (cf. ll. 80-3 and int.); but it seems more likely that he is the subject not of]ατο in l. 55 but of the verb in l. 58, and that Lycophron is the subject as far as l. 55. In that case the point of τηλικ[ο]υτος would be that Lycophron was over 50 years of age when the trial took place, an argument used in his defence on the charge of adultery in Lycophr. § 15.

56-8. The restorations are highly conjectural, but οχρ[looks like a proper name, and a mention of the husband, whose name is unknown, but who is called ἐκείνος in l. 80, is very appropriate here. τα]υτηι is inadmissible in l. 56.

63. εγενηθη: this form, which is common in the third century B.C., occurs in the MSS. of Plato, Phileb. 62 d ἐξεγενήθη ἡμῖν (ἐξεγένεθ' ἡμῖν Stallbaum), and in two fragments of Philemon; cf. Lobeck, Phryn. 109, and int. p. 76.

But π[ρουθεν]το, if that is the right restoration, does not fit in very well with a reference to digging through the wall. ουτοι are the σώματα.

There seems to be no instance of ἀναλαμβάνειν with πρὸ ὀφθαλμῶν, but with the division αν ελαμβανον it is necessary to suppose the omission of αν in l. 80.

128. διαρρη[δην]: cf. Athenog. 10, 16.

159-62. It is very doubtful whether Fr. 14, containing the supposed ends of these lines, is rightly placed here, for the colour of it is different, especially on the verso (cf. int. p. 74), and at a junction with the upper margin of Fr. 2, which becomes necessary, the fibres of the recto do not harmonize very well. $\tau\omicron\iota\ \mu[\iota\sigma\theta]\omicron\upsilon\ \delta\iota\kappa\alpha\lambda\acute{\iota}\zeta\omicron\upsilon\tau\epsilon\varsigma$ is too short. $\omicron\iota\mu[\alpha\iota]$ is possible, and $\omicron\upsilon$ may be the negative.

170-1. Fr. 3 seems to be rightly placed here. $\kappa\alpha\theta\ \upsilon[\pi\epsilon\rho\beta\omicron\lambda\eta\eta\upsilon]$ is not unlikely in l. 171; cf. l. 81.

198. This line was probably the last of the column, which is already slightly longer than usual (40 lines compared to 39 in Fr. 1).

199-200. Cf. ll. 170-1, n.

201-4. Fr. 4 almost certainly belongs to ll. 224-7.

208. $\tau\omicron\mu\epsilon\nu\omicron\upsilon$: the last two letters are very doubtful; but cf. l. 205. $\tau\omicron\mu\epsilon\nu\eta\eta$ cannot be read.

218-20. The very rare name 'Ανάσχετος occurs also in C.I.A. ii. 804 Ba ($\text{'Αν. Δημοτέλους 'Αλαιεύς}$) in a list of sureties in 340 B.C. for some triremes supplied to the Chalcidians, the preceding name being $\text{Κρίτων 'Αστυόχου Κυδαθηναίου}$, who is also mentioned in C.I.A. ii. 807, and included among the $\text{κάλλιστοι τῶν πολιτῶν}$ by Aeschin. Contra Timarch. 156. Probably these two persons are identical with 'Ανάσχετος and Κρίτων here. For Θεόμνηστος cf. Lycophr. § 2 $\tau\omicron\ \delta\text{' ἀργύριον Θεο[μνή]στω δίδωσιν}$ (sc. Ariston) $\text{'ἐκείνος δὲ λαμβάνων ἀνδράποδα ἀγοράζει, καὶ παρέχει ὥσπερ τοῖς λησταῖς ἐπισιτισμόν, καὶ δίδωσι τούτῳ ὑπὲρ ἐκάστου τοῦ ἀνδραπόδου ὁβολὸν τῆς ἡμέρας, ὅπως ἂν ᾗ ἀθάνατος συκοφάντης.}$

228-31. It is not absolutely certain that these are the beginnings of lines.

236. $\pi\iota\theta[\alpha\nu\omicron\upsilon]$: cf. l. 18.

283. $\text{[τ]ῶι Χαρ[ιπ]πῶ[ι]}$: the traces of the supposed $\pi\omega$ are very slight and indecisive, but a mention of Charippus, to whom Dioxippus gave his sister in second marriage, and who figures largely in the charges discussed in Lycophr. §§ 3-7, is very appropriate; cf. int. p. 75. $\text{εγδοντα οἱ προ του εγδουσαι}$ is to be supplied at the end of the preceding column; cf. Lycophr. § 5 $\text{καὶ γὰρ οὗτος (sc. Dioxippus) ἡκολούθει διὰ τὸ χήραν ἐγδίδοσθαι αὐτήν.}$

284. $\epsilon[\iota\varsigma]\ \text{[Ο]λυ[μπιαν]}$: it is not certain that any letter is missing in the lacuna after $\epsilon[\iota\varsigma]$, and the following vestiges would also suit $\alpha\nu[\]$ or $\alpha\tau[\]$ or possibly $\iota\sigma[\]$, but Dioxippus was victorious as a pancratiast at Olympia according to Plin. Nat. Hist. xxxv. 139 and others. The date assigned to his victory by Foerster, Olymp. Sieger, no. 381, is 336 B.C., but there is no very definite evidence for fixing the year, except the fact that Dioxippus went to Asia with Alexander (Diod. xvii. 100-1), i.e. in 335 or 334, and died there, so that he cannot have been at Olympia after 336. The oration of Hyperides against Lycophron is generally assigned to 340 B.C., and if [Ο]λυ[μπιαν] is right the victory of Dioxippus was more probably in 340, or even 344, than in 336.

286-7. στεφανωσ[ο]ντα : στεφανωσ[α]ντα does not suit the size of the lacuna.

288. The τ of $\tau\epsilon\omega\varsigma$ has either been corrected from ι or else been inserted later.

289. The letter before $\pi\epsilon\mu\pi\omicron\nu\tau\alpha$ seems to have been σ or υ with a stroke through it, and the vestige of the preceding letter rather suggests α or λ , so that probably the scribe began to write $\alpha\nu\tau\omega\iota$ or $\lambda\nu\kappa\omicron\phi\rho\omicron\nu\iota$, but corrected it.

313-16. Cf. ll. 159-62, n.

336-7. For $\kappa\alpha[\theta\alpha\pi\epsilon\rho\ \lambda\epsilon]\gamma\epsilon\iota$ cf. l. 95.

427-36. These are perhaps the beginnings of lines; but if so, $\delta\alpha$ projects into the margin of l. 433.

1608. AESCHINES SOCRATICUS, Alcibiades.

Fr. 4 16 x 9.8 cm.

Late second century.

Plate III (Fr. 4).

The source of these scanty fragments of a dialogue between Socrates and Alcibiades, chiefly concerning the character of Themistocles, is shown to be the Alcibiades of Aeschines Socraticus by coincidences with two of the six extant quotations from that lost dialogue. Aeschines was one of the most important followers of Socrates, being often placed by ancient critics next in rank to Plato and Xenophon. His reputation rested not so much on his own contributions to the development of his master's philosophy, which seem to have been inconsiderable, but on the elegance of his style, which is specially praised by Aristides and Hermogenes, and on the fidelity of his representation of Socrates, which even led to the accusation in antiquity that the master, not the disciple, was the author of the dialogues (Diog. Laert. Vita Aeschinis, ii. 7). The recovery of new fragments of the Alcibiades is therefore a matter of some interest, especially in view of the current controversy initiated by Prof. Burnet concerning the historical character of the Platonic Socrates.

The extant fragments of Aeschines' seven genuine dialogues have recently been collected and discussed by H. Krauss (Teubner, 1911) and more fully by H. Dittmar (Philol. Untersuch. xxi. 1912). Much the longest is Fr. 1 (Krauss) of the Alcibiades from Aristides, orat. 46 (ii. 292 sqq., Dindorf) containing a panegyric upon Themistocles addressed to Alcibiades by Socrates, and concluding with a warning that even Themistocles' ἐπιστήμη was not strong enough to save him from disasters. Another passage in the same oration of Aristides (ii. 369) not only supplies a second fragment (small), which Krauss, following C. F. Hermann, assigns to a position immediately preceding Fr. 1, but gives a general description of the context of Fr. 1, from which it appears that Alcibiades was reduced to tears by the sense of his own inferiority to Themistocles. Before the end of the dialogue, which was put into the form of a narrative by Socrates, as is shown by the use of the first person in referring to him, Alcibiades seems to have left, and Frs. 3 and 4 (from Aristid. orat. 45) apparently belong to the conclusion of the dialogue, being part of an explanation of Socrates' general point of view in relation to Alcibiades, addressed to an unknown third participator in the conversation. Frs. 5 and 6, from Priscianus and Athenaeus respectively, are unimportant; but evidently the general drift of the whole dialogue was similar to that of the (Pseudo-)Platonic Alcibiades, a desire to curb the arrogance of Alcibiades. Aristides in fact contrasts the two dialogues, to the disadvantage of Plato. There are also apparent allusions to

Of the 19 (originally 25) fragments of the papyrus only six are large enough to be of any value, and the longest continuous passage is less than 20 lines (ll. 34-52). Fr. 5 (ll. 77-87) contains after parts of 5 new lines Krauss's Fr. 2, immediately followed, as he had correctly surmised, by the beginning of his Fr. 1. This is continued after a gap in Frs. 6 and 7, the latter fragment containing the bottoms of two columns. Since the extent of the missing portion of Fr. 7. ii is known to have been approximately 19 lines, there were about 30 lines in a column, and probably Fr. 5, of which the upper margin is broken off, is from the top of a column; for Frs. 5, 6, and 7. i together account for 30 lines. With regard to the position of the other fragments, none of them belongs to the four columns immediately following Fr. 7. ii, all of which must have been occupied by the remainder of the extant panegyric on Themistocles, and internal evidence indicates that at any rate Frs. 1, 2, and 4 preceded Frs. 5-7. Fr. 1 is placed in that position because the reference to Themistocles in l. 3 may be the first introduction of his name into the discussion, which continues to be occupied with him in Frs. 4-7. Socrates seems to have asked a question reflecting on his interlocutor's (presumably Alcibiades') relations to his parents, adducing as a parallel the bad relations of Themistocles to his parents—a remark which draws a protest from Alcibiades (ll. 1-6). The next question is concerned with a different subject, whether people are first μουσικοί and ἵππικοί or the opposite, the second alternative being naturally adopted by Alcibiades (ll. 7-15), at which point the fragment ceases to be intelligible. The story that Themistocles had been disinherited by his father, which is mentioned by Plutarch and other writers (cf. ll. 38-9, n.), had in any case been alluded to by Socrates before Fr. 4, in which Alcibiades is definitely stated to be the other speaker (l. 50); for in ll. 36-48 the latter expressed his surprise at the supposed disinheritance, and vigorously condemned the character of Themistocles implied by such an incident. There is an apparent connexion between this speech of Alcibiades and the reference at the beginning of Socrates' panegyric on Themistocles (ll. 85-7) to Alcibiades' boldness in criticizing that statesman; but Frs. 5-7 cannot be combined with the remains of Fr. 4. ii, so that at least one column intervened between Fr. 4. i and Frs. 5-7, though the gap is not likely to be wide. The next question of Socrates (ll. 48 sqq.) is incompletely preserved and somewhat obscure, as is the point of his remark in ll. 34-6, which preceded the outburst of Alcibiades and mentions Apollodorus' defence τοῦ φαύλου. This Apollodorus is presumably the inseparable companion of Socrates who appears as the narrator in Plato's Symposium, and he seems to have taken part in the conversation in Aeschines' dialogue. Though there is no reason to assign any of the remarks in the extant portion of 1608 to Apollodorus, the two remarks from the end of the dialogue (Frs. 3 and 4 Krauss; cf. p. 88) may well have been addressed to him: Anytus has been suggested there, but as a mere guess. The position of Fr. 2 is more doubtful, since there is no apparent reference in it to Themistocles; but there seems to be a connexion between ἀπολογίας in l. 28 and ἀπολογεῖσθαι in l. 36, so that Fr. 2 is likely to have preceded Fr. 4 with no very great interval. The first 5 lines of Fr. 5 apparently belong not to a speech but, like the next 3, to a piece of narrative: Alcibiades, who is meant by αὐτόν in l. 82, is probably also indicated by αὐτῷ in l. 79. Lines 82-136 correspond to Krauss's Fr. 2 and part of 1. Here there are some small variations between 1608 and the MSS. of Aristides, whose quotations do not seem to be exact. In ll. 130-2, where the MSS. are corrupt, 1608 is incompletely preserved, but does not seem to have been right; cf. n. ad loc. The papyrus as a whole is too short to prove much; but such glimpses of Aeschines' style as it affords indicate a close resemblance between his picture of Socrates and Plato's in the earlier dialogues, and so far as they go rather support Prof. Burnet's view that Plato was there giving a true representation of Socrates' teaching.

1608 was found with 841-4, 1606-7, &c. The handwriting is a good-sized elegant uncial of the sloping oval type, with a tendency to exaggerate the size of a and v. It is a somewhat later specimen of this type than 24 (Demosthenes, προσίμια δημογορικά: Part i, Plate vii) and 665 (History of Sicily: Part iv, Plate i), but earlier than e.g. 223 (Homer E: Part ii, Plate i) and Schubart, Pap. Graecae, 19 b (Hesiod, Catalogue), and probably belongs to the latter half of the second century. Iota adscript was generally written. Changes of speaker are indicated (perhaps not consistently) by double dots with or without paragraphi, and two kinds of stops, a high and a low point, are employed, besides occasional diaereses over initial i and v. A mark of elision in l. 53 seems to be due to the original scribe, but an accent and breathing in l. 37 are probably by the (contemporary) corrector, who has altered mistakes in ll. 10, 37 (?), and 42. A critical mark against l. 138 probably refers to a lost marginal note. The scribe seems to have been rather prone to omissions; cf. ll. 10 and 48-50. The fragments are or may be from the middles of columns, except where it is stated otherwise.

1-6. Probably, as Prof. Burnet, to whom we are indebted for several suggestions in the interpretation of 1608, remarks, Socrates asked 'Would you be willing to have behaved to your parents as Themistocles is said to have behaved to his?' Alcibiades replies 'Hush, Socrates'.

7-15. 'Do you think that men have to be unmusical before they are musical, and unskilled in riding before they are skilled?—I think that they must first be unmusical and unskilled in riding.' For ἄμουσοι in conjunction with ἄφιπποι cf. Plato, Rep. 335c. Burnet thinks that this was part of an argument intended to show that Themistocles did not achieve what he did φύσει (which Alcibiades considered sufficient for himself). Since Themistocles was so unsatisfactory in his youth, he must have become great and acquired ἐπιστήμη by care and practice.

16. [.]οχ[: or [α]ρχ[.

19. Perhaps [δικασ]τηριον ε[.

28. το[αυτας απο]λογιας : cf. l. 36 and int.

34-51. '... and Apollodorus also to make a good defence on behalf of the mean. —But, he replied, there is this point; I should not have thought that Themistocles was disinherited by his father; for such conduct betokens a mean character and reaches the height of folly, when a person is involved in such quarrels and in the most violent enmity with his parents, which even a child would find a way of avoiding.—Did you think it so small-minded, Alcibiades, said I, to be filled with hatred of one's parents that ...'

34-5. Απολ[λο]δωρος : cf. int. No orator of this name who was contemporary with Socrates is known. του φαν[λου] can be masculine or neuter. As Burnet remarks, Alcibiades may have been relying on his natural gifts, so that the question of κάλλος arose. Apollodorus may well have championed the cause of 'the ugly' (e.g. Socrates); for he certainly stands for the more cynical aspect of Socraticism, as appears from the beginning of the Symposium.

36. Of the double dots after απολογεισθαι only the upper is preserved.

αλλ' ἐκε[ι]νο : Burnet compares Hippias maior 283d ἀλλ' ἐκείνο, μὴν μὴ Λακεδαιμόνιοι κτλ.

37. η : the first hand perhaps wrote ι.

38-9. Cf. int. and Plut. Vit. Themist. 2 ἃ δὲ τούτων ἐξαρτῶσιν ἔνιοι διηγήματα πλάττοντες ἀποκήρυξιν μὲν ὑπὸ τοῦ πατρὸς αὐτοῦ . . . δοκεῖ κατεψεύσθαι, Aelian, Var. hist. ii. 12 ἀποκηρυχθεῖς ὑπὸ τοῦ πατρὸς, Nepos, Themist. 1 a patre exheredatus est.

40-1. πορρω ανοιας ηκοντα : cf. Plato, Euthyd. 294 e πόρρω σοφίας ἦκεις.

48. [(αν) ευρο]ιτο : this reading is not very satisfactory; but εὔροιτο is preferable to εὔροι, the active not being used with an infinitive in classical times, and there is a change of speaker before οὐτω, so that [αν ε]υροι with the omission of double dots before οὐτω, though a possible reading, is open to still greater objections.

50. γονεσ(ι)ν : γονεων is inadmissible.

52. [επιτυχ]οιτος was suggested by Burnet.

55-9. The fragment containing these lines was originally separate, and is not quite certainly placed here.

61. Probably αν[θ]ρωπ[ι]ν : cf. l. 52.

77. This line is probably the top of the column; cf. int. p. 89.

82-4. γνους . . . Θεμιστοκλέα = Aeschin. Fr. 2 ; cf. int. The MSS. of Aristides have ζηλοτύπως ἔχοντα instead of οτι ζηλοτυπ[ως] εχει, and before Θεμιστοκλέα some of the deteriores insert τόν, which was certainly omitted in the papyrus.

84-5. ε]πειδη του : from this point up to l. 136 the papyrus corresponds to the beginning of Aeschin. Fr. 1 ; cf. int. After ἐπειδή the MSS. of Aristides insert τοῖνυν, which is evidently due to looseness of quotation.

93-8. These remains are on a separate fragment, and there is no external evidence for their being near the ends of lines.

94-5. ο]υν πωπ[οτε] σοι : οὖν σοι πρόποτε MSS. 1608 may have omitted σοι. The ε of ἐμελησ]εν comes above the α of χωρ]ας in l. 96.

97. οσ]ην : so the 'deteriores', followed by Dindorf and Hermann. AET, which are considered the best MSS., have ὅσον, which is adopted by Fischer, Krauss, and Dittmar. ὅσπην is, however, supported by Aristides xiv (i. 325, Dindorf) ὅπερ γάρ τις ἔφη τῶν λογοποιῶν περὶ τῆς Ἀσίας λέγων ὅσπην ὁ ἥλιος πορεύεται ταύτης πάσης ἄρχειν ἄνδρα ἕνα.

100. γ]ε : om. MSS.

105. πολ]ε : so MSS. πόλει Krauss and Dittmar, following Herodian, ii. 2, p. 696 ὡς παρ' Αἰσχίνῃ τῷ Σωκρατικῷ τούτῳ τὸ πόλει : πόλη Hermann, following Choeroboscus.

130-2. εἰ μὴ αὐτοῦ τὸ βουλευέσθαι ἐκείνους (ἐκεῖνος E) περιέσται, τά γε ἄλλα αὐτῶν (αὐτόν E) MSS. Dindorf : εἰ μὴ αὐτοῦ τῷ βουλευέσθαι ἐκείνον . . . αὐτόν Hermann : εἰ μὴ αὐτῶν τῷ βουλ. ἐκεῖνος . . . αὐτόν Reiske : εἰ μὴ αὐτοῦ τῷ βουλ. ἐκεῖνος . . . αὐτόν Krauss, Dittmar. Whether 1608 had τ[ο] or τ[ω]ι and αὐ[τον] or αὐ[των] is uncertain ; but it apparently agreed with E in reading ἐκεῖνος (though ἐκεῖνοι[s] is just possible), and certainly differed from all the MSS. and editors in having αὐτοῦς instead of αὐτοῦ—a novelty which seems to be erroneous.

134. ἐμελλεν [ω]φέλησειν : ὠφέλησει MSS.

136. αρα : om. MSS.

138. For the critical mark cf. int. p. 90.

154-7. Fr. 10 resembles Fr. 7. ii in colour, but does not occur in the text of the missing portion of that column.

159. The supposed low stop after ν might be the lower of two dots marking a change of speaker, in which case καιτο[ι] is not improbable.

162-5. This fragment is very likely to be placed above Fr. 9, but there is no actual join.

1609. PHILOSOPHICAL WORK (EUDORUS?). METROLOGICAL FRAGMENT.

8 x 10.2 cm.

Second century.

The recto of this papyrus contains 13 nearly complete lines from the middle of a column of a lost philosophical work, with a few letters from the preceding and following columns. It is written in a clear compact semiuncial hand of the second century, which somewhat resembles that of 410 (Part iii, Plate iv) and is not later than the reign of Marcus Aurelius, more probably belonging to the reign of Trajan or Hadrian. A stroke in the middle of l. 12 indicates the beginning of a new section. The subject under discussion is εἰδῶλα in mirrors, and the author, who alludes in l. 13 to his commentary on the Timaeus of Plato, and objects in ll. 16 sqq. to the views of Democritus, Epicurus, and Empedocles, evidently belonged to the Academic school. The first commentator on Plato, was according to Proclus, In Tim. p. 24, Crantor of Soli in Cilicia, whose discussion of the Timaeus is mentioned several times by Plutarch in his De animae procreatione. But since Crantor was a contemporary of Epicurus and died before him, he is unsuitable as the author of the papyrus, in which Epicurus is ranked with Democritus and Empedocles. Another philosopher of the Academic school, also mentioned by Plutarch, op. cit., in connexion with the Timaeus, is Eudorus of Alexandria, who flourished about 25 B.C. and is generally thought to have written a commentary on that dialogue, besides an encyclopaedic work upon philosophy in general and a treatise on Aristotle's Categories. The encyclopaedic work, of which a few fragments survive, is described by Stobaeus, Ecl. ii. 46 as Εὐδώρου τοῦ Ἀλεξανδρέως Ἀκαδημικοῦ φιλοσόφου διαίρεσις τοῦ κατὰ φιλοσοφίαν λόγου, βιβλίον ἀξιόκτητον ἐν ᾧ πᾶσαν ἐπεξελήλυθε προβληματικῶς τὴν ἐπιστήμην. It was used extensively by Arius Didymus of Alexandria, a Stoic philosopher with eclectic tendencies, and seems to have been a work of some importance. The account of it given by Zeller, Gesch. d. griech. Philos. i. 612, who considers that it collected the answers of the chief writers on the main problems of philosophy, is quite in harmony with the papyrus. A difficulty with regard to the attribution of 1609 to Eudorus, who naturally wrote in Attic, arises from the occurrence of an Ionic form, περιεύσας, in l. 21. The context there, however, and the occurrence elsewhere of several non-Ionic forms (οὖν, τούτων, Ἐμπεδοκλῆς) indicate that the author was in this case using Empedocles' language, though περιεύσας cannot itself have occurred in hexameters.

On the verso in a different and larger semiuncial hand, which is not earlier than A.D. 150 and may even be later than 200, are the ends of 11 lines from the middle of a column of metrological tables, similar to e.g. 9. verso and 669. Some abbreviations and the usual symbols for drachma (l. 31) and $\frac{1}{2}$ (l. 36) occur. The amount lost at the beginnings of lines is uncertain, but seems to be considerable in most, if not all, cases, and not much can be gleaned from the fragment. As far as l. 37 it is concerned with liquid measures, especially in relation to the cyathus, weights being expressed in drachmae; the last $2\frac{1}{2}$ lines deal with the mina and its subdivisions. The κόγχη, an uncommon measure, is mentioned in l. 30, with a novel weight assigned to it. Details are discussed in the commentary.

12. ορωντα: ν is practically certain and the very faint traces of the two preceding letters suit ρω, but joining ο is a descending stroke which is superfluous and seems to be merely a ligature. The stroke after ορωντα is a mark of punctuation.

lacunae in ll. 35-6 were filled is in any case obscure. μύστρον (Hultsch, ii. 198-9) is somewhat less suitable than κοχλιάριον. The μέγα μύστρον has sometimes 2, sometimes 3 cyathi, but elsewhere is $\frac{1}{16}$ or $\frac{1}{18}$ κοτύλη i. e. $\frac{3}{8}$ or $\frac{1}{3}$ cyathus, while the μικρόν μύστρον is $\frac{1}{22}$ or $\frac{1}{24}$ κοτύλη, i. e. $\frac{3}{11}$ or $\frac{1}{4}$ cyathus, which is not very close to $\frac{1}{8}$ cyathus. The μυστήριον or λίστριον, which is rarely mentioned, is the same as the μικρόν μύστρον, and unlikely to be distinguished as μέγα and μικρόν: but two kinds of κάρνα are known, the βασιλικόν, which weighed 4 drachmae in the Cleop. tab., but elsewhere 7 drachmae (Hultsch, i. 243. 8), and the Ποντικόν, which weighed 1 drachma (Hultsch, i. 243. 9), so that καρνόν is as good as κοχλιάριον in l. 33. οὖν is not very satisfactory, and the ο is uncertain; but to καλρυ(ο)ν there is the objection that the tail of a ρ ought to have been visible. In the absence of any known measure of which the smaller size was $\frac{1}{8}$ cyathus and weighed $1\frac{1}{2}$ drachmae, the name to which μεγα and μικρον refer and even the supposed connexion between ll. 34-6 remain doubtful. The stroke before the figures in l. 36 is smaller than that after τετ in l. 31 and may belong to a letter (e. g. θ or μ) above the line.

1610. EPHORUS, xii (or xi).

Frs. 12 + 13 15.2 × 9.1 cm. Late second or early third century. Plate III (Frs. 1, 4-6, 15).

These 60 fragments (originally about 70) of a lost historical work were found with 1611, 1619, &c.; cf. 1619. int. They are mostly quite small, the longest containing less than 20 complete lines; but owing to frequent correspondences with Diodorus xi. 59 sqq. a large amount of restoration is possible, and about 100 lines in all are intelligible. In at least 16 cases the context of the fragments can be established, and in spite of their unpromising appearance they constitute a valuable find, especially since they deal with events in the Pentecontaetia, which are for the most part outside the scope of Herodotus' history, and are only briefly sketched by Thucydides.

The handwriting is a handsome upright uncial approximating towards the biblical type, like 1234, 1365, and 1606, but more calligraphic than the first two. 1012 and 1611 are also written in similar hands, but smaller. The date of the papyrus is not later than the early part of the third century and may go back to the latter part of the second, being approximately A.D. 200. There are no lection-marks except the common angular signs for filling up short lines, paragraphi, and high stops. Pauses are sometimes also indicated by blank spaces. The only correction is the deletion of the iota adscript of απεθνηισκον in l. 104: elsewhere (ll. 105 and 198, but not in l. 60?) iota adscript was generally written, and, so far as can be judged, the scribe was more careful than the average. The lines were short, ranging from 12-17 letters and usually consisting of 14 or 15. The height of the columns is uncertain. All the fragments come or may come from the middles of columns, except where it is otherwise stated. There is no external evidence to show their order, and the chronology of the twenty years following the battle of Plataea is in many points uncertain. The arrangement of Frs. 1-16 in the text is based on the order of the corresponding passages in Diodorus, and admits of little doubt. That Frs. 1-5 preceded 6 is clear from the reference to a change of subject in l. 37.

Of the three groups into which Frs. 1-16 fall the first, containing Frs. 1-5 (ll. 1-35; cf. ll. 36-7), is concerned with Themistocles. The most intelligible of them is Fr. 3, which comes from an estimate of his character and agrees very closely with a passage in Diod. xi. 59, no fewer than 13 consecutive words being identical; cf. p. 102. In Frs. 2 and 4+5 the division of lines is uncertain, and the resemblances to Diodorus are less marked, especially in the second half of Frs. 4+5, which does not correspond at all; but the points of agreement with Diodorus (cf. ll. 15-17 and 18 sqq., nn.) are sufficient to show that these fragments refer to other parts of the same chapter as Fr. 3, and are to be placed Fr. 2 shortly before Fr. 3, and Frs. 4+5 almost immediately after it. The small Frs. 26 and 38 also may belong to the character of Themistocles; cf. ll. 192-4 and 237-9, nn. Fr. 1, in which Themistocles is mentioned in l. 7, presents greater difficulties, since not only are the ends of lines missing, but no direct parallelism to Diodorus is traceable. Probably ll. 7 sqq. refer to the reception of Themistocles by Xerxes at the Persian court, which in Diodorus precedes the character of Themistocles, and the allusion in l. 8 to the statements of οἱ μὲν is to be connected with the ancient discrepancies among historians as to both the reigning king (Artaxerxes according to Thucydides and Charon, Xerxes according to Ephorus, Dinon, and others), and the circumstances attending Themistocles' arrival; cf. ll. 7-12, n. That our author, like Diodorus but unlike Plutarch, favoured views opposed to that of Thucydides is clear from his general support of Diodorus, especially with regard to the accession of Artaxerxes (Frs. 15-16); but the influence of Thucydides' language is apparent in ll. 11-12 and evident later in Fr. 6. It is also possible that Fr. 31 is to be connected with Thucydides' and Diodorus' accounts of the presents of land made by the Persian king to Themistocles (ll. 213-14, n.), and Frs. 18 and 41 with Diodorus' account of the adventures of Themistocles in Persia. Fr. 41 in that case comes shortly before Fr. 1 (ll. 246-8, n.), while Fr. 18, if the context has been rightly caught (ll. 140-5, n.), may be placed between Frs. 1 and 2, preceding Fr. 31, if that fragment too refers to Themistocles.

The second group, consisting of Frs. 6-14, is concerned with Cimon's operations in the Aegean and Southern Mediterranean against the Persians, which are summarized by Thuc. i. 98-100 and more fully treated by Diodorus and Plutarch.

The end of a digression (i.e. the excursus upon the career of Themistocles) is announced in ll. 36-7, and in l. 37 a new section begins, just as in Diodorus, with the departure of the Greek fleet from Byzantium. This town had evidently already passed out of the possession of Pausanias according to our author, as is also implied by Diodorus and Plutarch, but not by Thucydides, whose indefiniteness as to the date of Pausanias' expulsion (i. 131), coupled with a statement in Justin ix. 1 that Pausanias held the city for seven years, has led to a controversy whether the transference of Byzantium to the Athenians took place in 476 or 470 B. C.; cf. Busolt, Griech. Gesch. iii. 96¹. 1610 supports the earlier date. Our author's account of the capture of Eion on the Strymon is clearly borrowed with hardly any variation from Thucydides, Herodotus' story of the heroic defence of the Persian governor being ignored. Diodorus here adds a sentence about the Athenian projects, which is probably his own invention (cf. p. 103); but his description of the capture of Eion is apart from some unnecessary verbiage equally brief, being somewhat closer to our author than to Thucydides and having the same general construction of the sentence (ll. 37-46, n.). Plutarch's account, based on Herodotus, is much longer.

The next event recorded is the capture of Scyros (l. 46), which is briefly mentioned by Thucydides and Diodorus. Our author, however, seems to have, like Plutarch, devoted much more space to this episode, which led to one of Cimon's most popular exploits, the recovery of the bones of Theseus. After l. 46 Fr. 6 breaks off; but it is practically certain that Fr. 7, which mentions 'king Lyco[medes]', is from an account of the Theseus story introduced, as by Plutarch, in connexion with Cimon's capture of Scyros (ll. 49-51, n.), and probably Fr. 35, which mentions the Pelasgians, is to be placed between Frs. 7 and 8. It is significant that Diodorus' reference to the Pelasgians at Scyros is not only the sole mention of them in Book xi, but is also, except the mention of Byzantium, the one detail in his account of the operations at Eion and Scyros which is not ultimately traceable to Thucydides.

After the capture of Scyros Thuc. i. 98. 3-4 proceeds to describe a war with Carystus in Euboea and the revolt of Naxos before coming to the twofold battle of the Eurymedon by sea and land (i. 100. 1). Diodorus on the other hand, ignoring the first two events, but mentioning Cimon's return to Athens in quest of reinforcements, narrates the operations in Caria which led up to a naval battle off the coast of Cyprus on the same day as the land-battle of the Eurymedon. The inherent improbability of Diodorus' account of the double victory, especially on account of the distance of Cyprus from the Eurymedon and the night-attack, which is a favourite stratagem in Diodorus' battles, has been generally recognized and ascribed to his use of Ephorus; cf. e.g. Busolt, iii. 146⁵. Our author's account evidently agreed closely with that of Diodorus, but probably narrated some events omitted by him; cf. Fr. 39 for a possible reference to the Euboean war. Fr. 8 is with the exception of a couple of words and a difference of order identical with a passage in Diodorus' description of the Carian operations, while Frs. 9 + 10. i + 53, which narrate the sea-fight off Cyprus, are also couched in very similar language. The numbers of the ships on both sides taking part in the naval engagement agree exactly with the figures of Diodorus, the figure of the Persian ships being practically in accordance with that ascribed to Ephorus by Plutarch (350 Ephorus; 340 1610 and Diodorus; Phanodemus' figure, 600, is an obvious exaggeration); but the number of ships captured by Cimon is stated to have been 100, as in the metrical inscription which is quoted (no doubt from Ephorus) by Diodorus and is perhaps represented by Fr. 48 (cf. p. 102), and in Lycurgus and Aristodemus, whereas Diodorus himself gives the number as 'more than 100', being perhaps influenced by the different figure mentioned by Thucydides (ll. 62-76, n.). A detail omitted by Diodorus, the capture of a Persian admiral, is recorded in ll. 75 sqq., and the remains of Fr. 10. ii do not clearly correspond to any passage in Diodorus near this point, being too slight for certain reconstruction (cf. ll. 77-8, n. for a suggestion). Probably they belong to the early part of the description of the land-battle of the Eurymedon, and are to be placed not long before Fr. 11, which records the killing of the Persian general of the land-forces, Pherendates, in language practically identical with that of Diodorus. This coincidence is of great importance for deciding the question of the authorship of 1610, for from Plutarch it is known that Pherendates' name occurred in Ephorus, from whom Diodorus no doubt obtained it; cf. p. 106. Frs. 12 + 13 continue the account of the land-battle, and since they constitute the longest connected piece, afford the best material for a comparison between our author and Diodorus. The general resemblance between them is very marked, ll. 94-101 presenting only trifling variants (cf. pp. 103-4); in ll. 101-12 1610 gives the more precise details about the destruction of the Persians, while Diodorus enlarges upon the absence of the moon and its effects; cf. p. 124. The small Fr. 14 probably came immediately after Frs. 12 + 13 (l. 114 can even belong to ll. 112 or 113), and describes one of Cimon's tactics in the land-battle in terms similar to but not identical with those of Diodorus. Concerning the date of the battle of the Eurymedon, which has been ascribed to various years between 470 and 465 B. C. (autumn of 468 Busolt), the papyrus gives no new information beyond its general support of Diodorus, who assigns the engagement to 470, but is very confused throughout the Pentecontaëtia in adapting his authority, Ephorus, to his own chronological system (cf. p. 110). It is noteworthy that 1610 agrees with Diodorus and Frontinus as to the locality of the two battles, while Polyaenus, who has been sometimes supposed to represent Ephorus on this point more exactly than Diodorus (Busolt, l. c.), inverts the scene, ascribing the land-battle to Cyprus, the sea-fight to the Eurymedon (ll. 62-76, n.). The battle of the Eurymedon tended in ancient times to become confused with Cimon's later operations at Cyprus in connexion with the Egyptian expedition, and all details of later historians concerning it which are inconsistent with the statements of Thucydides are usually rejected. The small Fr. 48, if it belongs to the inscription about Cimon's victories which is quoted by Diodorus, is to be placed after Fr. 14 (ll. 267-9, n.), and Fr. 28 also perhaps refers to the land-battle of the Eurymedon, coming shortly before Fr. 11 (ll. 200-2, n.).

After the battle of the Eurymedon Diodorus (xi. 63-8) proceeds to narrate first the revolt of the Helots and Messenians from Sparta, secondly the war between Argos and Mycenae, and then turns to Sicilian affairs before reverting to Persian. The corresponding portion of 1610 is missing, unless Fr. 43 refers to the revolt of the Helots (ll. 252-4, n.), and Fr. 41 to the Argive-Mycenean war (ll. 246-8, n.).

The third section of the papyrus consists of Frs. 15 and 16, which both refer to Persian affairs. Fr. 16, which relates to the plot of Artabanus to kill Xerxes and seize the throne, is almost verbally identical with Diodorus. The context of Fr. 15, which mentions Artaxerxes, is not quite certain owing to the incompleteness of the lines; but most probably this fragment too is concerned with the plot of Artabanus, and immediately preceded Fr. 16, affording apparent points of contact with both Diodorus and Justin (ll. 119 sqq., n.).

With regard to Frs. 17-62, Fr. 53 has been assigned to ll. 67-9 (p. 101), and the most likely positions for Frs. 26 (p. 99), 35 (p. 100), and 48 (p. 102) have been indicated, while suggestions have also been made for the possible context of Frs. 18 (p. 99), 28 (p. 102), 31 (p. 99), 38 (p. 99), 39 (p. 101), 41 (p. 99), and 43 (p. 102). Fr. 17 seems to belong to a geographical description of some place in connexion with a battle, being comparable e.g. to Diodorus' description of Plataea, but referring to a different place (ll. 134-9, n.). The remaining fragments contain hardly any complete words, and no more instances of a clear correspondence with Diodorus have been detected.

The relation of our author to Diodorus will be made clearer by the following table of agreements and contrasts.

(1) Exact correspondences of 1610 with Diodorus. ll. 18-22 (ἐκείνον μὲν ὑπὸ τῆς πόλεως ἡτιμασμένον τὴν δὲ πόλιν διὰ τὰς ἐκείνου πράξεις); 30-1 (χαλεπωτάτην . . . πρὸς ἐκείνον); 56-61 (παραθαλαττίων . . . πόλεων ὅσαι μὲν ἐκ τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἦσαν ἀποφικισμέναι παραχρῆμα συν[έπεισε, with a slight alteration in the order; v. inf.); 63-9 (τὸν τῶν Περσῶν στόλον περὶ [τὴν Κύπρον] . . . (2) Inexact correspondences with Diodorus (additions of Diodorus other than verbal changes are in round brackets).

(3) Omissions in Diodorus. ll. 7-14 (different accounts of Themistocles' reception by Xerxes); 15, 25-6, and 32-5 (sentences in the estimate of Themistocles); 47-51 and 228-30? (the episode of Cimon's recovery of the bones of Theseus); 57 (καλουμένων); 75-6 (capture of a Persian admiral); 87 (ὄντα); 119-22 and 125-7 (details of the plot of Artabanus). Besides these ll. 1-7, 52-5, 77-83, 111-13, and 134-9, all of which are incomplete and obscure, seem to belong to passages not corresponding to anything in Diodorus, as is also the case with many of the minor fragments.

Where 1610 and Diodorus agree as to the sense, but express themselves differently, sometimes one, sometimes the other is longer; but on the whole Diodorus in the chapters covered by 1610 is distinctly the shorter of the two, details and even whole episodes which occur in 1610 being absent in his work. We postpone the discussion of the few passages in which he is fuller than 1610, until the question of the authorship of the papyrus has been decided (cf. p. 111); for the present it is sufficient to point out that none of Diodorus' additional sentences or phrases contains anything striking or implies any real divergence from 1610, except perhaps in l. 74 (πλείους τῶν ἑκατόν for 1610's ἑκατόν with regard to the number of ships captured by Cimon off Cyprus). Beside the conspicuous points of agreement the differences between 1610 and Diodorus, apart from his omissions, in any case appear trivial.

The remarkably close resemblance between our author and Diodorus must be explained in one of three ways. Either one of the two writers was copying the other, or they derived their common information from the same source, i. e. from the historian who is now always supposed to underlie Diodorus' account of the Pentecontaëtia, Ephorus. Between these alternatives the choice admits in our opinion of hardly any doubt. The agreements between 1610 and Diodorus, which sometimes amount to the identity of a whole sentence and extend over not only the narrative but moral reflexions upon the character of individuals, are too marked to be explained satisfactorily by the hypothesis of a common source; and there is no historian among Ephorus' contemporaries and successors who has any particular claim to be regarded as the author of 1610. Theopompus, apart from the great antecedent improbability that he would slavishly copy Ephorus (or Ephorus him), dealt with the Pentecontaëtia in an excursus upon Athenian demagogues in Book x of the Φιλιππικά (Fr. 90 Grenfell-Hunt), whereas 1610 has all the appearance of belonging to a comprehensive history of Greece. The detailed description of the plot of Artabanus (Frs. 15-16), which is probably in part derived from Ctesias (ll. 119 sqq., n.), does not at all suggest an 'Arθίς, and Phanodemus at any rate is excluded by his divergence from 1610 as to the size of the Persian fleet in the sea-fight off the Eurymedon or Cyprus (ll. 62-76, n.). Callisthenes—apart from the fact that his histories primarily dealt with the fourth century B.C.—is excluded by his disagreement with 1610 on the subject of the name of the Persian general of the land-forces in the battle of the Eurymedon (ll. 84-8, n.). Of the historians (other than Ephorus), who according to Plut. Themist. 27 (cf. ll. 7-12, n.) represented Themistocles as a suppliant to Xerxes, like 1610, Dinon and Heraclides wrote histories of Persia, not of Greece, Clitarchus an account of Alexander's Asiatic campaigns. Cratippus, whose claims required to be considered in connexion with the Hellenica Oxyrhynchia (842), wrote a continuation of Thucydides. 1610 might conceivably be the work of another historian of about the age of Diodorus, following Ephorus with equal fidelity; but it is much more likely that the agreements between 1610 and Diodorus are due to the circumstance that one work was the immediate authority for the other.

The hypothesis that 1610 is based upon Diodorus may safely be dismissed. The papyrus was written only about two centuries after him, and the view that it represents the work of a historian of the Roman period, who was copying Diodorus, is open to several objections. Of Diodorus himself there are no extant papyri and Plutarch is equally unrepresented. The circulation in Egypt of the works of the later Greek historians was evidently rather limited, and about A.D. 200 people still preferred the more famous writers (cf. p. 110). The partial survival of Diodorus, who is never cited by heathen writers, though the title of his history was known to Pliny, is due to the circumstance that his work happened to suit the Christians (Schwartz in Pauly-Wissowa, Realencycl. v. 664); and to suppose that he served as the main authority for another and still more elaborate history of Greece composed not later than A.D. 150 is to attribute to him an importance to which he has no claim. 12, a historical composition of the Roman period in Egypt, illustrates the kind of synchronistic Graeco-Roman annals which were utilized by Diodorus (cf. Schwartz, op. cit. v. 665), but bears no resemblance to 1610. A survey of the differences between our author's and Diodorus' accounts of the same events (cf. pp. 102-4) is distinctly unfavourable to the hypothesis that 1610 is the later of the two. Thus in narrating the capture of Scyros our author is much more detailed, describing incidents which are ignored by Thucydides and Diodorus, but not by Plutarch. The new details in 1610 concerning the sea and land battles near the Eurymedon, though perhaps of no great historical value, at any rate indicate a serious historian of a higher calibre and distinctly better informed than Diodorus. There is every reason to suppose that our author was earlier, not later, than Diodorus, and the way is now clear for a discussion of the remaining hypothesis, that Diodorus was copying our author, who is no other than Ephorus himself.

The identification of our author with Ephorus is supported by many considerations. (1) Ephorus was a well-known and popular writer, extensively used by writers of the Roman period, so that his works would be expected to turn up in Egypt.

(2) The most important argument of all is that 1610 coincides with Ephorus and Diodorus both as to the visit of Themistocles to Xerxes, not Artaxerxes (cf. p. 99), and the name of the Persian general Pherendates (ll. 84-8, n.), while 1610's and Diodorus' figure (340) of the ships in the Persian fleet in the sea-battle off Cyprus is practically identical with the figure (350) ascribed to Ephorus (ll. 62-76, n.). The slight difference may well be due either to a corruption in the MSS. of Plutarch (ν for μ), or to a rounding-off of Ephorus' figure by that writer. These three are the only extant pieces of direct evidence concerning Ephorus' narrative of the events covered by the papyrus, and the coincidence with regard to Pherendates, whose name is a certain restoration in l. 86, is particularly weighty.

(3) The close relationship between 1610 and Diodorus, though this resemblance often extends beyond the point which with the scanty available evidence could hitherto be proved as regards Ephorus and Diodorus, is in the main such as has been generally considered to exist between those two historians; cf. pp. 105 and 111-2 and Schwartz, op. cit. v. 679.

(4) The general relation of 1610 to Plutarch, who has been thought (e.g. by Busolt) to have followed other historians, e.g. Theopompus, Heraclides, and Callisthenes, more than Ephorus in dealing with the Pentecontaëtia, is also quite in keeping with what would be expected to be found in Ephorus. Particular statements of Plutarch with regard to Ephorus are verified (all three pieces of evidence discussed in (2) are obtained from Plutarch); but as a rule Plutarch preferred a different authority, though his account of Cimon's recovery of the bones of Theseus may have been obtained from 1610 (ll. 49-51, n.).

(5) The traces of connexion between 1610 and (1) Justin (ll. 119 sqq., n.), who certainly used Ephorus, (2) Polyænus, (3) Frontinus (ll. 62-76, n.), and (4) Aristodemus (ll. 7-12, 62-76, nn.), are such as would be expected to occur, if Ephorus is the author.

(6) The account of the capture of Eion in 1610 (ll. 37-46, n.) is borrowed straight from Thucydides, whom Ephorus is supposed to have used. Elsewhere he differs conspicuously from Thucydides, as was known, with regard to two incidents which occur in 1610, the appeal of Themistocles to Xerxes and the sea-fight off Cyprus (ll. 7-12 and 62-76, nn.), an apparent indirect allusion being made to Thucydides' account of the former incident.

(7) The arrangement of the narrative in 1610, in which events are evidently grouped not annalistically as in Thucydides, but rather according to subject, is in accordance with the definite statement of Diodorus v. 1 concerning the arrangement adopted by Ephorus (κατὰ γένος: cf. p. 110).

(8) The disposition of our author to digress and moralize, which is illustrated by his excursus upon Themistocles, is quite in harmony with Polybius' reference (xii. 28) to Ephorus' fondness for παρεκβάσεις and γνωμολογίαι.

(9) The interest shown by our author in antiquarian lore, exemplified by the excursus on Theseus (p. 100), accords very well with Ephorus' known interest in that subject (cf. Schwartz, op. cit. vi. 13).

(10) The prominence of the Athenians in 1610 is in keeping with the supposed sympathies of Ephorus (cf. Schwartz, op. cit. vi. 14), though these have been disputed (cf. Walker, Hell. Oxy. 107).

(11) The historical arguments are to some extent reinforced by linguistic evidence, for there is a general similarity of style between 1610 and the extant fragments of Ephorus. Actual quotations of his words are very few, but there are occasional agreements in them with 1610 in points of diction (cf. ll. 26, 94-9, 102-4, 114-16, nn.), though these are not very striking. The careful avoidance of hiatus (cf. ll. 59-60), the monotonous frequency of antitheses, and a decided tendency to verbosity, especially in the reflexions upon Themistocles, accord very fairly with the judgements of ancient critics upon Ephorus' style; cf. Cicero, Hortens. Fr. 12 quid . . . Ephoro mitius inveniri potest?; Brut. 204 lenissimum

Ephori ingenium; Dio Chrys. xviii, p. 283 Ἐφορος δὲ πολλὴν μὲν ἱστορίαν παραδίδωσιν, τὸ δὲ ὕπτιον καὶ ἀνειμένον τῆς ἀπαγγελίας σοι οὐκ ἐπιτήδειον. The digression on Themistocles, if, as is practically certain, the whole of Diod. xi. 58. 4-59 was taken with very little change from our author, contains somewhat more rhetoric than would be expected to appear in Ephorus, and is nearer to Frs. 217 and 283 (Grenfell-Hunt) of Theopompus, which also have a series of rhetorical questions, than to anything in Ephorus' extant fragments. But for reasons which have been given (p. 105) Theopompus is quite unsuitable as the author of 1610, and in spite of the well-known saying of Isocrates about his two illustrious pupils that Ephorus required the spur, Theopompus the bit, the two disciples of that master probably had many rhetorical devices in common.

Our conclusion therefore is that at last there is a papyrus which, especially in view of its coincidences with fragments of Ephorus, and its close agreements with Diodorus, can be ascribed to Ephorus with overwhelming probability.

The books of Ephorus' Ἱστορίαι which dealt with the period round that which is covered by 1610 were x-xiii; cf. Schwartz, op. cit. vi. 5. Fr. 107 (Müller) from Book x is concerned with Miltiades at Paros and belongs to the interval between Marathon and Salamis. A fragment from Schol. Aristid. p. 515. 22 (Müller, FHG. iv. 642) refers to the fine of 50 talents imposed on Miltiades and paid by Cimon when a young man (Plut. Cimon 4), i. e. before the events recorded in 1610. The scholiast gives as his source Ἐφορος ἐν τῇ πρώτῃ, which is usually corrected to ἐνδεκάτῃ. There is also a difficulty about the number of the book in Eph. Fr. 109; for his discussion of various opinions upon the causes of the rise of the Nile is ascribed by most MSS. of Theo Progymn. to Book xi, but one MS. has ἐν τῇ πέμπτῃ in the margin, and Joannes Lydus, in referring to the same discussion, attributes it τῇ πρώτῃ, which has been usually corrected, as in the other case, to ἐνδεκάτῃ. Müller accepts πέμπτῃ as right on the reasonable, and in our opinion sufficient ground that Book v was geographical and is known to have been concerned with Asia and Libya; but Schwartz (l. c.) accepts ἐνδεκάτῃ, suggesting (what does not seem very probable) that an excursus on Egypt may have occurred in connexion with the revolt of Inarus, which is narrated by Diodorus in the chapters immediately following those corresponding to Frs. 15-16 of 1610. After Fr. 109 there is no fragment of Ephorus which can be assigned with certainty to a particular event and book until Fr. 126 from Book xvii is reached. This records the death of Alcibiades and corresponds to Diod. xiv. 11. Fr. 110, however, a mention of a Sicilian island Τυχία in Book xii, is doubtfully connected by Schwartz (l. c.) with the expulsion of Thrasybulus from Syracuse in about 466 B. C. (Diod. xi. 68), and Fr. 124, a mention of Ἐντελα in Sicily in Book xvi, is thought by him to refer probably to the early history of Dionysius (cf. Diod. xiv. 9). It is therefore not clear to which book 1610 belonged; but evidently xi or xii is the most suitable.

The new discovery in any case adds fresh fuel to the controversy concerning the authorship of two other papyri from the same site, the Hellenica Oxyrhynchia (842) and a fragment concerning the Orthagoridae in Sicyon (1365). In our first edition of 842 we discussed the claims of Ephorus, Theopompus, and Cratippus to be regarded as the author, and eventually decided doubtfully in favour of Theopompus, a hypothesis which was advocated by E. Meyer and found considerable favour in Germany, but very little in this country. The claims of Cratippus were formerly advocated by Walker (Klio viii. 356-71) and are still supported by the latest editor of the Hell. Oxy., J. H. Lipsius. The case for Ephorus has been well stated by Judeich (Rhein. Mus. 1911. 94-139), and more fully by Walker (Hell. Oxy. 1912), whose able advocacy has gained many adherents. With regard to 1365 our view that Ephorus (or Aristotle?) might be the author has been disputed by M. Lenchantin de Gubernatis (Atti Acc. Torino, li. 290-305), on the ground that the oracle mentioned by Diodorus referred to Andreas himself, implying that he was to be the first tyrant, whereas 1365 states that Andreas' son Orthagoras was the first tyrant. This objection, however, does not seem to us insuperable, for Diodorus' words are ὅτι Σικωνίοις ἔχρησεν ἡ Πυθία ἑκατὸν ἔτη μαστιγονομῆσθαι αὐτοῦς, ἐπερωτησάντων δὲ αὐτῶν τίς ὁ ταῦτα ποιήσων πάλιν ἀπεκρίθη ὃ ἂν καταπλεύσαντες πρώτῳ γεγενημένον υἱὸν ἀκούσωσιν . . ., which points to the υἱός (Orthagoras) as the important person.

The authorship of 842 is too large a question to be adequately rediscussed here, but the main bearings of the new find upon the problem, assuming that we are right in attributing 1610 to Ephorus, may be indicated. Firstly, the agreements between 842 and Diodorus, which could only be explained by his direct or indirect use of the author of 842, and which constituted the most solid argument in favour of the view that Ephorus was the writer in question (cf. Part v. 125-7; Walker, op. cit. 50 sqq.), are less marked indeed than the correspondences of 1610 with Diodorus in Frs. 3, 8-11, 16, but are on much the same level as those in Frs. 4-6, 12+13, 15. Secondly, the relation of 842 to Plutarch and Justin is similar to that of 1610 to those authors. In both papyri the connexion with Plutarch is slight, but their influence upon Justin is traceable. Thirdly, the scale of the history in the two papyri is not dissimilar, when allowances are made for the comparative paucity of evidence for the more ancient period. 1610, though its account of the capture of Eion reproduces the brevity of Thucydides, not the details of Herodotus (cf. ll. 37-46, n.), was evidently on a large scale, being even more detailed than Diodorus, so far as can be judged. Hence the discovery of 1610 goes some way to remove the supposed difficulty (cf. Part v, l. c., and in answer to it Walker, op. cit. 32 sqq.) that Ephorus' history was less detailed than 842. Fourthly, while in 842 the narrative was arranged chronologically in the style of Thucydides, in 1610 the arrangement bears no sign of being annalistic, and was evidently to a large extent according to subject; cf. p. 107. Here 1610 rather damages the position of Judeich, who (op. cit. 110) minimized one of the chief difficulties in the attribution of 842 to Ephorus, the fact that according to Diodorus v. 1 Ephorus' history was arranged κατὰ γένος, and maintained that Ephorus did write more or less annalistically. Walker's position, on the other hand, is less affected, for he had acutely divined (op. cit. 30-1) from Diodorus' account of the Pentecontaëtia that Ephorus' account of it was arranged according to subject, not annalistically, just as in fact 1610 shows it to have been with regard to two of the three incidents selected by Walker as evidence (Themistocles in Persia, and Cimon's operations up to the battle of the Eurymedon). This divergence, however, between 1610 and 842 (which belongs to Book xviii, if it is by Ephorus) remains something of a difficulty in spite of Walker's arguments (op. cit. 32 sqq.) for the view that in the later books of Ephorus greater respect was paid to the annalistic method. Fifthly, speeches in the style of Thucydides do not occur in either papyrus, but each of them has at least one excursus (842 on the Boeotian constitution, 1610 on Themistocles; that in 842. x on the character of an individual is too incomplete to be at all intelligible). Lastly, there are rather more agreements in diction between 1610 and 842 (cf. 15-17, 56-61, 73-4, 94-9, 101, 104, 121, 123, nn.) than between 1610 and the extant fragments of Ephorus (cf. p. 107), which owing to the length of 842 is not surprising, and the general style of 842 is not unlike that of 1610.

With regard to 1365, the circumstance that the parallel account in a fragment of Diodorus breaks off just before the point at which the papyrus begins prevents us from knowing the extent of their resemblance; but they combine in most respects remarkably well. The fondness for the genitive absolute and the repetition of the article with an adjective placed after a substantive, which were noted (Part xi. 107) as characteristics of 1365, do not appear in 1610, but the general style is not at all dissimilar. The wide range of the library to which 1610 belonged and, to a less extent, that of the library containing 842 (1365 was found with only a couple of Homeric fragments) render us unwilling to lay much stress on the circumstance that all three papyri, which are approximately contemporaneous, come from the same site. In about A.D. 200 copies of most of the Greek authors of the first rank and many of the second and third were probably still in circulation at Oxyrhynchus. But the historian who would be expected to come next in popularity to Herodotus, Thucydides, and Xenophon is Ephorus, not Theopompus, whose works had already begun to perish in Diodorus' time (Theop. Fr. 28 Grenfell-Hunt, βύβλους ὀκτὼ πρὸς ταῖς πεντήκοντα ἐξ ὧν πέντε διαφωνοῦσιν); and if, as we are rather disposed to infer from the joint connexion with Diodorus, 842, 1365, and 1610 are the work of one author, he is certainly Ephorus.

To summarize the chief points of value in 1610 from the point of view of our identification of its author with Ephorus, (1) the most important is that it enables us to realize for the first time at all adequately the debt of Diodorus, particularly in Book xi, to that author. That the younger historian was under great obligations to the older has long been supposed, but, since Diodorus also used various other authors, the extent and method of his use of Ephorus, whose name he rarely mentions, had nearly always to be guessed rather than proved. That he sometimes incorporated whole sentences or even chapters with little or no change, at other times merely paraphrased or abbreviated his main authority, compressing some details and omitting some episodes altogether, but adding, so far as 1610 goes (cf. pp. 102-4), hardly anything of his own, is not only new but very valuable information. Where Diodorus is perceptibly longer than or different from Ephorus in 1610, the new matter is probably in the main an amplification introduced for the sake of variety (ll. 37-46, 101-10) or a mere rhetorical exaggeration (ll. 69-75), though in regard to the latter passage some of Diodorus' variations may be due to deference for Thucydides (ll. 62-76, n.). It is particularly instructive that Diodorus' account of the twofold battle of the Eurymedon, which is just one of the cases where his precise relation to Ephorus was most in doubt owing to the divergent evidence of Polyaeus (ll. 62-76, n.), proves to be on the whole a very faithful reproduction of the older historian, and that a digression such as that in Diod. xi. 58. 4-59 on Themistocles is now shown to have been borrowed almost verbally from Ephorus. Evidently Diodorus was a writer of very slight originality, and a future editor of Ephorus' fragments will be able to include most of Diod. xi with confidence. His debt to Ephorus in that book is almost as great as are his obligations to Agatharchides in iii. 12-48, where a comparison of Diodorus with the excerpts of Agatharchides Περὶ τῆς ἐρυθρᾶς θαλάσσης preserved by Photius shows that everything in Diodorus down to the most minute details is borrowed from the older writer. Theopompus on the other hand, so far as the Pentecontaëtia is concerned, does not seem to have been utilized to any serious extent by Diodorus. The effect of 1610 upon the criticism of other books of Diodorus, especially xi-xv, is also likely to be considerable, but the discussion of these falls outside our present scope. It is clear, however, that much of Diodorus' work, which could be ignored, so long as his statements were regarded as merely those of a writer of the Augustan age, will henceforth have to be treated with the respect due to the celebrated fourth century B. C. historian whom he was to a large extent copying.

(2) There is now much more material for estimating the scale of Ephorus' history of the fifth century B. C. Diodorus seems to have incorporated most of the essential parts, but by no means all the details and digressions, and Ephorus, as is shown by the account of the land-battle of the Eurymedon and the plot of Artabanus, evidently wrote at very considerable length, though his account of the capture of Eion ignores the material available from Herodotus, and the sea-fight off Cyprus is described in a few lines. His system in dealing with the Pentecontaëtia was to group events by subjects, not by definite years, an arrangement which led Diodorus into great confusion about the chronology of this period. But in dealing with the fourth century B. C., which occupied the second half of Ephorus' ιστορίαι, he may have employed a different method.

(3) With regard to the sources of Ephorus, 1610 exhibits one clear case of direct borrowing from Thucydides (ll. 37-46, n.), and an apparent reference to him in an allusion to authorities vaguely described as οἱ μὲν (l. 8, n.); but in other respects 1610 comes into marked conflict with him; cf. p. 107. Herodotus is not utilized in connexion with the capture of Eion, and Frs. 15-16 do not display any verbal connexion with the Περσικά of Ctesias, though Diodorus' language in a passage in this context betrays a use of that author; cf. ll. 119 sqq., n. There is now more reason than ever to suppose that the metrical inscription upon Cimon's victories was quoted by Diodorus from Ephorus (ll. 267-9, n.).

(4) Of later writers, other than Diodorus, who dealt with the Pentecontaëtia, Plutarch kept Ephorus' history in view, but preferred to follow other authorities, while echoes of Ephorus are found in Justin, Aristodemus, Polyaeus, and Frontinus (p. 107).

(5) For Ephorus' style the evidence is still scanty, and it is difficult to judge it fairly from fragments so discontinuous and brief as those in 1610. But it does not seem to have been much better than that of Diodorus, the leading characteristics of it being easiness, verbosity, and tameness, with a tendency to break into rhetoric (cf. pp. 107-8).

and Diodorus often reach far beyond the point attained by 842, and the principal obstacle to the attribution of 842 to Ephorus remains in a somewhat accentuated form, the strictly chronological system imitated from Thucydides, which is found in 842, as contrasted with Ephorus' arrangement according to subject, which is well illustrated by 1610. With regard to 1365 there is less evidence for the extent of its resemblance to Diodorus, but the hypothesis that it came from an early book of Ephorus still remains attractive.

Ephorus, in spite of his celebrity and wealth of new information not to be found in Herodotus, Thucydides, or Xenophon, was not a great historian, and to judge by 1610 it may be doubted whether in his treatment of the fifth century B. C., which brought him into frequent conflict with Thucydides, many of the novelties were of real historical value. The servility of Diodorus, who, as it now appears, followed Ephorus almost blindly through that period, and was practically incapable of original composition, has probably prevented us from losing very much when Books x–xv of the older historian perished. With his history of the fourth century B. C. the case is different. Here Ephorus is likely to have been as well informed as Xenophon, Theopompus, or any other, and if he was the author of the account of Agesilaus' and Conon's campaigns and the excursus on the Boeotian constitution in 842, his merits were by no means inconsiderable. Even with regard to quite early Greek history he was sometimes, if 1365 is from his work, distinctly independent of Herodotus and rather valuable.

It is in any case satisfactory that with the recovery of these fragments of Ephorus' history of the Pentecontaëtia the 'higher criticism' of Diodorus not only can point henceforth to several substantial verifications of the methods of modern research in ancient history, but enters a new phase.

4-5. ἀνα]γ[κ]αῖον: the supposed γ could be ρ, but hardly τ, υ, or φ, which would make the beginning of l. 5 project, and λ could be read in place of α: εναγ][*γ*ε]λιον (cf. l. 12) is excluded by the fact that only the plural of this word occurs in Attic. Bury suggests επα][*ν*ε][*ν*αι ανα][*γ*κ]αιον [ε]στιν [*αυ*θις, referring to a previous account of the flight of Themistocles (Frs. 1-5 are themselves part of a digression anticipating the chronological order of events; cf. l. 37 and p. 99). The letter following ν can be ε, but the hiatus -ναι ανα- is an objection to this restoration; cf. p. 107.

6. ει][ς] τα: of the letter following ε all that survives is the tip of a stroke which might be vertical or horizontal. εντα or επτα could be read, but suggests no suitable word.

7-12. Cf. p. 99, Thuc. i. 137 *ἐσπέμπει γράμματα πρὸς βασιλέα Ἀρταξέρην τὸν Ξέρξου νεωστὶ βασιλεύοντα. ἐδήλον δὲ ἡ γραφή ὅτι Θεμιστοκλῆς ἦκω παρὰ σέ, ὃς κακὰ μὲν πλείστα Ἑλλήνων εἰργασμαι τὸν ὑμέτερον οἶκον, ὅσον χρόνον τὸν σὸν πατέρα ἐπιόντα ἐμοὶ ἀνάγκη ἡμυνόμεν, πολὺ δ' ἔτι πλείω ἀγαθὰ, ἐπειδὴ ἐν τῷ ἀσφαλεῖ μὲν ἐμοί, ἐκείνῳ δὲ ἐν ἐπικινδύνῳ πάλιν ἡ ἀποκομιδὴ ἐγίγνετο. καὶ μοι εὐεργεσία ὀφείλεται (γράφας τὴν τε ἐκ Σαλαμῖνος προάγγελσιν τῆς ἀναχωρήσεως καὶ τὴν τῶν γεφυρῶν, ἣν ψευδῶς προσεποιήσατο, τότε δι' αὐτὸν οὐ διάλυσιν), καὶ νῦν ἔχων . . . , Plut. Themist. 27 Θουκυδίδης μὲν οὖν καὶ Χάρων ὁ Λαμψακηνὸς ἰστοροῦσι τεθηγκότος Ξέρξου πρὸς τὸν υἱὸν αὐτοῦ τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ γενέσθαι τὴν ἐντευξιν. Ἐφορος δὲ καὶ Δεῖνων καὶ Κλείταρχος καὶ Ἡρακλίδης, ἔτι δ' ἄλλοι πλείονες, πρὸς αὐτὸν ἀφικέσθαι τὸν Ξέρξην. τοῖς δὲ χρονικοῖς δοκεῖ μᾶλλον ὁ Θουκυδίδης συμφέρεσθαι, καίπερ οὐδ' αὐτοῖς ἀτρέμα συνταττόμενος. The following account of the reception of Themistocles by Artabanus the χιλίαρχος, who is identical with the Artabanus to whom Frs. 15-16 refer (cf. ll. 119 sqq., n.), is stated by Plutarch to be derived from Phanias, with a few extra details obtained from Eratosthenes περὶ πλούτου, and Phanias too, as is observed by Busolt, iii. 132², seems to have represented Xerxes as still reigning at the time of Themistocles' arrival; cf. l. 8, n. Plutarch does not state his source for the two next chapters (28-9), which relate in detail the reception of Themistocles by the Persian king and the honours paid to him, being partly derived from Thucydides, partly from some one else (Heraclides? Busolt, iii. 129¹). A different version of the letter recorded by Thucydides is put into Themistocles' mouth, *ἦκω σοι, βασιλεῦ, Θεμιστοκλῆς . . . ᾧ πολλὰ μὲν ὀφείλουσι Πέρσαι κακὰ, πλείω δὲ ἀγαθὰ κωλύσαντι τὴν δίωξιν, ὅτε τῆς Ἑλλάδος ἐν ἀσφαλεῖ γενομένης παρέσχε τὰ οἴκοι σωζόμενα χάρισσασθαι τι καὶ ὑμῖν. Diodorus xi. 56. 8 shows more interest in the stratagem by which Lysithides introduced Themistocles to Xerxes (cf. ll. 246-8, n.) than in Themistocles' defence of himself before the king, which is described quite briefly *κακείνου δόντος τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ λόγον καὶ μαθόντος ὡς οὐδὲν ἡδίκησεν. Aristodemus 10 καὶ ὑπέμνησεν αὐτὸν (sc. Artaxerxes) τῶν εὐεργεσιῶν ἃς ἐδόκει κατατεθείσθαι εἰς τὸν πατέρα αὐτοῦ Ξέρξην, λέγων καὶ τῆς σωτηρίας αὐτῷ γεγενῆσθαι αἴτιος [ἐνδε]ίξα[ς λύσειν τοὺς Ἑλλ]ήνας τὸ ζεύγμα, though primarily based on Thucydides, shows traces of a knowledge of Ephorus; cf. ll. 62-76, n. Nepos (Themist. 9) follows Thucydides, scio plerosque ita scripsisse, Themistoclem Xerxe regnante in Asiam transisse. Sed ego potissimum Thucydidi credo . . ., quoting the letter to Artaxerxes Idem multo plura bona feci postquam in luto ipse et ille in periculo esse coepit. Nam cum in Asiam reverti vellet, proelio apud Salamina facto, litteris cum certiore feci id agi ut pons quem in Hellesponto fecerat dissolveretur atque ab hostibus circumiretur: quo nuntio ille periculo est liberatus. The earliest authority for the view that Xerxes, not Artaxerxes, was the king in question is Aeschines Socraticus quoted by Aristid. ii. 293 (cf. 1808). The date of Themistocles' arrival in Persia continues to be a matter of dispute: Busolt, iii. 132², sides with Thucydides, and assigns that event to a period shortly after the spring of 464.

8. οι μὲν: cf. the previous n. Thucydides is probably included, for the expressions in ll. 11-12 seem to be derived from him, though αυτ][ον is apparently Xerxes, not Artaxerxes, cf. the next n. Dinon may also be meant, for he was approximately Ephorus' contemporary. Clitarchus and Heraclides, who were younger, can hardly have been referred to by Ephorus, nor can Phanias (cf. the previous n.), who was the disciple of Aristotle.

8-9. υπε[μνησεν αυτον: we prefer υπε[μνησεν to ανε[μνησεν on account of the parallel in Aristodemus 10 cited above. His work, the date of which is unknown, is based mainly on Herodotus and Thucydides, but its frequent resemblances to Diodorus, especially as to the causes of the Peloponnesian War, suggest the use of Ephorus, and υπέμνησεν αὐτόν looks like a reminiscence of the present passage. αυτον, however, here is, we think, Xerxes not Artaxerxes, because (1) there is no mention of the king's father (cf. Thuc. l. c.); (2) the accession of Artaxerxes is described by Diodorus in a much later chapter, to which Frs. 15-16 refer; (3) Ephorus is definitely known to have agreed with the majority of historians that Xerxes was the reigning king. The difficulty is that owing to the loss of the second part of the sentence from l. 14 onwards it is not clear whether our author accepted the opinion of οἱ μέν or not. If he rejected it, then αυτον might be Artaxerxes and Fr. 1 would be more suitably placed after Fr. 16, with a backward reference in ll. 5-7 to the account of Themistocles in Persia which must in any case have preceded Frs. 2-5. This would have the advantage of making the suggested connexion between ll. 7-12 and both Thucydides and Aristodemus closer; but we are unwilling to separate Fr. 1 so widely from Frs. 2-5, seeing that Themistocles is the subject of them all. To retain Fr. 1 where it is, and make αυτον Artaxerxes, with a possible forward reference in ll. 5-7 to a subsequent mention of Artaxerxes, is a possible compromise; but with [προ]ήγγειλε the most natural dative to be supplied is αὐτῷ, i.e. Xerxes, not τῷ πατρὶ αὐτοῦ which would be required by the identification of αυτον with Artaxerxes.

10. ν[αυμα]χίας: cf. l. 13, Hdt. viii. 75, Thuc. l. c., Diod. xi. 17, Plut. Themist. 12 and 28.

11. της γ[εφυρας]: cf. Hdt. viii. 110 τὰς ἐν Ἑλλησπόντῳ γεφύρας λύνειν, Thuc. l. c., Diod. xi. 19. 5 τὸν παιδαγωγὸν τῶν ἰδίων νιῶν ἀπέστειλε πρὸς τὸν Ξέρξην δηλώσοντα διότι μέλλουσιν οἱ Ἕλληνες πλεῦσαντες ἐπὶ τὸ ζεύγμα λύνειν τὴν γέφυραν, and the next n. Diodorus' employment of the singular (Hdt. and Thuc. have the plural) confirms γ[εφυρας] here; but the stroke following της might be round just as well as straight.

12. [προ]ήγγειλε: cf. Thuc. l. c. προάγγελσιν. [εξ]ήγγειλε would also be suitable; cf. Plut. Them. 12 ὃν ἐκπέμπει πρὸς τὸν Ξέρξην κρύφα κελεύσας λέγειν ὅτι Θεμιστοκλῆς ὁ τῶν Ἀθηναίων στρατηγὸς αἰρούμενος τὰ βασιλείῳς ἐξαγγέλλει πρῶτος αὐτῷ τοὺς Ἕλληνας ἀποδιδράσκοντας.

With ἐσπούδ[ασε] cf. 842. xiv. 7 ἐσπούδαζον ἐκπολεμῶσαι.

Frs. 3-5. . . . ἐκ[εῖνον] μὲν ὑπὸ τῆς πόλε[ως] ἡτιμασμένον, τ[ὴν] δὲ πόλιν διὰ τ[ῆς] ἐκείνου πράξε[ις] τῆς μεγίστης τιμῆς ὑπὸ τῶν Ἑλλήνων ἀξιοθέσαν, ἡ μεγάλην [ἡγεμονίαν] οἶον . . . σο[φ]ωτάτην καὶ δικαιοτάτην τ[ὴν] καὶ χαλεπ[ωτάτην] γενομένην πρὸς ἐκ[εῖνον]. οἱ δ' ὑπολαμβάνουσιν ὅτι ἐ[περ] ἐβουλί[θη] ἐκ[εῖνος] δοῦναι τῇ[ν] ἡγεμονίαν . . .

ἐπιεικεστάτην χαλεπωτάτην πρὸς ἐκείνον εὐρίσκομεν γεγενημένην. εὐ[ρ]ω[μεν] is inadmissible in l. 18.

21-2. τ[α]ς ἐκεῖνου πράξεις: cf. ll. 193-4, where the phrase perhaps recurs, suggesting that Fr. 26 belongs to this context.

22-5. Diodorus has only one word here in place of seven: cf. p. 103.

26. [ηγεμονίαν]: cf. Ephorus Fr. 67 τελευτήσαντος γὰρ ἐκείνου (Epaminondas) τὴν ἡγεμονίαν ἀποβαλεῖν εὐθὺς τοὺς Θηβαίους. οἰονεῖ is inadmissible.

27-31. Cf. Diod. l. c. The division of lines in Frs. 4 + 5 is uncertain, but there is hardly any doubt that Fr. 5, containing the supposed ends of ll. 29-31, is rightly joined to the other. Bury suggests ἀλλως before σο[φ]ωτατην and μα[ταιο]τα[τ]η[ν] before κ[αί]. Cf. l. 32, n.

30-1. [γενο]μενην: [γεγενη]μειν (cf. Diod. l. c.) seems too long for the lacuna.

32. υ[πο]λαμβανουσιν: cf. ll. 94-9, n. The adopted restoration of ll. 32-5 was proposed by Bury. εβουλη[θη] εκδο[ναι] produces a hiatus, which is unsatisfactory (cf. ll. 4-5, n.); but προδο[ναι] seems too long, if χαλεπωτατην is the beginning of l. 30. With the division χολεπωτατην, however, προδο[ναι] could be read; cf. ll. 27-31, n. The division χαλεπωτατην would create a great difficulty in l. 31, for there would not be room for νη[ν] or σα[ν] and a participle is wanted there, the ν being nearly certain.

34. The vestige of a letter before ναι suggests γ, τ, or υ, so that τ[η]ν αι[αν] is unsatisfactory, though the doubtful η can be ι. απα[σαν] is possible, but with another word than ηγεμονια[ν], for which cf. l. 26, n.

Fr. 6. . . . εἰρη[μὲν] . . . , ὅθεν] παρεξ[έβ]ημεν. 'Α[θη]ναῖοι [δ]ὲ Κ[ί]μωνος τοῦ Μιλτιάδου στρατηγοῦ[ν]τος ἐκπλεύσαντες ἐκ Βυζαντίου μετὰ τῶν συμμάχων [Ἡ]όνα τὴν ἐπὶ Στρυμόνι Περσῶν ἐχόν[των] εἶλον καὶ [Σκύρον], ἣν νῆσ[ος] . . .

‘ . . . from which we digressed. The Athenians under the command of Cimon son of Miltiades sailed out from Byzantium with their allies, and captured Eion on the Strymon, which was in the possession of the Persians, and Scyros, which island . . .’

36-7. Probably τοῖς] εἰρη[μενοῖς] ὁ[ν]των] εἰρη[μενων]. For ὅθεν] cf. Arist. Elh. Nic. i. 5. 1 ὅθεν παρεξέβημεν, and for παρεξ[έβ]ημεν Diod. xi. 59. 4 περὶ μὲν οὖν τῆς Θεμιστοκλέους ἀρετῆς εἰ καὶ πεπλεονόκαμεν παρεκβάντες, ἀλλ’ οὖν οὐκ ἄξιον . . . The digression evidently contained the estimate of Themistocles (Frs. 2-5); but the fibres of the verso of Fr. 6 suggest that it belongs to a different column. Bury suggests something like ἐπαινωμεν δε τοσούτων περι του Θεμιστοκλέους] εἰρη[μενων]: cf. ll. 4-5, n.

37-46. Cf. pp. 99-100, Hdt. vii. 107, where the heroic defence of Eion by Βόγης is described in some detail, Thuc. i. 98 (the source of the present passage; cf. p. 107) πρῶτον μὲν Ἡίωνα τὴν ἐπὶ Στρυμόνι Μήδων ἐχόντων πολιορκία εἶλον καὶ ἡνδραπόδισαν, Κίμωνος τοῦ Μιλτιάδου στρατηγοῦντος. ἔπειτα Σκύρον τὴν ἐν τῷ Αἰγαίῳ νῆσον, ἣν ᾤκουν Δόλοπες, ἡνδραπόδισαν καὶ ᾤκισαν αὐτοί, and Diod. xi. 60. 1-2 Ἀθηναῖοι στρατηγὸν ἐλόμενοι Κίμωνα τὸν Μιλτιάδου κτλ. (cited on p. 103), which is longer than 1610, but adds nothing new about the capture of Eion, and bears distinct traces of derivation from 1610, especially the mentions of Byzantium and Pelasgi (cf. p. 100). Plutarch's account (Cimon 7) Κίμων δὲ τῶν συμμάχων ἥδη προσκεχωρηκότων αὐτῷ στρατηγὸς εἰς Θράκην ἔπλευσε, πυνθανόμενος Περσῶν ἄνδρας ἐνδόξους καὶ συγγενεῖς βασιλέως Ἡίωνα πόλιν παρὰ τῷ Στρυμόνι κειμένην ποταμῷ κατέχοντας ἐνοχλεῖν τοῖς περὶ τὸν τόπον ἐκείνον Ἕλλησι. πρῶτον μὲν οὖν αὐτοὺς μαχῇ τοὺς Πέρσας ἐνίκησε καὶ κατέκλεισεν εἰς τὴν πόλιν. ἔπειτα τοὺς ὑπὲρ Στρυμόνα Θράκας κτλ., which proceeds to narrate the story of Βόγης (here called Βούτης) told by Hdt., is based on other historians than Ephorus.

46. [Σκυρο]ν: cf. Thuc. and Diod. ll. cc. Our author was much more detailed; cf. Fr. 7.

Fr. 7. 49-51. Cf. p. 100 and Plut. Cimon 8, where the story of Cimon's recovery of the bones of Theseus is narrated in detail, being possibly based on Ephorus, especially the mention of Lycomedes, πυνθανόμενος δὲ τὸν παλαιὸν Θησέα τὸν Αἰγέως φυγόντα μὲν ἐξ Ἀθηνῶν εἰς Σκύρον, αὐτοῦ δ' ἀποθνήσκοντα δόλω διὰ φόβον ὑπὸ Λυκομήδους τοῦ βασιλέως ἐσπούδασε τὸν τάφον ἀνευρεῖν. αν[τον δε πρ]ος would make l. 50 rather short, but perhaps αν[τος (sc. Theseus) δ(ε) . . . μεν]ος should be read. Fr. 35, which mentions the Pelasgians and a κα]ταφυγ[ή], is probably to be connected with the episode; cf. p. 100.

55. θησι[: the last letter might be γ, η, κ, or π, but not ε, so that a reference to Theseus (cf. the previous n.) is inadmissible.

Fr. 8. τῶν παραθ]αλα[ττίων καλο]υμένων[ν πόλεων ὅσ]αι μὲν ἐκ τ[ῆς Ἑλλά]δος ἦσα[ν ἀπφ]οκισμέναι π[αρα]χρήμα συν[έπεισε] . . .

' . . . of the so-called coast cities those which had been founded from Greece he at once persuaded (to revolt).'

Frs. 9 + 10 + 53. . . . Κίμων πυνθανόμενος τὸ]ν τ[ῶν Περσῶν στόλο]ν περὶ [τὴν Κύπρον συν]τετάχθαι, διακοσί]αις πει[τήκοντα π]ρ[ὸς] τρι[κοσίας κ]αὶ τεττα[ράκοντα.] παραταχ[θεῖς]ας δὲ πολλὸν χρόνον πολλὰς μὲν τῶν κ[υ]νδυνουστῶν βαρβα[ρι]κῶν νεῶν διέφθε[ι]εν, ἑκατὸν δ' αὐτοῖς [ἀ]νδράσιν [ε]ἶλε ζωγρ[ί]σας τ[ὸν π[.]ων . . .

σκεवासμένους, ἂν ἐκόντες μὴ ναυμαχῶσιν. οἱ δὲ πρῶτον μὲν, ὡς μὴ βιασθεῖεν, εἰς τὸν ποταμὸν εἰσωρμίσαντο, προσφερομένων δὲ τῶν Ἀθηναίων ἀντεξέπλευσαν, ὡς ἱστορεῖ Φανόδημος, ἑξακοσίας ναυσίν, ὡς δ' Ἐφωρος, πεντήκοντα καὶ τριακοσίας. ἔργον δὲ κατὰ γοῦν τὴν θάλατταν οὐδὲν ὑπ' αὐτῶν ἐπράχθη τῆς δυνάμεως ἄξιον, ἀλλ' εὐθὺς εἰς τὴν γῆν ἀποστρέφοντες ἐξέπιπτον οἱ πρῶτοι καὶ κατέφευγον εἰς τὸ πεζὸν ἐγγὺς παρατεταγμένοι, οἱ δὲ καταλαμβανόμενοι διεφθείροντο μετὰ τῶν νεῶν. ᾧ καὶ δῆλόν ἐστιν ὅτι πάμπολλοι τινες αἱ πεπληρωμένοι τοῖς βαρβάροις νῆες ἦσαν, ὅτε πολλῶν μὲν, ὡς εἰκός, ἐκφυγουσῶν, πολλῶν δὲ συντριβεισῶν, ὅμως αἰχμαλώτους διακοσίας ἔλαβον οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι. The figure 200 also occurs in the brief account of Thucydides i. 100 ἐγένετο δὲ μετὰ ταῦτα καὶ ἡ ἐπ' Εὐρυμέδοντι ποταμῷ ἐν Παμφυλίᾳ πεζομαχία καὶ ναυμαχία Ἀθηναίων καὶ τῶν ξυμμάχων πρὸς Μήδους, καὶ ἐνίκων τῇ αὐτῇ ἡμέρᾳ ἀμφοτέρω Ἀθηναῖοι Κίμωνος τοῦ Μιλτιάδου στρατηγούντος, καὶ εἶλον τριήρεις Φοινίκων καὶ διέφθειραν τὰς πάσας ἐς διακοσίας, and in the confused account of Nepos (Cimon 2. 2), who erroneously makes Mycale the scene of the sea-fight, Idem iterum apud Mycalen Cypriorum et Phoenicum ducentarum navium classem devictam cepit. The concluding sentence of Thucydides is obscurely worded, and it has been proposed to insert a numeral (π) after Φοινίκων; cf. Busolt, iii. 146³. Plutarch evidently knew Ephorus' account, but followed a historian (apparently Callisthenes), who agreed in the main with Thucydides as to the locality of the sea-battle and the number of the Persian losses. Thucydides' account, supplemented by Plutarch's, is usually preferred to any other (cf. Busolt, iii. 146³); but besides Diodorus Aristodemus i 1. 2 Κίμωνος δὲ τοῦ Μιλτιάδου στρατηγούντος ἀνέπλευσαν ἐπὶ τὴν Παμφυλίαν κατὰ τὸν λεγόμενον Εὐρυμέδοντα ποταμὸν καὶ ἐνανμάχσαν Φοίνιξι καὶ Πέρσαις καὶ λαμπρὰ ἔργα ἐπεδείξαντο, ἑκατὸν τε ναῦς ἐλόντες αὐτάνδρους ἐπεζομάχησαν, was evidently influenced by Ephorus, and Frontinus, Strateg. iv. 7. 45, agrees with Diodorus both as to the locality of the sea-fight (apud insulam Cyprum) and the stratagem of Cimon at the land-battle of the Eurymedon (cf. Diod. xi. 61. 1-2 and ll. 77-8, n.). Polyaeus, Strateg. i. 34. 1, inverts the scene of the sea-fight (off the Eurymedon) and the stratagem (Cyprus), and Klussmann and Duncker (cf. Busolt, l. c.) held that this represented Ephorus' description more closely than Diodorus' account—a view which is disposed of by 1610. Some echoes of Ephorus, however, seem to survive in Polyaeus' account; cf. καὶ πολλὰ σκάφη βαρβαρικά ἐλὼν with ll. 72-3 and τὸν στόλον ὡς φίλιον ὑποδέχονται with ll. 98-101. Justin gives no details, but the figure 100 for the ships captured by Cimon is also found in Lycurg. c. Leocr. 72, and is supported by the metrical inscription quoted by Diodorus xi. 62. 3, no doubt from Ephorus, even if Fr. 48 does not actually belong to it (cf. ll. 267-9, n.). Diodorus' exaggeration of it πλείους τῶν ἑκατὸν (l. c.) is either merely rhetorical (cf. p. 111) or made out of deference to the figure 200 in Thucydides. In favour of the second explanation is the circumstance that his insertion of τὸ τελευταῖον ἐνίκων οἱ Ἀθηναῖοι suggests the influence of Thucydides (καὶ ἐνίκων . . . Ἀθηναῖοι). Whether Diodorus had any other authority for his statement τῶν στόλων ἀμφοτέρων λαμπρῶς ἀγωνιζομένων than Ephorus' reference to πολὺν χρόνον may also be doubted. Aristodemus, l. c., speaks of λαμπρὰ ἔργα, but in reference to the Greeks only, and Plutarch, l. c., definitely denies that the Persian fleet made any serious resistance, in contrast to the subsequent κρατερὰ μάχη on land, of which his rhetorical description has been ascribed to Theopompus; cf. Busolt, iii. 146³.

62-3. For πυνθανομενος cf. Diod. l. c. The verb may well have been ἀντεξέπλευσε (cf. Plut. l. c.).

66-9. The figures are exactly reproduced by Diodorus, l. c. No importance is to be attached to the variation in Plutarch's figure (350 instead of 340) of the number of the Persian fleet according to Ephorus; cf. p. 106. Frs. 9, 10. 1 and 53 do not actually touch each other, but the combination is practically certain; cf. ll. 282-4, n. Of the third τ in τετταρακοντα a bit of the cross-bar is on Fr. 9 and the tail of the vertical stroke on Fr. 10.

73-4. διεφθέ[ι]εν: this word occurs twice in 842 (xiv. 9 and xix. 20).

76. π[. . . .]ων: Π[ερσικ]ων (sc. δυνάμεων) (or π[ολεμικ]ων), followed by ηγεμονα (i.e.

Tithraustes; cf. Diod. l. c.) can be restored, but the article is expected. π is nearly certain, γε[ι, γο], or γω[being the only alternatives and less satisfactory readings. τω[ν Περσ]ων is therefore inadmissible; but τον Π[. . . .]ων[δην, i.e. a subordinate Persian admiral, or conceivably Γω[βρναν] (cf. Callisthenes ap. Plut. l. c.) ων (i.e. ὦν) is possible.

77-8. The height of the columns in 1610 is unknown, but probably about 40 lines are lost between ll. 76 and 77, so that the remains of Fr. 10. ii would be expected to be parallel to some part of Diod. xi. 61. 1-2, which narrates the beginning of the land-battle of the Eurymedon. Perhaps ll. 77-8 are to be connected with ἐνεβίβασεν εἰς τὰς αἰχμαλωτίδας ναῦς τῶν ἰδίων τοὺς ἀρίστους, δούς τιάρας καὶ τὴν ἄλλην κατασκευὴν περιβέις Περσικὴν. οἱ δὲ βάρβαροι προσπλέοντες ἄρτι τοῦ στόλου ταῖς Περσικαῖς ναυσὶ καὶ παρασκευαῖς ψευσθέντες ὑπέλαβον τὰς ἰδίας τριήρεις εἶναι. διόπερ οὗτοι μὲν προσεδέξαντο κτλ. (cf. ll. 200-2, n.). ἰδόντες . . . καὶ τὴν ἀλ[λ]ην [κατασκευὴν υπε]λαμ[βανον] (cf. l. 99) is possible, the letter after λα beginning with a vertical stroke (not β). Another passage which might be connected with ll. 77-8 is xi. 61. 4 τοὺς μὲν γὰρ Ἕλληνας οὐχ ὑπελάμβανον ἦκειν πρὸς αὐτοὺς μετὰ δυνάμεως τὸ σύνολον μὴδ' ἔχειν κτλ. But Ελ[λ]ην[ας ουχ υπε]λαμ[βανον] makes l. 77 too short, and in the absence of any correspondence in ch. 61 with ll. 79-83 the remains of this column may well have been concerned with details omitted by Diodorus; cf. p. 112.

Fr. 11. τὸν μέν[ν] στρατηγὸν αὐτῶν [Φερενδάτη]ν ἀδελ[φιδου]ν ὄντ[α] τοῦ βασι[λέως] ἐν τῇ[] σκηνῇ [. . . (they killed) their general Pherendates, who was the king's nephew, in his tent.]

84-8. Cf. p. 101 and Diod. xi. 61. 3 καὶ τὸν μέν στρατηγὸν τῶν βαρβάρων τὸν ἕτερον Φερενδάτην, ἀδελφιδουὶν τοῦ βασιλέως, ἐν τῇ σκηνῇ καταλαβόντες ἐφόνευσαν, which hardly differs. The two last words or an equivalent must have followed l. 82. Pherendates was mentioned by Ephorus; cf. Plut. Cimon 12 quoted in ll. 62-76, n. and p. 106.

Frs. 12 + 13. . . . διετέλ[ουν] ὄντες, [ῶσ]τε νομίζοντες ἀπὸ τῆς ἡπείρου] τὴν ἔφοδον αὐτ[οῖς] γεγ[ονέναι] τῶν π[ο]λεμίων πρὸς τὰ[ς] ναῦ[ς] ἔφευγον, ὑπο[λ]αμβάνοντες αὐτοῖς εἶ[ν]αι φιλίας· οὐδ' ἂν π[ο]λλοὶ μὲν ὑπὸ τῶν καταλειφθέντων ἐκεῖ φυλάκων ἀπέθνη[σκον] ἐν τῇ νυκτί, πολλοὶ δὲ ζῶντες ἡλίσκοντο περιπίπτοντες τοῖς Ἕλλησιν διὰ τὴν ἀπορί[αν] ὅπου τ[ρο]πέ[ο]ς[υ]ντο, καὶ τὸν [ἐ]ξ[αίφνης] αὐτοῖς ἐπιπεσόντα φόβ[ον].

' . . . Hence, thinking that their enemies' attack was from the land, they fled to the ships, expecting these to be on their own side. There many of them were killed in the night by the guards who had been left behind on the spot, while many were taken alive, falling into the hands of the Greeks through their ignorance which way to turn and the fear which had suddenly overtaken them.'

93. διετέλ[ουν] ὄντες: cf. 1365. 16 δι[ετέλ]εσε διαιτώμενος καὶ παιδευόμενος οὕτως. οἱ Πισιδες ἐχθροὶ may have preceded, the sentence probably corresponding to καὶ τὰ πρὸς αὐτοὺς ἀλλοτρίως ἔχοντας in Diodorus; cf. the next n.

94 sqq. Cf. pp. 101-2 and Diod. xi. 61. 4-6 τοὺς μὲν γὰρ Ἕλληνας οὐχ ὑπελάμβανον ἦκειν πρὸς αὐτοὺς μετὰ δυνάμεως τὸ σύνολον, μὴδ' ἔχειν αὐτοὺς περὶ τὴν στρατιὰν πεπεισμένοι· τοὺς δὲ Πισιδὰς ὄντας ὁμόρους καὶ τὰ πρὸς αὐτοὺς ἀλλοτρίως ἔχοντας ὑπελάμβανον ἦκειν μετὰ δυνάμεως (ὑπελ. . . . δυν. del. (cf. ll. 114-16, n.). Plutarch's account (Cimon 13, from Theopompus?; cf. ll. 62-76, n.) is quite different, τῶν δὲ περὶ τὴν ἐπικαταβάντων πρὸς τὴν θάλασσαν μέγα μὲν ἔργον ἐφαίνετο τῷ Κίμωνι τὸ βιάζεσθαι τὴν ἀπόβασιν καὶ κεκμηκότας ἀκμήσι καὶ πολλαπλασίοις ἐπάγειν τοὺς Ἕλληνας, ὅμως δὲ βόμῃ καὶ φρονήματι τοῦ κρατεῖν ὁρῶν ἐπηρμένους καὶ προθύμους ὁμόσε χωρεῖν τοῖς βαρβάροις, ἀπεβίβαζε τοὺς ὀπλίτας ἐπὶ θερμούς τῷ κατὰ τὴν ναυμαχίαν ἀγῶνι μετὰ κραυγῆς καὶ δρόμου προσφερομένους. ὑποστάντων δὲ τῶν Περσῶν καὶ δεξαμένων οὐκ ἀγεννῶς κρατερὰ μάχῃ συνέστη· καὶ Diodorus' reference to the absence of the moon seems to be his own invention, since there is no indication in ll. 105-7 of anything corresponding to it and no further reference to the darkness is in fact expected after l. 104. Possibly, however, the absence of the moon may have been mentioned earlier in Ephorus' account.

94-9. νομίζοντες . . . ὑπ[λ]αμβανόντες: cf. νομίζομεν ὑπολαμβάνοντες in Ephorus Fr. 2, and, for ὑπολαμβάνειν, ll. 32, 77-8, n., and 842. vi. 10, xi. 17, xiv. 11.

101. φιλίας: cf. 842. xiv. 40 φιλίως, and Polyæn. Strateg. i. 34. 1, quoted in ll. 62-76, n.

102-4. καταλειφθέντων . . . φυλάκων: cf. Ephorus Fr. 53 φύλακα δὲ κατέλιπον.

104. ἀπεθνη[σκοι]: cf. 842. xx. 33 συμμείξαντες ἀποθ[ν]ήσκουσιν.

108. That the fragment containing σι and part of the ν of Ελλη|σιν and the ends of ll. 103-7 is rightly combined with the top of the ν admits of hardly any doubt.

' . . . the spearmen, of whom Artaxerxes happened to be . . ., being at the same time anxious to obtain the kingdom himself and afraid that . . . he communicated the (plot) to the eunuch Mithridates, the king's chamberlain.'

119 sqq. Cf. Diod. xi. 69. 1 ἐπὶ δὲ τούτων κατὰ τὴν Ἀσίαν Ἀρτάβανος τὸ μὲν γένος Ὑρκάνιος, δυνάμενος δὲ πλείστον παρὰ τῷ βασιλεῖ Ξέρξῃ καὶ τῶν δορυφόρων ἀφηγούμενος, ἔκρινεν ἀνελεῖν τὸν Ξέρξην καὶ τὴν βασιλείαν εἰς ἑαυτὸν μεταστήσαι. ἀνακοινωσάμενος δὲ τὴν ἐπιβουλὴν πρὸς Μιθριδάτην τὸν εὐνοῦχον, ὃς ἦν κατακοιμιστὴς τοῦ βασιλέως καὶ τὴν κυριωτάτην ἔχων πίστιν, ἅμα δὲ καὶ συγγενὴς ὢν Ἀρταβάνου καὶ φίλος ὑπήκουσε πρὸς τὴν ἐπιβουλὴν. [καὶ τὴν κυριωτάτην] can be restored in l. 133. Probably Fr. 16 followed Fr. 15 with a very slight interval (cf. p. 102), which is in accordance with the general appearance of the recto of these two fragments, though the verso does not suggest their propinquity. αὐτὸς in l. 123 we refer to Artabanus, the phrase κατα[σχεῖν τ]ὴν βασιλείαν [βουλόμ]ενος (cf. κατασχεῖν τὴν ἀρχὴν in Diod. xi. 69. 4 quoted below, and τὴν χώραν κατασχεῖν in Ephorus Fr. 29) being very close to both Diodorus' τὴν βασιλείαν . . . μεταστήσαι and Justin iii. 1 Xerxes . . . quippe Artabanus praefectus eius . . . in spem regni adductus cum septem robustissimis filiis regiam vesperi ingreditur, which is likely in any case to have been partly derived from Ephorus. The chief difficulty is that δορ[υ]φόρους would be expected in l. 120, but the bottom of the letter preceding φο (which is practically certain) does not come below the line, nor is the tail of a preceding ρ visible. The word is therefore, we conjecture, a synonym for δορυφόρους, λογχ[?]οφόρους being preferable to ξυστ[?]οφόρους. With the reading τοῦ]ς φόρους there might be a connexion with Diod. xi. 71. 1 ἐπὶ δὲ τούτων Ἀρταξέρξης ὁ βασιλεὺς τῶν Περσῶν ἄρτι τὴν βασιλείαν ἀνακτησάμενος . . . διέταξε τὰ κατὰ τὴν βασιλείαν συμπεφρονότως αὐτῷ . . . ἐπεμελίθη δὲ καὶ τῶν προσόδων καὶ τῆς δυνάμεων κατασκευῆς, καὶ καλόλου τὴν βασιλείαν ὅλην ἐπικεῖνος διοικῶν μεγάλης ἀποδοχῆς ἐτύγχανε παρὰ τοῖς Πέρσiais. The rest of Fr. 15 would then have to be restored differently. But though αὐτὸς could be Artaxerxes and [κτησάμ]ενος is possible in l. 125, the other parallel is closer and more satisfactory. It is just possible that, while Fr. 15 refers to the plot of Artabanus, the parallel section in Diodorus is not 69. 1 but 69. 3-4 ὁ δ' οὖν Ἀρτάβανος παραγενόμενος ἔτι νυκτὸς οὐσης πρὸς τὸν Ἀρταξέρξην ἔφησε Δαρείῳ τὸν ἀδελφὸν αὐτοῦ φονεῖα γεγονέναι τοῦ πατρὸς καὶ τὴν βασιλείαν εἰς ἑαυτὸν περισπᾶν. συνεβούλευσεν οὖν αὐτῷ πρὸ τοῦ κατασχεῖν ἐκείνον τὴν ἀρχὴν σκοπεῖν ὥπως μὴ δουλεύσῃ διὰ ῥαθυμίαν ἀλλὰ βασιλεύσῃ τὸν φονεῖα τοῦ πατρὸς τιμωρησάμενος· ἐπηγγείλατο δ' αὐτῷ συνεργοὺς παρέξεσθαι τοὺς δορυφόρους τοῦ βασιλέως. But this too, in spite of some resemblances, seems to suit Fr. 15 less well than does 69. 1.

The plot of Artabanus is also described by Ctesias Frs. 29-30 Ἀρτάβανος δὲ μέγα παρὰ Ξέρξη δυνάμενος μετ' Ἀσπραμίτου τοῦ εὐνούχου καὶ αὐτοῦ μέγα δυναμένου βουλευόμενος ἀνελείν Ξέρξη, καὶ ἀναιροῦσι κτλ. This is evidently one of the ultimate sources of Diodorus' statement, which in any case must be derived (with some variations, if our explanation of Fr. 15 is correct) from Ephorus, who was probably responsible for the change of Ἀσπραμίτης to Μιθριδάτης: cf. the variation between Justin's Bacabasus (from Ephorus or Dinon?) and Ctesias' Μεγάβυζος (Fr. 30), each representing the Persian name Bagabukhsha (cf. Gilmore, ad loc.), the subsequent betrayer of Artabanus to Artaxerxes.

121.]ων is probably a participle. [ηγεμω]ων is possible; but Artabanus himself, not Artaxerxes, was in command of the δορυφόροι: cf. the previous n.

εὐγχα[νε]ν: cf. l. 178]γυ[χαν]? A fondness for τυγχάνειν characterizes 842; cf. Part v. 124.

123. [αμα με]ν: cf. l. 125 αμα δε and the same contrast in 842. x. 2.

128-9. ανε]κουν[το την . . .] . ιν: cf. Diod. l. c. ἀνακοινωσάμενος δὲ τὴν ἐπιβουλὴν and 842. i. 3 κοινωσάμενος . . . περὶ τοῦ πράγματος. ανε]κουνου [την βουλευ]σιν can be read, but is unlikely, the middle being much commoner than the active. The letter before ιν is γ, ξ, σ, or τ. πρα]ξιν would be the right length.

133. Cf. ll. 119 sqq., n.

134-9. Cf. p. 102 and Diod. xi. 30. 4-5 μετὰ δὲ ταῦτα ἐκ τῆς ὑπωρείας μετεστρατοπέδενσαν εἰς ἕτερον τόπον εὐθετώτερον πρὸς τὴν ὁλοσχερῇ νίκην. ἦν γὰρ ἐκ μὲν τῶν δεξιῶν γεώλοφος ὑψηλός, ἐκ δὲ τῶν εὐωνύμων ὁ Ἀσωπὸς ποταμός· τὸν δ' ἀνὰ μέσον τόπον ἐπέειχεν ἡ στρατοπεδεία, πεφραγμένη τῇ φύσει καὶ ταῖς τῶν τόπων ἀσφαλείαις, where τόπος (cf. ll. 135 and 138) occurs thrice, though the context is different. στρατ[ο]πεδου] is possible in ll. 136-7, and [εν] τοῖς τ[ο] τοῖς (Bury) in ll. 137-8, but hardly τ[ο]πο]ν in ll. 134-5. The dividing-point of the lines in this fragment is uncertain.

140-5. Fr. 18 perhaps corresponds to Diod. xi. 57. 3 αὕτη (Xerxes' sister) πυθομένη τὴν παρουσίαν τοῦ Θεμιστοκλέους ἦλθεν εἰς τὰ βασίλεια πενθίωην ἐσθῆτα λαβοῦσα καὶ μετὰ δακρύων ἰκέτευε τὸν ἀδελφὸν ἐπιθεῖναι τιμωρίαν τῷ Θεμιστοκλεῖ. ὥς δ' οὐ προσεῖχεν αὐτῇ, περιήει . . . Lines 143-5 can be restored τον α]δελ[φον τιμωριαν (or κολασιν) προσ]θει[ναι Θεμιστοκλει] ω[s] δε [. The υ in l. 142, which is nearly certain, would then be expected to belong to δακρύων rather than to ἰκέτευε, but the vestiges of the letter following it do not suit ω, whereas ε is possible. ικετε]υε [κλαιουσα τον α]δελ[φον] would be suitable, but the remaining two lines 140-1 present difficulties. ηλ[θεν in l. 141 is unsatisfactory, for the preceding letter seems to be λ, not α, and με[λαινι στο]λη is too short. If λ[αβουσα και ικετε]υε be restored,]λη must be the accusative plural of a word meaning 'clothes' or, as there seems to be none available, an adjective in agreement with e.g. ἱμάτια. The suggested correspondence with Diodorus therefore remains very uncertain, especially since the supposed λ of α]δελ[φον] can be α, and]σειπ[can be read for]θειν[.

178.]γυ[χαν]: cf. l. 121, n.

192-4. If τας [εκεινο]ν πραξε]is (cf. l. 20) is right, Fr. 26 may well belong to the estimate of Themistocles. The doubtful ε can be ι. Ελ]λησιν suggests that the corresponding passage in Diodorus is xi. 59. 2-3 ὥστ' εὐχέειν γενέσθαι τοῖς Ἕλλησι. διόπερ ὅταν τὸ μέγεθος τῶν ἔργων αὐτοῦ θεωρήσωμεν κτλ., so that Fr. 26 would seem to come immediately above Fr. 3 (cf. ll. 18 sqq., n.); but the fibres of the verso do not suggest this, and]λυσαι is difficult in such a context. The only alternative is ισ[χυσαι, with which reading Bury suggests παρα τοῖς ΕΛ[ησιν [. μη ισ[χυσαι κτλ.

200-2. None of the references to the Athenians in Diod. xi. 55-70 corresponds verbally to this passage; but with the restoration] Αθηναίους προσεδέχοντο it can well be connected with xi. 61. 2 διόπερ οὗτοι μὲν προσεδέξαντο τοὺς Ἀθηναίους ὡς φίλους ὄντας, ὁ δὲ Κίμων κτλ.]νυτο can, however, be read in place of]χοντο.

213-14. τῆν or φῆν can be read. For ἐδωκ[ε . . . χωραν as a possible reference to Xerxes' presents to Themistocles cf. Thuc. i. 138. 5 ταύτης γὰρ ἦρχε τῆς χώρας, δόντος βασιλέως, and Diod. xi. 57. 7 ἐδωρήσατο δ' αὐτῷ πόλεις τρεῖς . . . Λάμψακον δὲ ἀμπελόφυτον ἔχουσιν χώραν πολλήν. But the words might come in many other contexts, e.g. Cimon's distribution of land in Thrace to the Athenians; cf. Plut. Cimon 7 τὴν δὲ χώραν . . . παρέδωκε τοῖς Ἀθηναίοις, and Diod. xi. 60. 2 καὶ κτίστην Ἀθηναίων καταστήσας κατεκληρούχησε τὴν χώραν (cf. p. 103).

219.]φωιν[: Fr. 32 does not seem to be connected with any of the references to the Phoenicians in Diod. xi.

223. Perhaps] Αθη[ναῖοι in some form; cf. l. 201.

228-30. The mention of the Pelasgians and κα[ταφυγ[ή? suggests that Fr. 35 refers to Scyros and Cimon's discovery of the bones of Theseus, who took refuge there; cf. ll. 49-51, n., and p. 100.

237-9. Cf. p. 99 and Diod. xi. 59. 1-2 (Themistocles) τίς γὰρ ἕτερος . . . ταῖς ἰδίαις πράξεσιν ἀφείλετο τῆς Σπάρτης ταύτην τὴν δόξαν; τίνα δ' ἄλλον ἱστορήκαμεν μὴ πράξει ποιήσαντα διενεγκεῖν αἰτὸν μὲν τῶν ἡγεμόνων, τὴν δὲ πόλιν τῶν Ἑλληνίδων πόλεων, τοὺς δ' Ἕλληνας τῶν βαρβάρων; The fact that ξαν was either actually or approximately the end of a sentence, as is shown by the paragraphus, renders the connexion of that passage with Fr. 38 very probable. Bury suggests δο[ξαν] [τις δὲ τα κοῖνα ἐκ[τεν[ως πραττων μαι] πραξ[ει] . . . It is tempting also to connect with this fragment Fr. 32, where Ελλην[ιδων] can be restored in l. 241, and Fr. 39, where πολ[ι]ν των ΕΛ[ληνιδων] is possible in l. 241; but the other lines in those two fragments do not harmonize easily with either that context or each other.

241-2. Cf. the previous n. There is a slight blank space between οἱ and αν in l. 242, which, however, is not fatal to Εὐβ[οιαν], and with των ΕΛ[ληνων] in l. 241 there might possibly be a reference to the expedition of Cimon against Carystus in Euboea (Thuc. i. 98. 3; cf. pp. 100-1), which was presumably mentioned by Ephorus.

246-8. There is a possible connexion with Diod. xi. 65. 4 ἄλλων δ' οὐκ ὄντων συμμάχων ἐρημία τῶν ἐπικουρούντων κατὰ κράτος ἦλωσαν (sc. the Mycenaeans), or better with xi. 56. 7 κομίζειν ταύτην ἐπὶ ἀπῆνης κεκρυμμένην καὶ τῶν ἀπαντῶντων μηδένα πολυπραγμονεῖν μηδὲ κατ' ὄψιν ἀπαντῆσαι τῇ ἀγομῇ (Lysithides' device for the introduction of Themistocles to Xerxes; cf. p. 99); but if so, Diodorus' version is longer.

252-4. Possibly συντα[ξ]α[ς] δε Αρχιδαμος ο[ς] | βα[σιλεὺς τοῖς αφεσ]τ[η]κοσι: cf. Diod. xi. 63. 7 τοῦτον τὸν τρόπον οἱ περιλειφθέντες ἐσώθησαν, οὓς συντάξας ὁ βασιλεὺς Ἀρχιδαμος παρεσκευάζετο πολεμεῖν τοῖς ἀφεστηκόσι. But between ll. 253 and 254 is a spot of ink which, if not accidental, may belong to a paragraphus, implying a change of sentence, and γη[can be read for τη[.

255. εὐεργετῆν, εὐεργέτης, and εὐεργασία occur several times in Diod. xi, but the rest of Fr. 44 does not suit the context of any of those passages.

257.]ασυγ[: perhaps]ας υπ[ο].

267-9. Fr. 48 exactly suits Diod. xi. 62. 3 να[υς] ἐλ[ον] ἐν πελαγεῖ | ἀνδ[ρων] πληθουσας με[γ]α, from the metrical inscription concerning Cimon's victories, which is in any case probably quoted from Ephorus; cf. ll. 62-76, n. But the fragment is too small to be identified with certainty, and in l. 269 π can be read in place of γ . Another possible parallel is xi. 54. 4 Πανσανίας μὲν κρίνας προδιδόναι τοὺς Ἑλλήνας ἐδήλωσε τὴν ἰδίαν ἐπιβολὴν Θεμιστοκλεί καὶ παρεκάλεσε. το]υς Ελλ[ήνας τὴν ἰδι]αν δ[ήλωσας would account for ll. 267-8, and]γ[(or]π[) might belong to ἐπιβολὴν or a synonym for it, or to π[αρακαλεσε].

282-4. Fr. 53 is to be combined with Frs. 9 + 10. i, though not actually joining them, and belongs to ll. 67-9; cf. ll. 66-9, n. The fibres on the verso harmonize excellently with those of Fr. 10, and the vestiges in l. 284 can be the top of πα[ραταχ[θεις]as).

1611. EXTRACTS FROM A WORK ON LITERARY CRITICISM.

Fr. 1 18.6 × 26.5 cm.

Early third century.

These seventy fragments of a work on literary criticism, evidently composed by a grammarian, were found with 1610, &c. The largest piece, Fr. 1, contains after a few letters from the ends of lines four nearly complete columns, while the other pieces are much smaller; about 130 lines in all are complete or can be restored. Various literary topics, which have no apparent connexion with each other, are discussed, being illustrated by frequent quotations from lost or (in two cases) extant works—a circumstance which lends the papyrus considerable interest. The two sections of which the beginnings are preserved (ll. 38 and 101) both commence with ὅτι, so that probably the text is a series of extracts from a longer work.

In Fr. 1 ll. 28-37 give the conclusion of a discussion of a contest of comedies and of the number of the judges. There is perhaps a contrast drawn between the practice of the writer's own day and that of earlier times, and the Bacchae of Lysippus and Πλοῦτοι of Cratinus are cited as authorities for a number (apparently that of the κριταί) being five; but the context is obscure in several points; cf. ll. 30, 35, nn.

The next section (ll. 38-100), which is practically complete, is mainly concerned with Caeneus, the mythical king of the Lapithae, who was first a woman, but was changed into a man by Poseidon, and rendered invulnerable, then incurred the enmity of Zeus by making his subjects worship his spear instead of the gods, and was ultimately buried alive by the Centaurs. The explanation of Caeneus' spear, which became proverbial, is given in connexion with a reference to it in Book ii of Theophrastus' Περὶ βασιλείας (ll. 38-46), the whole story of Caeneus being related in an extract from Acusilaus of Argos, an early writer on mythology who was probably older than Herodotus (ll. 55-83). Since the thirty-one extant fragments of Acusilaus (FHG. i. 100-3) contain hardly any professed quotations of his actual words, the papyrus for the first time affords an opportunity of estimating the character of that author's ἱστορία or γενεαλογίαι. The dialect proves to be in the main Ionic, as had generally been surmised, although no trace of it has been preserved in the extant fragments; and the style is decidedly primitive. A Doric form of the aorist infinitive, τεκέν, is found in l. 59, and a curious expression, μάλιστα χρημάτων, occurs in ll. 67-8. The influence of Acusilaus' version of the Caeneus legend is now traceable in scholia on Homer and Apollonius Rhodius, which may have derived their knowledge of the passage through our author; cf. l. 56, n. A rather naïve remark of the ancient logographer, that it was not ιερόν for gods to bear children by mortals, leads our author first to the citation of two lines from the Ἀλκμέων ὁ διὰ Κορίνθου of Euripides, spoken by Apollo, which illustrated this subject, and later to a short discussion of it, the last four lines being fragmentary (ll. 85-100).

In the third section (ll. 101-20) the first four lines are fragmentary, the ends of lines are missing throughout, and the conclusion is not reached, so that the reconstruction is somewhat difficult. The subject is the various persons called Thucydides, of whom three are distinguished, the politician (son of Melesias and father of Stephanus), the historian (son of Olorus), and the Pharsalian, as in Marcellinus' life of the historian. Polemon's treatise Περὶ ἀκροπόλεως, which is known from Marcellinus to have discussed the second and third Thucydides, is here mentioned with reference to the first, apparently as the authority for a statement based on epigraphic evidence that he was the father of Stephanus, which is to be connected with an extant quotation from another work of Polemon (ll. 101-11, n.). In confirmation of the paternity of Stephanus, which seems to have been disputed, a passage from the Meno of Plato is quoted, and Fr. 1 breaks off where the writer was about to add fresh evidence on the point from a lost comedy, the Iapetus of Hermippus.

The order of the smaller fragments is quite uncertain except in a few instances. Fr. 2.1 is concerned with a βόρειος ἵππος, two lines from the beginning of the Omphale of Ion being quoted as an illustration (ll. 121-7), but how the subject was introduced does not appear. The difficulty, whatever it was, is stated to have been solved by Mnaseas of Patara in his work Περὶ χρησμῶν (ll. 128-30). Fr. 4 is concerned with a female character in epic poetry (Penthesilea?), part of a hexameter line referring to her being cited (ll. 146-7), besides two mentions of her by authors whose names are imperfectly preserved, one of them being perhaps Arctinus, who wrote the Aethiopis (ll. 148-52). Frs. 5, 6, and 43 are to be combined, as appears partly from external evidence, partly from the resulting satisfactory restoration of ll. 160-4. The main subject of this section, of which the beginning and end are not preserved, is the authorship of a celebrated ancient ode to Pallas. The first three words of this ode Παλλάδα περσέπολιν δεινάν were quoted by Aristophanes in l. 967 of the Clouds, and from the extant rather confused scholia on that passage and another in Aristides it is known that according to Eratosthenes Phrynichus (i.e. the comic poet) attributed the authorship of the ode to Lamprocles, an early Athenian dithyrambic poet, while others assigned the ode to Stesichorus. Our author, who refers to an inconclusive discussion of the claims of Lamprocles and Stesichorus by Chamaeleon (a disciple of Aristotle), and possibly, but by no means certainly, mentions Eratosthenes (ll. 158-9, n.), also adduces the evidence of Phrynichus in favour of Lamprocles as the author, and quotes the passage in Aristophanes (ll. 160-76).

Little can be made of the remaining fragments. There is probably a reference in Fr. 8. ii to Hellanicus on Κρίσεις (ll. 212-14, n.); but the context is obscure. Fr. 9, which is more considerable, relates to a person with a name beginning with probably A or Λ and ending in -δημος (e.g. Aristodemus), who, after adventures in which the Naxians and Thracians were apparently concerned, was carried off and put to death after a trial by the Parians (ll. 218-28). The Orestes of Theodectes (?) is quoted in Fr. 17, and apparently a play of Lysippus in Fr. 21, while Fr. 16 perhaps has another reference to the Omphale of Ion, and Fr. 14 possibly mentions Simonides. Other proper names which occur are Ασση[(l. 247, n.), Lycia or the Lycians (l. 251), Odysseus (l. 272, perhaps in connexion with his descent to Hades), and Ptolemaeus (possibly Ptol. Philopator or Philadelphus; ll. 369-70, n.). The names of the grammarians Aristarchus and Didymus can be restored in ll. 231 and 283 respectively, but in neither place with any confidence. That Frs. 31-2, 42, 44-5, 63-5, and 68 belong to 1611 is not at all certain. All the fragments belong to the middles of columns, except Fr. 1 and where it is otherwise stated.

The handwriting is a small neat uncial closely resembling that of 1012, a treatise on literary composition, written soon after A.D. 205 (Part vii, Plate iv). 1611 also probably belongs to the first two or three decades of the third century, and is approximately contemporary with 1610, of which the script is similar, but larger. The columns are short, consisting of 24 or 25 lines of 14-20 letters, generally about 17. The end of a section is marked in l. 37 by a coronis, which is employed after l. 115 and probably l. 138 to divide a quotation from the main text. Paragraphi also occur after ll. 90 (where it is misplaced), 165, 214, and 231 to indicate quotations. Strokes against the margin of ll. 83-4 call attention to the recommencement of the author's commentary at the end of the extract from Acusilaus, of which the beginning is distinguished by the sign $\times$ (l. 56, n.). The obelus against l. 116 apparently also indicates a quotation, and the two flourishes after l. 138 seem to be merely supplementary to the neighbouring coronis. High stops were used, but not at all regularly; one doubtful instance of a stop in the middle position occurs in l. 442. Occasional marks of elision and quantity and accents are found in the poetical quotations (ll. 91 and 127), and there are some diaereses over ι and υ. An abbreviation, κ' for καί, is used in l. 216. Iota adscript was not infrequently omitted by the first hand, but when ignored was inserted by a contemporary corrector, who might even be the same scribe. The insertion, however, of two words omitted in l. 59 and similar additions of omitted letters in ll. 281, 338, and 350 all seem to be in a second hand, especially the cursively written ε above l. 281; in ll. 169 and 223 the alterations are most probably due to the first hand. The revision of the papyrus was in any case not very thorough, and several small mistakes remain uncorrected, ll. 45 ο for ου, 46 αξιον for αξιων, 57 Ποσιδων for Ποσειδεων, 61 αυτον for αυτην, 80 ορειον for ορθιον, 84 τι for το, 91 απ' for απο, 107 the apparent omission of καλον after Κοβαλεμου, 127 αίνεται for ἀνεται, 222 μεθικαν for μεθηκαν: cf. also ll. 123, 146, and 172-3, nn.

The date of the papyrus itself excludes a later period than about the middle of the second century for the composition of the work from which 1611 was excerpted. On the other hand a date not earlier than 200 B.C. is indicated by the references to (1) Polemon, who was a Delphic πρόξενος in 177-6 B.C. (Susemihl, Gesch. d. Alex. Lit. i. 667¹²²), and according to Suidas a contemporary of Ptolemy Epiphanes (204-181 B.C.), and (2) Mnaseas, who according to an ambiguously worded statement of Suidas was a pupil of Eratosthenes. The striking resemblance between the discussion of the authorship of the ode to Pallas in 1611 and the views attributed to Eratosthenes by the scholia on Aristophanes' Clouds 967 (cf. pp. 128-9 and ll. 162-5, n.) at first sight suggests that the papyrus may consist of extracts from Eratosthenes' celebrated work Περὶ ἀρχαίας κωμῳδίας. The first of the three sections in Fr. 1 seems to be concerned with the Old Comedy; the second, about Caeneus, deals with a subject which was the basis of plays by two writers of the Middle Comedy, Antiphanes and Araros, and may well have been utilized earlier, while the third, about Thucydides, leads up to a quotation from Hermippus. The two statements attributed to Asclepiades of Myrlea by Suidas that Polemon (1) synchronized with Aristophanes of Byzantium (the successor of Eratosthenes as librarian at Alexandria; cf. p. 131) and (2) was the disciple of Panaetius (about 180-110 B.C.) are scarcely consistent with each other, and the second has usually been regarded as corrupt; cf. Susemihl, i. 666¹¹³. Since Eratosthenes according to Suidas was born in 276-2 B.C. and died at the age of eighty in the reign of Ptolemy Epiphanes, it is possible that his Περὶ ἀρχαίας κωμῳδίας quoted Polemon's earlier works. The suggestion of Knaack (Pauly-Wissowa, Realenc. vi. 360), that the treatise on Comedy was written in the early part of Eratosthenes' life before he left Athens for Alexandria, is not based on any evidence, and Theophrastus, a writer utilized in it (cf. Strecker, De Lycophrone, Euphronio, Eratosthene, &c., Fr. 75), is also quoted in 1611 (l. 38). Polemon, who joined the Pergamene school, wrote a treatise against Eratosthenes (Susemihl, i. 670¹⁵³) Περὶ τῆς Ἀθήνησιν Ἐρατοσθένους ἐπιδημίας, denying (probably ironically) that Eratosthenes had ever been at Athens, and two of the six extant fragments of that treatise (Frs. 47-8, FHG. iii. 130) apparently refer to statements in the Περὶ ἀρχαίας κωμῶδίας, which was therefore earlier than Polemon's attack on Eratosthenes. It is, however, not quite clear that Polemon is mentioned in 1611 with approval (cf. ll. 101-11, n.), and the controversy between him and Eratosthenes may have been begun by the latter. As regards Mnaseas, whose date mainly depends on that of Eratosthenes, the fact that he is quoted with approval in 1611 (l. 128) is not inconsistent with the hypothesis that he was the author's own pupil; but it is not quite certain whether Suidas meant to call Mnaseas the pupil of Eratosthenes or of Aristarchus. The latter interpretation, which would of course be fatal to the view that 1611 was the work of Eratosthenes, is rejected by Susemihl, i. 679²⁰⁹. The date of Eratosthenes' death (196-4 B.C.), which is accepted by Susemihl mainly on the evidence of Suidas, thus leaves a narrow margin of time available to which the Περὶ ἀρχ. κωμ. could be assigned on the assumption that 1611 belongs to that work; but most of this margin tends to disappear, if with Knaack (Pauly-Wissowa, Realenc. vi. 359) Strabo's statement that Eratosthenes was the pupil of Zeno of Citium be accepted; for Eratosthenes' birth and death must then be put back about ten years earlier than Suidas' dates. 1241, which settles the order of the Alexandrian librarians from Apollonius Rhodius to Cydas and rectifies some errors of Suidas, is apt to be mistaken or corrupt in its chronological references to the Ptolemies with whom the librarians were associated. But the position assigned to Eratosthenes, next after Apollonius Rhodius and before Aristophanes of Byzantium, whose successors were (omitting καὶ Ἀρίσταρχος in 1241. ii. 8 as an interpolation) Apollonius the εἰδογράφος and Aristarchus of Samothrace, suggests that Eratosthenes' literary activity hardly continued as late as the reign of Epiphanes, and if the corrupt Φιλοπάτορος in 1241. ii. 15 is corrected to Ἐπιφάνους instead of Φιλομήτορος, as is possible, Eratosthenes' period of office at Alexandria must have ended soon after the accession of Philopator in 222-1 B.C. Hence, though the difficulty caused by the mention of Mnaseas can be got over, that caused by the reference to Polemon Περὶ ἀκροπόλεως is a much more serious and probably insuperable obstacle to the attribution of 1611 to Eratosthenes Περὶ ἀρχαίας κωμῶδίας. Moreover it is possible that the scholium on Aristophanes which gives Lamprocles' version of the ode to Pallas is nearer to Eratosthenes' actual words than are the other scholia, which agree with 1611 in quoting Phrynichus' version (cf. ll. 162-5, n.), and the ode to Pallas was evidently the subject of much discussion. Lastly, in 1611 the sections about Caeneus and Thucydides are not, so far as can be judged, specially concerned with Old Comedy, so that a later author than Eratosthenes is distinctly more probable. Eratosthenes may even have been referred to by name in the discussion of the ode to Pallas (ll. 158-9, n.), and he is in any case likely to have been the main source of that section of the papyrus.

The hypothesis of the Eratosthenean authorship of the section concerning the ode to Pallas might be combined with the attribution of other sections to different grammarians; but though it is not certain that the various extracts are all from the same work, there is more to be said in favour of the view that they come from one of the miscellanies (σύμμικτα), which were composed by several grammarians of the Alexandrine and Roman periods. Of these miscellanies the earliest known is by Callistratus the pupil of Aristophanes of Byzantium and composer also of a work Πρὸς τὰς ἀθετήσεις (sc. of Aristarchus) and commentaries on Cratinus and Aristophanes; cf. Athen. iii. 125 c-d, where the 7th book is quoted, R. Schmidt, De Callistrato Aristophaneo, and Susemihl, i. 450. Another composer of miscellanies was Herodicus ὁ Κρατήτειος, who is chiefly known from quotations in Athenaeus from his three works, Πρὸς τὸν Φιλοσωκράτην, Σύμμικτα ὑπομνήματα (Athen. viii. 340 e), and Κωμωδοῦμενοι (in at least six books). His date is disputed: Gudeman in Pauly-Wissowa, Realenc. viii. 974, assigns him to the first century B.C. That the celebrated Didymus, who died in the reign of Augustus, wrote Σύμμικτα is attested by the Etym. Gud. 124. 2, where it is stated that Alexion (a first-century grammarian of Alexandria) made an epitome of them. The Σύμμικτα are generally identified with the Συμποσιακά of Didymus, which were also of a miscellaneous character; cf. Cohn in Pauly-Wissowa, Realenc. v. 470. Suidas' list of the works of Seleucus, the Homeric critic, who lived in the time of Tiberius (Gudeman, l.c.), ends καὶ ἄλλα σύμμικτα, and Seleucus ἐν Συμμίκτοις is cited by Schol. Apoll. Rhod. ii. 1055. Pamphila, who lived in the reign of Nero, wrote according to Photius (Cod. 175) thirty-three books συμμίκτων ἱστορικῶν ὑπομνημάτων λόγοι, which were largely used by Aulus Gellius and Diogenes Laertius. 1611 may well belong to one of these five writers of miscellanies; but Didymus has the strongest claim to be regarded as the author, since in his case the existence of an epitome is also attested. In the absence of any clear reference to grammarians later than the second century B.C. Callistratus is more suitable as the composer than Herodicus, Seleucus, or Pamphilus, and 1611 seems to be somewhat earlier than 1012, which mentions both Didymus and Caecilius Calactinus, and was not composed before A.D. 50. Dionysius ὁ μουσικός, who is known to have discussed the authorship of the ode to Pallas (cf. ll. 162-5, n.) and lived in the time of Hadrian, is not at all likely to be the author of 1611, for his known works are all concerned with μουσική in some form or (if he was identical with Aelius Dionysius) lexicography, and the Caeneus and Thucydides sections are not at all appropriate to him. Rufus, who is coupled with Dionysius (cf. ll. 162-5, n.) and is thought to have epitomized his Μουσικὴ ἱστορία (cf. Cohn in Pauly-Wissowa, Realenc. v. 986), is, apart from other considerations, unsuitable on account of his date, which is probably third century or later.

We are indebted to Mr. T. W. Allen for several suggestions in the reconstruction of this papyrus.

'That what Theophrastus says in the second book Concerning Kingship about the spear of Caeneus is as follows. "And this is the king who really rules by his sceptre, not by his spear like Caeneus." For Caeneus claiming to govern by his spear, not by his sceptre as is the fashion of most kings, failed, because he had no power, according to the story related by Acusilaus the Argive, to release. He describes Caeneus as follows. "Caene daughter of Elatus was united to Poseidon; afterwards, since it was impious for them to have children either by him or by any one else, Poseidon made her an invulnerable man, possessing the greatest strength of any person then living, and when any one stabbed him with iron or bronze, he was conquered most certainly of all. So Caeneus became king of the Lapithae, and waged war with the Centaurs. Afterwards he set up his javelin in the market-place and bade people sacrifice to it. But this was not (pleasing?) to the gods, and Zeus seeing him doing this, threatened him and stirred up the Centaurs against him; and they cut him down upright below the ground, and put a mass of rock above as a tomb; so he died." That is apparently what is meant by Caeneus ruling by a spear, and it also explains what is said by the god in Euripides' 'Αλκμέων ὁ διὰ Κορίνθου "And I was without child by her, but she bare to Alcmaeon twin children, a virgin." If the inquiry is made how union with a god is without offspring, (it is shown) through the aforesaid . . .

Aristophanes also introduces it saying "To Pallas destroyer of cities, the terrible" . . .

29.] αντ[ι]: the division of these letters is uncertain. η can be read instead of ι.

30.] ον: εν can equally well be read. All that is visible before ν is a spot of ink in about the middle of the line.] αν is impossible, and other vowels are improbable.

ε . ερα . : except in εα, only the bottoms of the letters are preserved. The first seems to be ε or σ and [ι] may be lost between it and the second, which is rather more like ε, θ, or σ than e.g. γ or ι, and does not come below the line as far as τ usually does in this hand. The third must be ε, ο, or σ, and the last can be γ, η, ι[ς], κ, μ, ν, or π. Cf. the next n.

ημας: the first person is not found elsewhere in 1611, and ημας δυνοντας can hardly be right, though possibly the participle is to be corrected to λυνοντας or δι(αλ)υνοντας: cf. l. 128 [δια]λέλυκε. The present active of δύειν is very rare outside epic poetry. μα suits the vestiges very well; the lacuna between these two broken letters could take [ι], but not [ερ]. As was suggested by Prof. Rostowzew, it is better to divide δυ(ο) νοντας and regard ημας . . . κριτας as a quotation from a comedy. The preceding words can also be an iambic line, ending νν σε οραν. Cf. also ll. 23-7, n.

35. ε: for 5 judges at contests of comedies cf. Schol. Ar. Birds 445 ἔκριναν κριταὶ τοὺς κωμικοὺς. οἱ δὲ λαμβάνοντες τὰς ἐΐψήφους εὐδαιμόνου, Hesych. πέντε κριταὶ τοσοῦτοι τοῖς κωμικοῖς ἔκρινον οὐ μόνον Ἀθήνησιν ἀλλὰ καὶ ἐν Σικελίᾳ, Zenobius, Cent. iii. 64 ἐν πέντε κριτῶν γούνασι κείται . . . πέντε κριταὶ τοὺς κωμικοὺς ἔκρινον, ὥς φησι Ἐπίχαρμος, which is copied by Suidas. The difficulty is that 4 judges (l. 32) at contests of comedies are not attested at any period, and what '40' refers to is very obscure. Apart from the references quoted concerning Comedy, the question of the number of judges at dramatic contests and the method of selection is not yet very clear; cf. Müller, Lehrb. d. griech. Bühnenalt. 368-72. In Plut. Cimon 8 the ten strategoi appear as judges in a contest at which Sophocles won the first prize; but it is generally supposed that there were normally 5 judges for tragedies as well as for comedies, and these were in both cases selected by lot from a larger body of 10, i.e. 1 for each tribe, this body of 10 having been chosen by lot from a much larger number, of which the size is unknown. But it is not satisfactory to identify the '40' with the largest body. The number '5' in connexion with contests of comedies might also refer to the contending poets, of whom 5 are attested in the time of Aristophanes and in the second century B.C. (cf. Müller, op. cit. 321), and these might be connected with του?]; αντι[in l. 29 and be contrasted with ημᾶς δυ οντας, not with τεσσαρας και τους κριτας. Owing to the loss of the beginning we are unable to suggest a satisfactory explanation of the passage; but in view of (1) the common use of κριταὶ in connexion with dramatic contests in particular, and (2) the two references to Old Comedy, it remains probable that contests of comedies are in some way meant. Of the Bacchae of Lysippus, which seems to have been his most popular play, six fragments are known, and of Cratinus' Πλοῦτοι nine.

38. [ο]τι: cf. l. 101. The papyrus is not broken, but no trace of ο is visible; it has more probably been obliterated than omitted by mistake. τι might be the beginning of a section of a work in the style of Aristotle's Problems, but does not suit τουτο in l. 42; cf. the next n.

42. τουτο, we think, refers to the following quotation, like οὕτως in ll. 56 and 115. There is no marginal indication of the beginning of a quotation here, as there is commonly elsewhere (cf. p. 129); but και οὗτος is unintelligible as part of our author's commentary. Where the Theophrastus quotation ends is not quite clear. It might stop after Καυεὺς in l. 46, or απολυσα[ι in l. 54, or αποθνησκει in l. 83, where the Acusilaus quotation in any case ends and there are strokes in the margin, or even after Καυεα in l. 85. That ll. 85-100 belong to Theophrastus is very unlikely, their subject being irrelevant to his treatise. We adopt l. 46 as the dividing-point between the Theophrastus quotation and our author's comment. If Theophrastus had quoted the long Acusilaus extract, which is not in itself likely, an allusion to the latter would rather have been expected at the beginning of the section, and below l. 46 a paragraphus or other critical sign may have been lost.

46. αξιον is a mistake for αξιων. Cf. p. 130.

49-52. The ends of these lines are on a fragment which was originally separate, but is very suitably placed here, though there is no external indication that it belongs to the top of a column. α[λλο]ι is inadmissible in ll. 49-50. π[ρος]της in l. 51 is not at all satisfactory in the apparent sense of κατὰ with the accusative, but π[ε]ρι is no improvement, and a preposition is required. μ and ν are the only alternatives to π, δ[ια] being thus excluded and μετὰ being also unsatisfactory.

53. ι can equally well be read in place of the τ of καταλ[εγομενης], but και αλ[λων] (with του instead of νπ in l. 52) makes l. 53 much shorter than the preceding lines, though not much shorter than l. 54 if απολυσα[ι there is right. απολυσα[σθαι] is possible as far as the size of the lacuna is concerned, but would make l. 54 unusually long.

55. Kaivea : or Kaiveō[s].

56. ✕ in the margin, marking the beginning of the quotation, probably, as Allen suggests, means χρ(ῆσις), i.e. 'passage'; cf. Dion. Hal. De rhet. 4 and Apoll. Dysc. De synt. i. 119. It also occurs in Anecd. Oxon. ii. 452. 19 ✕ Ἀριστοφάνους (= Birds 1180), and in the Anecd. Parisinum de notis (Bergk, Zeitschr. f. Alter. 1845, 88) along with the obelus, which occurs in l. 116 of the papyrus, also apparently to indicate a quotation, for which the usual sign in papyri is the dipole, e.g. in 405 (Part iii, Plate i). The obelus is explained in the Anecd. Paris. in accordance with its usual sense of indicating an error; of ✕ the writer says chi et ro: haec sola vix ad voluntatem uniuscuiusque ad aliquid notandum ponitur.

Καινῆ: Kaivis, not Καὴνῆ, is the feminine form of Kaiveūs elsewhere; cf. Phleg. Fr. 34 οἱ αὐτοὶ (sc. Hesiod, Dicaearchus, Clearchus, Callimachus and others) ἰστοροῦσι κατὰ τὴν Λαπιθῶν χώραν γενέσθαι Ἐλάτῳ τῷ βασιλεῖ θυγατέρα ὀνομαζομένην Καινίδα ταυτῇ δὲ Ποσειδῶνα μιν γένετα ἐπαγγείλασθαι ποιήσειν αὐτὴν ὃ ἂν ἐθέλῃ, τὴν δὲ ἀξιώσαι μεταλλάξαι αὐτὴν εἰς ἄνδρα, ποιῆσαι τε ἄτρωτον. τοῦ δὲ Ποσειδῶνος κατὰ τὸ ἀξιώθεν ποιήσαντος μετονομασθῆναι Καινέα. Ovid, who describes at considerable length Caeneus' death in Metam. xii. 172 sqq., also has Caenis. Acusilaus' work was largely based on Hesiod, and the story of Caeneus may have been derived from the poet, though in the extant remains of Hesiod Caeneus is mentioned only in Scut. 179 among the list of the chiefs of the Lapithae. Homer also has only one mention of him, A 264 Καινέα τ' Ἐξάδιόν τε καὶ ἀντίθεον Πολύφημον, on which Schol. A remarks ὁ Καινέως Ἐλάτου μὲν ἦν παῖς, Λαπιθῶν δὲ βασιλεὺς, πρότερον ἦν παρθένος εὐπρεπής, μιν γένετος δὲ αὐτῇ Ποσειδῶνος, αἰτησαμένη μεταβαλεῖν εἰς ἄνδρα ἢ νεάνις ἄτρωτος γίνεται, γενναιοτάτος τῶν καθ' αὐτὸν ὑπάρξας. καὶ δὴ ποτε πῆξας ἀκόντιον ἐν τῷ μεσαιτάτῳ τῆς ἀγορᾶς θεὸν τοῦτο προσέταξεν ἀριθμεῖν. δι' ἣν αἰτίαν ἀγανακτήσας ὁ Ζεὺς τιμωρίαν τῆς ἀσεβείας παρ' αὐτοῦ εἰσπραξάτο. μαχόμενον γὰρ αὐτὸν τοῖς Κενταύροις καὶ ἄτρωτον ὄντα ὑποχείριον ἐποίησε· βαλόντες γὰρ αὐτὸν οἱ προειρημένοι δρυσι τε καὶ ἐλάταις ἤρρισαν εἰς γῆν. μέμνηται δὲ αὐτοῦ καὶ Ἀπολλώνιος ἐν τοῖς Ἀργοναυτικοῖς (i. 59), λέγων οὕτως· Καινέα γὰρ δὴ πρόσθεν ἔτι κλείουσιν αἰοδοὶ Κενταύροις ὀλέσθαι, ὅτε σφείας οἶος ἀπ' ἄλλων ἦλας· ἀριστήων· οἱ δ' ἔμπαλιν ὀρμηθέντες οὔτε μιν ἀγκλῖναι προτέρῳ σθένον οὔτε δαΐξαι, ἀλλ' ἄρρηκτος ἄκαμπτος ἐδύσατο νεῖοθι γαίης, θεινόμενος στιβαρῇσι καταγδὴν ἐλάτησιν. Eustathius' comment on the verse is very similar ὁ δὲ μῦθος φύσει ἄτρωτον αὐτὸν εἶναι φησι, πλαττῶν καὶ ὅτι παρθένος εὐπρεπής ποτε γεγόνει, καὶ Ποσειδῶνος αὐτῇ μιν γένετος, αἰτησαμένη ἀνὴρ γενέσθαι καὶ ἄτρωτος μέναι, ὃν ἤθελεν ἔτυχε. λέγεται δὲ καὶ ὑπερφρονῆσαι. ἀκόντιον γάρ, φασιν, ἐν ἀγορᾷ μέση πῆξας εἰς ὄρθον θεὸν τοῦτο προσέταξεν ἀριθμεῖν. ὅθεν ἡ δίκη ποινὴν αὐτὸν ἀσεβείας εἰσπραττομένη πεποίηκεν ὑπὸ τοῖς Κενταύροις, οἱ δρυσι τε καὶ ἐλάταις εἰς γῆν ἤρρισαν ἄρρηκτον καὶ ἄκαμπτον δύντα ὑπὸ γῆν, θεινόμενον στιβαραῖς καταγδὴν ἐλάταις, ὥς φησιν Ἀπολλώνιος. Schol. Apoll. Rhod. i. 59 has μυθολογοῦσι δὲ τὸν Καινέα πρότερον γεγενῆσθαι γυναῖκα, εἴτα Ποσειδῶνος αὐτῇ πλησιάσαντος μεταβληθῆναι εἰς ἄνδρα. τοῦτο γὰρ ἤτησε καὶ ἄτρωσίαν. ἤρρισε δὲ καὶ Ἀπόλλωνι καὶ ἐνίκηθη. οὗτος ἔκελευε τοὺς παριόντας ὁμνῆσαι εἰς τὸ δόρυ αὐτοῦ· ἔνθεν ἡ παροιμία τὸ Καινέως δόρυ. τινὲς δὲ φασιν Καινέα συμπλεῦσαι τοῖς Ἀργοναύταις, οὐ Κόρωνον. ὁ δὲ Ἀπολλώνιος παρὰ Πινδάρου εἴληφε λέγοντος, ὁ δὲ χλωρῆς ἐλάτῃσι τυπέις ὦχετο Καινέως σχίσας ὀρθῶ ποδὶ γῶν (= Pind. Fr. 167 Schroeder). τοῦτο δὲ αὐτῷ συνέβη διὰ τὸ μήτε θῆναι μήτε εὐχεσθαι τοῖς θεοῖς, ἀλλὰ τῷ ἑαυτοῦ δόρατι. διὸ Ζεὺς ἐφορμᾷ αὐτῷ τοὺς Κενταύρους, οἵτινες κατὰ γῆν αὐτὸν ὠθοῦσιν. Agatharchides' description (De mari Eryth. 7) is ἐτι Καινέα τὸν Λαπιθὴν τὸ μὲν ἀπ' ἀρχῆς γενέσθαι παρθένον καὶ γυναῖκα, ἡβήσαντα δὲ εἰς ἄνδρα μεταστῆναι, τὸ δ' ἵστατον εἰς τὴν γῆν ὑπὸ τῶν Κενταύρων καταδύναι ταῖς ἐλάταις τυπτόμενον, ὀρθόν τε καὶ ζῶντα. The connexion between some of these passages and the Acusilaus extract is very close, especially in the earlier part of Schol. A on A 264 (followed by Eustathius), and the later part of Schol. Apoll. Rhod. i. 59, where Acusilaus is either slightly paraphrased or reproduced. Evidently Acusilaus was the chief authority for the Caeneus legend, though e.g. the details about the request to be made into a man, which are absent in Acusilaus and are elaborated in Schol. Luc. Gall. 19 somewhat differently, are probably derived from another mythologist.

59. ιερων: a diaeresis above ι may be lost. Acusilaus' remark seems very naïve in the light of the number of legends about children of the gods by mortals; and it is not surprising that in ll. 85-100, the union of gods and mortals is further discussed by our author with a parallel from Euripides.

τεκέν: most of the fourth letter has disappeared in a lacuna; but after κ is part of a stroke which suits the beginning of ε, and the end of a horizontal stroke joining the middle of ν survives, which excludes τεκειν, the ordinary Ionic form, found e.g. in Hdt. vi. 131, but of course with a circumflex accent. τεκέειν is an altogether impossible reading, though parallels for such a form are not wanting in Hdt.; cf. Smyth, Ionic Dialect, § 602. τεκέέν is just possible as a reading, but much less probable than τεκέν, because (1) the lacuna is not large enough for εε with cross-bars as long as that in the ε after τ, (2) the accent, with the reading εε, would really be on the second ε, not the first, where it ought to have been placed, (3) though the Ionic second aorist infinitive in εῖν is ultimately derived from -έειν (cf. Smyth, l. c.), that form of the infinitive is not found in either Hdt. or Ionic inscriptions, any more than in the MSS. of Homer, so that Acusilaus, though a writer of considerable antiquity, is not at all likely to have used the form τεκέέν, nor would the corrector of the papyrus have been likely to ascribe it to him by error. τεκέν is a Doric form, parallel to ἐξελέν, ἀγαγέν, &c. (cf. Kühner-Blass, Gramm. i. 2, p. 58), and, the present extract being the sole authority for Acusilaus' dialect, does not require to be altered to τεκῖν, especially since Dorisms tend to occur in Ionic, and the corrector has put the right accent on the form, not merely omitted ι.

εκεινου: i.e. Poseidon, as is clear from ἐξ αλλου ουδενος, in spite of the confusion of genders in l. 61. Cf. also Plut. Thes. 20 τεκέν ἐκ Θησέως Ἀριάδην Οἰνοπίαν.

61. αυτον: l. αυτην.

63. [με]γ[σ]τ[η]ν: cf. γενναϊότατος τῶν καθ' αὐτόν in Schol. A quoted in l. 56, n.

66. κεντοῖη: οἱ κεντοῖ η. Herodotus avoids optatives in -ιη and does not contract -εοι after a consonant, so that Acusilaus' usage was in any case not parallel to his. φοροῖη occurs in Homer i. 320, πλουτοῖη in Tyrtæus, συμμαρτυροῖη in Solon, δοκοῖη in Heraclitus, while Hippocrates prefers -οιη to -εοι. On the other hand Theognis has φίλοι, and 'even in prose there is ample support for οι after consonants as well as after vowels' (Smyth, op. cit. p. 531; cf. § 651).

67-8. μαλιστα χρηματων: the lexicons do not afford any parallels for this expression.

73-4. For the suggested restoration of these lines cf. the scholiasts quoted in l. 56, n.

75. The letter following ηε can be ν. σι δ ου και ε. [is inadmissible, ει being the only alternative to η. No word meaning 'worshipped' seems suitable, and *θεοι*σι δ κτλ. is apparently to be connected with what follows rather than with the preceding sentence, so that a word meaning 'pleasing' would be appropriate (ηεν [ηδν?]).

80. ορειον is evidently a mistake for ορθιον, as remarked by Allen; cf. ὀρθῶ ποδί in the Pindar fragment and ὀρθόν in Agatharchides, both quoted in l. 56, n. The Ionic form of ὄρειον would be ουρειον, and that word is quite inappropriate here.

84. τι is for το.

85-6. A predicate for δυναται would be expected in place of δια τουτου, e.g. τουτο οἱ ἰσον.

87-93. Of Euripides' Ἀλκμέων ὁ διὰ Κορίνθου only three fragments are known with certainty (Frs. 74, 75, 77 Nauck), but the argument of it is described by Apollodorus iii. 7. 7, who calls the children in question (Amphilochus and Tisiphone) παῖδας δύο, not twins as in l. 92. Their mother (the παρθένος of l. 93) was Manto, daughter of Tiresias, and the θεός of l. 89 is evidently Apollo; cf. Apollod. iii. 7. 4 πέμπουσιν Ἀπόλλωνι καὶ τὴν Τειρεσίῳ θυγατέρα Μαντώ, and Ep. 6. 3, where in a different legend Mopsus is called the son of Apollo and Manto.

97. The verb in the apodosis may well have been δηλοῦται, as Rostowzew suggests.

101-11. The restoration of ll. 102-3 Πολέμων . . . ἀκροπό]λεως is due to Stuart Jones; cf. int. and Marcellinus, Vita Thuc. §§ 16-17 ὅτι γὰρ Ὀλορός ἐστὶν ἡ στήλη δηλοῖ ἢ ἐπὶ τοῦ τάφου αὐτοῦ κειμένη, ἔνθα κεχάρακται Ἐουκνυδίδης Ὀλόρου Ἀλιμούσιος (in § 55 the inscription is quoted on the authority of Antyllus). πρὸς γὰρ ταῖς Μελιτίσι πύλαις καλουμέναις ἐστὶν ἐν Κοίλῃ τὰ καλούμενα Κιμώνια μνήματα, ἔνθα δέικνται Ἡροδότου καὶ Ἐουκνυδίδου τάφος. εὐρίσκεται (δὴ?) δῆλον ὅτι τοῦ Μιλιτιάδου γένους ὦν ξένος γὰρ οὐδεὶς ἐκεῖ θάπτεται. καὶ Πολέμων δὲ ἐν τῷ Περὶ ἀκροπόλεως τούτοις μαρτυρεῖ, ἔνθα καὶ Τιμόθεον υἱὸν αὐτῷ γεγενῆσθαι προσιστορεῖ, and § 28 ἐγένοντο Ἐουκνυδίδαι πολλοί, οὕτως τε ὁ Ὀλόρου παῖς καὶ δεύτερος δημαγωγός, Μελησίου, ὃς καὶ Περικλεῖ διεπολιτεύσατο· τρίτος δὲ γένει Φαρσάλιος, οὗ μέμνηται Πολέμων ἐν τοῖς Περὶ ἀκροπόλεως, φάσκων αὐτὸν εἶναι πατρὸς Μένωνος. There were four books of the Περὶ ἀκροπ. according to Strabo ix. p. 396. The letter following δη in l. 102 is very uncertain, only a spot of ink at the bottom of the line being preserved, which indicates an angular letter (α or λ) or else one beginning with a vertical stroke (e. g. μ, ν, or π) rather than a round letter such as σ. ἀναγραφ[ in l. 105 (ψ is the only alternative for φ) suggests an inscription about Thucydides son of Melesias and father of Stephanus, parallel to that apparently mentioned by Polemon in the same work with reference to the historian; and in fact Athen. vi. 234 d states that Polemon γράφας περὶ παρασίτων φησὶν οὕτως . . . ἐν Κυνοσάργει μὲν οὖν ἐν τῷ Ἡρακλείῳ στήλῃ τίς ἐστιν, ἐν ᾗ ψήφισμα μὲν Ἀλκιβιάδου, γραμματεὺς δὲ Στέφανος Ἐουκνυδίδου . . . This stele may well be identified with or connected with the ἀναγραφὴ here, especially since the paternity of Stephanus seems to the point with which our author is most concerned (cf. ll. 112 sqq.); but the Athenaeus quotation is generally assigned to Polemon's Περὶ ὀνομάτων ἀδόξων ἐπιστολή (Athen. ix. 409 d), and Polemon was there clearly concerned with the meaning of παράσιτος, not with Thucydides, so that in any case our author's reference to Polemon Περὶ ἀκροπόλεως was not to the passage quoted by Athenaeus. For Κο[α]λεμον in l. 107 (suggested by Allen) cf. Plut. Cimon 4 Κίμων δὲ . . . καὶ τῷ πάππῳ Κίμωνι προσεικῶς τὴν φύσιν, ὃν δι' εὐθελίαν φασὶ Κοάλεμον προσαγορευθῆναι, and Aeschines Socraticus quoted by Athen. v. 220 b Ἰππόνικον μὲν τὸν Καλλίου Κοάλεμον προσαγορεῖ. The ο is nearly certain, but it is necessary to suppose the omission of καλου owing to homoioteleuton. Upon the restoration of the end of l. 108 depends the sense of the whole passage. Starting from the fact that Polemon according to Marcellinus mentioned both Thucydides the historian and Thuc. the Pharsalian (a proxenus of the Athenians in 411 B. C.; cf. Thuc. viii. 92) in the Περὶ ἀκροπ., we think that φασι in l. 110 includes Polemon (l. 102), and therefore in ll. 101-2 the name of another author is to be supplied, to which δη . [in l. 102 may belong, [οἱ in l. 108 referring to both names. For τρι]τον in l. 110 cf. Marcellinus § 28 quoted above. The general sense of ll. 101-11 seems to be that Polemon Περὶ ἀκροπ. and another author referred to not one Thucydides only (ἓνα or ἐνικῶς may have followed οὐχ in l. 101) on the evidence of an inscription (? δε], or ἐξ], ἀναγραφ[ῶν in ll. 104-5), but to three in all. A mention of Thucydides by name is expected before l. 106, and Ἐουκνυδι]δην can well be restored in ll. 101-2 (in which case there is room for only a very short name after it before καὶ, and τον in l. 106 is probably αυ]τον), or Ἐουκνυδιδην] τον can be read in ll. 105-6; but a restoration of the whole passage is scarcely possible. The hypothesis that οὐχ qualifies the whole sentence and the point is that Polemon did not mention (δηλ[οι could be read in l. 102) the son of Melesias, but only the other two persons called Thucydides, is unsatisfactory, for though Marcellinus does not refer to Polemon in connexion with the son of Melesias, Polemon of course knew about the politician, and ἀναγραφ[ does not at all suggest that οὐχ is to be connected with a verb meaning 'mentioned'. A different sense would be obtained by restoring [ἄλλοι in l. 108 as the subject of φασι, contrasted with Πολέμων in l. 102, who would then stand by himself. To get rid of the supposed author coupled with Polemon is an advantage, but with τρι]τον in l. 110 the passage would then produce a marked conflict with Marcellinus' statements that Polemon referred to the historian and the Pharsalian in the Περὶ ἀκροπ. This difficulty could be somewhat lessened by restoring του||τον instead of τρι||τον in l. 110, and supposing the general sense to be that Polemon identified a certain Thucydides with the son of Melesias, while others maintained that he was the Pharsalian. But the reference to the son of Olorus then becomes rather pointless, especially in view of the circumstance that Polemon is known from Marcellinus to have produced evidence for the ancestry of the historian.

113-19 Cf. Μενο 94 c ἐνθυμήθητι ὅτι Θουκυδίδης κτλ. One MS. (F) has ὁ Θουκ., which is possible here, and before τουτους in l. 118 the MSS. insert καί. A similar passage occurs in the Pseudo-Platonic Περὶ ἀρετῆς 378 a, where it is stated with regard to Melesias and Stephanus τὸν γ' ἕτερον μέχρι γήρως βιοῦντα, τὸν δ' ἕτερον πόρρω πάνν. Melesias is a character in the Laches, but nothing more is known about Stephanus, except the inscription discussed in the preceding n. For the obelus against l. 116 cf. l. 56, n.

119-20. Ερμυ[πος ο ποι]ήτης; the title is added to distinguish him from the philosopher, ὁ Καλλιμάχειος. The poet was older than Eupolis and Aristophanes according to Suidas. The titles of nine of his comedies are known, but not the Iapetus.

121. Ιωνο[ς Ομφ]αλη: the Omphale was a satyric drama, of which sixteen fragments are known. Another quotation from it perhaps occurred in ll. 277 sqq.

123. <υφ> Ηρακλεους should perhaps be read, Heracles being then the speaker of the two lines; cf. l. 89 λεγομενον υπο θεου. As the text stands, the subject of ἐξελαι[νο]μεν may be the satyrs, not Heracles. With βορειος [ιπ]πος (so Allen) cf. Homer Υ 221 sqq. τοῦ τρισχίλιαι ἵπποι . . . τῶν καὶ Βορέης ἡρώστατο βοσκομέναν. Perhaps Βορειος should be written.

124-5. ορων . . . Πελοπος: cf. Fr. 24 (Nauck) of the Omphale καὶ Σαρδιανὸν κόσμον εἰδέναι χροὸς ἄμεινον ἢ τὸν Πέλοπος ἐν νήσῳ τρόπον. The scene of the Omphale was laid in Lydia (cf. Frs. 22, 23, 27). Possibly Heracles had been sent by Omphale to fetch one of the horses sprung from Boreas which belonged to Pelops; cf. the legend of the capture of the horses of Diomedes, which Heracles gave to Eurystheus (Apollod. ii. 5. 8). But the plot of the Omphale is very obscure.

127. ἀνεται, which would mean 'is winnowed', is obviously an error for ἀνεται: cf. e.g. Homer K 251 μαλὰ γὰρ νύξ ἀνεται.

128. [διαλ]ελυκε δ: on the analogy of the preceding lines two letters before λ]ελυκε would be preferable, but probably the column sloped away a little to the left, though ο in l. 129 can be omitted. [και λ]ελυκε δ is also possible, the simple verb as well as διαλύειν being used for solving difficulties. Cf. for καὶ . . . δέ ll. 174-5, n.

128-9. Μνα[στας ο?] Παταρ[εως]: cf. int. and Susemihl i. 679. 1611 agrees with the scholia on Hesiod, Pindar, and Lucian in giving Patara (in Lycia) as his birthplace, while the MSS. of Athenaeus and Photius call him ὁ Πατρεύς, i.e. from Patrae in Achaea, but in the light of 1611 are to be emended to ὁ Παταρεύς. With regard to the title of his work on oracles Schol. Pindar, Ol. ii. 70 calls it Περὶ χρησμῶν, while Schol. Hesiod, Theog. 117 calls it ἡ τῶν Δελφικῶν χρησμῶν συναγωγή. 1611 seems to agree with the former, but τη[ι] των χρησμο[ν] συναγωγῆ is a possible reading.

135-43. The coronis after l. 138 probably indicates a following quotation (cf. l. 115 and int. p. 129), to which θαρσει in l. 141 may well belong. Allen suggests Πενθε[σιλεια] . . . in l. 139 and θαρσει Π[ενθεσιλεια] in l. 141, i.e. a quotation from the Aethiopsis of Arctinus, which is perhaps cited in ll. 145-50; cf. ll. 148-9, n. But ος (probably ος) εμ[in l. 142 does not suit this hypothesis, and the colour of Frs. 3 and 4 is different, so that a connexion between them is unlikely. Lines 136-8 might also be hexameters, as Allen remarks, e.g. ον παι[ερα κλησας(α)] ο δε θα[. . .

146. εγγος: this spelling of ἐγγονος occurs in Attic inscriptions down to 300 B.C. and in Ptolemaic inscriptions and papyri (cf. Mayser, Gramm. d. griech. Pap. p. 228); but is not legitimate in hexameters.

148-9. Αρ|κτι|?|νος : $[\text{Αχ?}]_{\text{αιος}}$ can equally well be read, or possibly $[\text{.}]_{\text{αιος}}$. Achaeus wrote tragedies entitled Ἀδραστος, Ἀζάνες, Ἀθλα, Ἀλφεισίβοια, Θησεύς, Κύκνος, Μοῖραι, Μῶμος, Οἰδίπους, Πειρίθους, Φιλοκτήτης, and Φρίξος, one of which may have described the death of the woman in question; but if the author mentioned in l. 149 also wrote the hexameter verse quoted in l. 146 (which is probable, but not clear), he is not likely to have been Achaeus. With Αρ|κτι|νος (Allen) the quotation would come from the Aethiopsis, the woman being Penthesilea and the speaker presumably Achilles; cf. ll. 135-43, n. $\epsilon\kappa\tau\iota\theta\epsilon\tau[αι]$ may, however, end l. 148.

150-2. It is not possible to restore $\Sigma\iota\mu\omega\iota\iota\delta\eta\varsigma$. . . $\tau[\omega] \bar{\epsilon} [\pi\alpha] \iota\alpha[\nu\omega\iota\varsigma]$.

154. Not more than one line, if any, is lost before the top of the column, twenty-four lines being accounted for, if Fr. 43, which is referred to the middles of ll. 160-2 a, is rightly placed, as is practically certain. That Fr. 5 belongs to the upper part of the column of which Fr. 6. i is the bottom is indicated by the colour of the verso besides the suitability of the resulting restoration.

158-9. $\kappa\alpha\iota\theta\epsilon\pi\epsilon\rho \phi\eta\sigma\iota\upsilon \epsilon\rho\alpha\tau\omicron\sigma\theta\epsilon\iota\upsilon\eta\varsigma$ (Allen) can be restored; cf. ll. 162-5, n. and int.

160. $\Phi[ρ\upsilon]\nu[ι]χ\omicron\varsigma$: cf. l. 171. $\epsilon\nu | \tau\alpha\iota\varsigma \Phi[ρ\upsilon]\nu[ι]χ\omicron\upsilon \omega\delta\alpha\iota\varsigma | \alpha\phi\eta\gamma\omicron[\nu] \mu\epsilon\nu[ου]$ is unlikely on account of the verb in l. 165 ($\pi\alpha\rho\alpha\pi\omicron\iota\epsilon\iota$?).

161. Perhaps $\alpha\phi\eta\gamma\omicron[\nu] \mu\epsilon\nu[ος] \omicron\upsilon\tau\omega\varsigma$.

162-5. Cf. Ar. Clouds 967 ἢ 'Παλλάδα περσέπολιν δεινὰν' ἢ 'τῆλεπόρον τι βδάμα', where Schol. RV have ἀρχὴ ἄσματος Φρύνιχον, ὡς Ἐρατοσθένης φησὶν (φη. ὡς Ἐρ. Φρυν. V), Φρύνιχος (δὲ V, om. R) αὐτοῦ τούτου τοῦ ἄσματος μνημονεύει ὡς Λαμπροκλέους ὄντος Παλλάδα περσέπολιν κλήϊσω πολεμαδόκον ἀγνὰν παῖδα Διὸς μεγάλου, and Schol. Ald. has . . . Λαμπροκλέους εἶναί φασιν Ἀθηναίου, τοῦ Μίδωνος υἱοῦ. ἔχει δὲ οὕτως Παλλάδα περσέπολιν κτλ., as in Schol. RV, but adding δαμάσιππον after μεγάλου. ἄλλως. οὕτως Ἐρατοσθένης. Φρύνιχος αὐτοῦ τούτου τοῦ ἄσματος μέμνηται ὡς Λαμπροκλέους ὄντος τοῦ Μίδωνος υἱοῦ ἢ μαθητοῦ. ἔχει δὲ οὕτως Παλλάδα περσέπολιν δεινὴν θεὸν ἐγρεκύδοιμον ποτικλήϊσω πολεμαδόκον ἀγνὰν παῖδα Διὸς μεγάλου δαμάσιππον, καὶ κατὰ Λαμπροκλέα ὑποτίθησι κατὰ λέξιν. Schol. Aristid. 217 Dindorf (in reference to the Aristophanes line) has εἶδος τοῦτο ἄσματος καὶ ἀρχή· τὸν δὲ ποιητὴν αὐτοῦ 'Ροῦφος καὶ Διονύσιος (time of Hadrian) ἰστοροῦσιν ἐν τῇ Μουσικῇ (sc. ἱστορίαι) Φρύνιχόν τινα, ἄλλοι δὲ φασὶ Λαμπροκλέα ἢ Στησίχορον. τὸ δὲ 'δεινὴν' ἀντὶ τοῦ κλήϊσω κεῖται παρὰ τῷ κωμικῷ· τὸ γὰρ ἄσμα οὕτως ἔχει 'Παλλάδα περσέπολιν κλήϊσω πολεμαδόκον ἀγνὰν παῖδα Διὸς μεγάλου δαμάσιππον (δαμνηπλον or δαμνηπλων MSS.) ἄιστον (corrupt) παρθένον. These passages are discussed by Wilamowitz, Textgesch. d. griech. Lyr. 84-5. There were evidently at least two versions of the hymn. 1611 agrees with the version in the first note in Schol. Ald., which is really the same as that of Schol. RV and Schol. Aristid., the former scholium merely omitting δαμάσιππον and the latter having κλήϊσω for κλήϊω and adding two words at the end. This, the shorter of the two versions, was that of Phrynichus, as is clear from 1611, and was rightly stated by Schol. RV and Schol. Aristid., whereas the first note in Schol. Ald. wrongly assigned it to Lamprocles. The longer version, i. e. that of Lamprocles, with which Aristophanes' citation, so far as it goes, agrees, was given in the second note in Schol. Ald., where the authorship is not clearly indicated. None of the scholia makes it clear which Phrynichus is meant. The lyric and tragic poet was formerly supposed to be indicated, but now the Phrynichus in question whether understood or not by the scholiasts (cf. Wilamowitz, l. c.), is generally considered to be the comic poet. 1611 also makes no clear sign on this point, but the way in which Phrynichus and Aristophanes are coupled ($\pi\alpha\rho\alpha\pi\omicron\iota\epsilon\iota$ is apparently used with regard to both; cf. the next n.) favours the identification with the comic poet. The brief statements in Schol. RV may be derived from our author's fuller discussion, if he was reproducing Eratosthenes or, as is possible but not likely (cf. int.), was Eratosthenes himself. The other scholia do not seem to be specially connected with 1611.

165. $\pi\alpha\rho\alpha\pi\omicron\iota\epsilon\iota$: cf. l. 175 $\pi\alpha\rho\alpha\pi\omicron\iota\epsilon\iota$. The word can mean either 'imitate' or 'introduce'.

168. Χαμαιλεων: cf. p. 129. His work Περὶ κωμωδίας is cited by Athen. ix. 374 a.

171. The omission of the superfluous ι is indicated by both a dot above it (cf. e.g. 1624) and a stroke through it.

172-3. μα[θη(τη) | Μιδωνος?]: μα may be at the end of the line, but μα[θητη] does not fill the lacuna and is unintelligible. The suggested restoration is very doubtful, but brings the passage into connexion with Schol. Ald. on Ar. Clouds 967 (quoted in ll. 162-5, n.) Μιδωνος υιοῦ ἢ μαθητοῦ, and there is no objection to μα[θη], if the last two letters were written small, as often happens at the end of a line. Schol. Plat. Alcib. i. 387 makes Lamprocles the pupil of Agathocles and teacher of Damon. μα[ can hardly be an adjective of place, for Lamprocles was an Athenian.

174-5. For και . . . δε cf. ll. 128, n., 150-1, 228-9.

183. λαθ[: or λαθ[.

195. πυρ: cf. l. 306. But Fr. 7 does not belong to the same column as Frs. 21-2.

202. γνη is perhaps γνη[σιος in some form. γγνη[ cannot be read, ρ or υ being the only alternatives for τ.

212-14. Ελλαυ[κος δ εν [ταις Εθνων?] κτισεσι: the restoration is due to Allen. The works variously entitled Περὶ ἐθνῶν, Ἐθνῶν ὀνομασίαι, Κτίσεις, Κτίσεις ἐθνῶν καὶ πόλεων (Hellan. Fr. 109 from Steph. Byz.; 1611 seems to have had ἐθνῶν or πόλεων alone), and perhaps Περὶ Χίου κτίσεως, are all considered to be identical by Gudeman in Pauly-Wissowa, Realenc. viii. 136-7.

216. κ' for κ(αι) occurs as early as the end of the first century in the Ἀθηναίων Πολιτεία papyrus.

218-28. Cf. int. p. 129.

222-3. μεθικαν α[ποκομισαμ?]ενοι δε: the vestige of the letter following καν is too slight to be a real clue, but suggests α or λ more than a letter beginning with a vertical stroke, or round. μεθ(ε)ικαν = μεθήκαν is much more likely than μεθ ικαν. [(i.e. some part of ικανός), for there is hardly room for a substantive in l. 222 as well as the beginning of a participle. In Dittenberger, Or. Gr. Inscr. 55. 6, ἀφείκεν is apparently a mere variation of spelling for ἀφῆκεν, which occurs in l. 13, not a perfect, as regarded by Mayser, op. cit. p. 331.

223. The correction is by the first hand; cf. p. 130. The reading of the letter after τον is very doubtful, but α or λ suits better than any other letter.

224. Π[αρον: cf. l. 226. But η, κ, μ, ν or γ. [or ι. [can be read in place of π.

228-9. Cf. ll. 174-5, n.

231. If the paragraphus is rightly placed (cf. however ll. 90-1, where it is not), αριστα[ is not to be connected with ll. 232 sqq., so that Αριστα[ρχος is not very likely. Αριστο[φανης cannot be read.

245. εσχατοι[: the second letter might be γ or ι, the third α or λ, the last ν.

247. ο δε Ασση[: no personal name beginning thus is known, but there might be a reference to the places Ἀσσημα or Ἀσσησός or adjectives derived from them. Neither Ασσις [nor Ασσιο[ς is admissible; Ασσιω[ρος (a river in Sicily so spelled in Thuc. vii. 84) is possible, but seems too long, even with ε: στρατενοι in l. 248, while Ασσιω[ρο]ν [σ]τρατενοι, which is possible as a reading, gives no construction. The division as ση[ (or συ[) does not suggest any suitable word.

268. Perhaps Σιμ[ωνιδου.

270. νυαδο[: the third letter could be read as λ. The division πα?]νυ αδο[ is more probable than νυαδο[.

278. Possibly Ομφα[λην: cf. l. 121, n.

280. [Θεοδεκ[τ]η]ς: the tip of a vertical stroke below the line suits τ, and is inconsistent with the terminations of Καρκίνος, Εὐριπίδης, or Τιμησίθεος, who are the only other tragic poets known to have written an Orestes. Of Theodectes' play with that title only one line is extant.

281. ε above the line is cursively written; cf. p. 130.

283.]ιδ[.]μους δ[.: va is possible in place of ιδ, and α or λ instead of δ after]μους. Δ]ιδ[.]μους δ[ε can be restored, but this line may belong to the quotation from the Orestes; cf. int. p. 129.

301. Λυσιν[πος: cf. l. 34.

303.]ντρ[.: Frs. 21 and 22 join here, the tail of the ρ being on Fr. 22.

306. πνρ: cf. l. 195, n.

327-31. Cf. ll. 23-7, n.

339. After τη is an erasure with perhaps one or two letters above it.

341. λνρ[is more likely to be connected with λείριον than with λνρός. It does not seem possible to read ανρ[.

359.]μαφν[.: possibly Ερ]μαφν[οδιτ.

369-70. Allen suggests βασιλ[εως Φ[ιλοπατορος] (or Φ[ιλαδελφου] Πτολεμ[αιου: but if so the order of the words is unusual.

392-5. Fr. 43 has been assigned to ll. 160-2 a.

442. There is no other instance in 1611 of a stop in the middle position, and it is very doubtful whether Fr. 64 belongs to this papyrus.

1612. ORATION ON THE CULT OF CAESAR.

28.2 × 12 cm.

Third century.

This papyrus, which was found with 1606-8, &c., and concludes the publication of the first of the three large finds of literary papyri in 1905-6 (cf. 1606. int.), belongs to a speech of a novel character, the subject of it being the cult of a Roman Emperor, who is called simply 'Caesar'. One column of forty lines is fairly well preserved, and there are beginnings of lines of a second column, besides a small detached scrap, which does not seem to belong to Col. i. The handwriting is a not very elegant specimen of the sloping oval third-century type. The beginnings of the lines, which contain 15-20 letters, slope away to the left in a marked degree, and the ends are decidedly uneven. Paragraphi and frequent high stops occur. ι adscript is written in l. 27, but in l. 11 its insertion is doubtful. A correction in l. 12 is in a different hand, which used lighter ink, but seems to be not appreciably later than the first. In ll. 22-5 apparent corruptions have not been altered.

The main purport of the oration, so far as it can be ascertained, was the opposition of the speaker to the cult of Caesar as practised in his own city (l. 26 ἐνθάδε), or rather to certain extensions of it or novelties (cf. l. 1, n.) proposed by his adversaries. To Caesar-worship in general he does not seem to have been opposed, for in ll. 22 sqq. he expressly deprecates ἀσέβεια towards Caesar, and disclaims any wish to deprive him of the 'glory of immortality'. In addressing his audience he habitually used the second person plural (ll. 30 sqq.), while his opponents are also spoken of in the plural (l. 11 φασί); but in l. 10 [β]ούλοιτο a single adversary seems to be indicated, and in l. 1 the second person singular is apparently used, with reference to an opponent more probably than to himself in an objection placed in the mouth of an adversary. The first six lines are too incomplete to be restored: a new sentence began in l. 7, as is shown by the paragraphus. The speaker refers to the rites performed in honour of Caesar, and strongly asserts his satisfaction that these were not invented by his fellow countrymen (ἡμεῖς), but at Nicaea by an individual whom he declines to describe (ll. 9–17). His argument is that this cult ought to be left to the Nicaeans, and that the observance of it at his own city would be as impious to Caesar as the celebration of the Eleusinian mysteries at any other city than Athens would be to Demeter (ll. 17–29; this interpretation rests on two rather violent alterations in the text, which are, we think, absolutely necessitated by the context; cf. l. 22, n.). Evidently conscious that he was treading on dangerous ground, the orator then declares his intention of proving that his own views were not really derogatory to the immortality of Caesar (ll. 30–5); but the text becomes fragmentary at this point, a contrast being apparently drawn in ll. 35–40 between the previous and the existing cults at the city in question. From Col. ii nothing of importance can be gleaned.

The boldness of the speaker in dealing with so delicate a topic as Caesar-worship is striking, and one would gladly have learnt more of his views on this interesting subject. As the fragment stands, it is difficult, perhaps impossible, to reconstruct the background of the situation with any approach to certainty. The first questions to arise are (1) what place was meant by ἐνθάδε in l. 26, and (2) which, if any particular emperor was meant by 'Caesar'? The reference to Nicaea as the starting-place of the cult to which the speaker objected suggests a connexion with the well-known description of the origin of Caesar-worship in Dio Cassius li. 20 Καῖσαρ δὲ ἐν τούτῳ (sc. 29 B.C.) τὰ τε ἄλλα ἐχρημάτιζε καὶ τεμένη τῇ τε 'Ρώμῃ καὶ τῷ πατρὶ τῷ Καίσαρι ἥρωα αὐτὸν 'Ιούλιον ὀνομάσας ἐν τε 'Εφέσῳ καὶ ἐν Νικαίᾳ γενέσθαι ἐφῆκεν. αὐταὶ γὰρ τότε αἱ πόλεις ἐν τε τῇ 'Ασίᾳ καὶ ἐν τῇ Βιθυνίᾳ προετετίμηντο. καὶ τούτους μὲν τοῖς 'Ρωμαίοις τοῖς παρ' αὐτοῖς ἐποικοῦσι τιμᾶν προσέταξε· τοῖς δὲ δὴ ξένοις ('Ελληνας σφᾶς ἐπικαλέσας) ἑαυτῷ τινα, τοῖς μὲν 'Ασιανοῖς ἐν Περγάμῳ, τοῖς δὲ Βιθυνοῖς ἐν Νικομηδείᾳ τεμενίσαι ἐπέτρεψε. καὶ τοῦτ' ἐκείθεν ἀρξάμενον καὶ ἐπ' ἄλλων αὐτοκρατόρων οὐ μόνον ἐν τοῖς 'Ελληνικοῖς ἔθνεσιν, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἐν τοῖς ἄλλοις ὅσα τῶν 'Ρωμαίων ἀκούει ἐγένετο. Dio's statement that the temples at Pergamum and Nicomedia were dedicated to Augustus alone requires modification, since it conflicts with the statements of Tacitus, Ann. iv. 37, that the temple at Pergamum was dedicated to Augustus and Rome, and of Suetonius, Aug. 52, that Rome was regularly associated with Augustus in the provincial cults; cf. Kornemann, Klio, i. 98. The correspondence between the papyrus and Dio would be made most exact by supposing the speaker in 1612 to be a Roman (which is in any case probable), and 'Caesar' to be Julius throughout. ἐνθάδε, with which Nicaea is so vehemently contrasted, might well be Nicomedia; for the two cities were long engaged in feud on the question of the headship of Bithynia, and the dispute was sufficiently important to be the subject of an oration by Dio Chrysostom (no. 38), recommending his compatriots of Nicomedia to come to terms with Nicaea. The hypothesis that the speaker in 1612 was a Nicomedian would also accord very well with the reference in ll. 24-8 to Demeter; for that goddess appears on the coins of Nicomedia (Wroth, Catal. of Greek coins of Pontus, &c., pp. 181, 183, 186), and Arrian, the most famous citizen of Nicomedia (cf. Steph. Byz. s. v.), was perpetual priest of Demeter and Core there (Schwartz in Pauly-Wissowa, Realenc. ii. 1230). With this interpretation of 1612, which is based upon the identification of 'Caesar' with Julius and the existence of a close connexion with Dio, the oration was presumably delivered during the reign of Augustus, when Caesar-worship of any kind was still a novelty. But there are several other possible modes of interpretation. The references to 'Caesar' in 1612 do not necessarily indicate that he was dead at the time when the oration was delivered (though cf. l. 31, n.), and if he was alive, 'Caesar' must be Augustus or one of his successors, not Julius. The date of the papyrus practically excludes the possibility of a later emperor than Severus Alexander being meant (Diocletian, who made his residence at Nicomedia, is quite out of the question); but, especially in view of the rather compromising character of the contents of 1612, it would be more satisfactory to diminish the interval between the supposed date of composition and that of the papyrus, which if 'Caesar' is Julius or Augustus seems to be about 200 years. Caracalla and Heliogabalus both wintered at Nicomedia, and festivals in honour of Commodus and the brothers Caracalla and Geta are mentioned in the coins of Nicaea (Wroth, op. cit. pp. 162, 166). It is also just possible that in ll. 35-6 there is a reference to 'Caesars' in the plural, and that these are the reigning emperors. Not only is the hypothesis that the scene of the speech was Bithynia quite compatible with the identification of 'Caesar' with a much later emperor than Augustus, but the provenance of the papyrus rather suggests Egypt as the scene, though 1612 is hardly parallel to e.g. 471, a speech before an emperor directed probably against a praefect of Egypt, which is also arranged in literary form, with punctuation, &c. Against, however, the advantages to be gained by making 'Caesar' throughout a second or even third century emperor has to be set the consequent impossibility of connecting the reference to Nicaea with the passage quoted from Dio Cassius. If 'the Nicaean' was the author of the proposal mentioned by Dio, as the coincidence with regard to the place-name suggests, Κα[ίσα]ρι in l. 11 ought to be Julius, and there is no indication that in ll. 9, 24, and 32 a different Caesar is meant. Moreover the use of the present tense ἐστίν in l. 15 in place of ἦν, though explicable as a mere piece of rhetoric, rather indicates that the Nicaean in question was still alive, and if so he cannot have been a second or third century individual, unless the circumstances alluded to in ll. 14-16 were quite different from those described by Dio.

A third line of interpretation was proposed by Sir W. M. Ramsay, who, taking Caesar as 'the Emperor' in the widest sense, i.e. including the dead as well as the living, suggests that 1612 deals with the degradation of true Caesar-worship, as expressing Roman patriotism, by superstitious admixture, as e.g. the Nicaean cult of the βροτόπους ἵππος illustrated by the coins of that city (cf. Drexler in Roscher's Lex. d. griech. u. röm. Mythol. ii. 2693-6), and regards the papyrus as a speech made in opposition to some such proposed degradation in the second or early third century. The horse with human feet figured in Nicaean coins of Antoninus Pius and Gordian is generally supposed to be connected with the horse possessing humanis similes pedes in the equestrian statue of Julius Caesar before the temple of Venus Genetrix at Rome (Pliny, Nat. Hist. viii. 155; cf. Suetonius, Julius 61); but whether the rider represented on the coins, who seems to be the god Men, was also identified with Julius Caesar, is more doubtful, and there are no indications in 1612 that the superstitious element to which the speaker objected was concerned with a horse.

On the whole we are disposed to regard 'Caesar' throughout 1612 as Julius, not Augustus or a later emperor, whether dead or reigning; but the mention of 'the Nicaean' seems more likely to refer to some unknown innovation connected with the worship of Julius, than to either the establishment of that worship at Nicaea as recorded by Dio or the cult of the βροτόπους ἵππος. In view of the date of the papyrus the speech was probably composed and delivered (or supposed to be delivered) not earlier than the second century, and it is safer to make the scene of it Egypt (i.e. Alexandria) than Bithynia. The author may well have been a sophist of the age of Aristides or a little later, objecting to the introduction of some new kind of Oriental cult into the worship of Julius; but such a speech might also occur in a historical work in the style of Dio Cassius.

than the Nicaean. The next word is presumably an infinitive ending in $[.a]_i$ or $[σθα]_i$ or perhaps $[α]_ν$ or $[ει]_ν$. The last letter is more like $ι$ than $ν$, and no alternative is possible. $ν$ before $ει$ is almost certain, $η$ being the only alternative. The first letter must be $α$, $γ$, $δ$, $λ$, $μ$, $ν$, $π$, or $τ$: a spot of ink between this and $ν$ probably, if the first letter is $α$, belongs to that, not to a distinct letter, and is in any case inconsistent with a broad letter or one coming below the line. $ανει[να]_i$, 'to allow', is difficult, but suits the vestiges better than $α[ρ]νει[σθα]_i$. In $των$ certainly, and possibly in $τοιουτων$ also, the $ω$ is closed at the top, as if the scribe intended to alter it to $ο$; but he certainly did not write $τον τοιουτον$ originally, and is more likely to have intended $των τοιουτων$. $ουθεν$ suits the vestiges better than $ουθεν$ (cf. l. 37). The supposed stop after it is uncertain; the surface of the papyrus is damaged and $ουδενα$ is a possible reading.

31. $αθαν[ασιας]$: cf. Dio lii. 36 $ὅστ' εἴπερ ἀθάνατος ὄντως ἐπιθυμείας γενέσθαι$ in the speech of Maecenas to Augustus. Lines 30-2 seem more appropriate to a dead than to a living Caesar, who did not become technically $θεός$ till his death; cf. int. p. 150.

34. The letter following $νν$, if not $τ$, is probably $γ$ or $π$.

35-6. It is rather tempting to read $των Κ[αισ]α[ρ]ων$ (cf. p. 150); but the letter at the end of l. 35 is much more like $ε$ than $α$. $]ν$ might be the end of $προ το]ν$.

1613. LIST OF EARLY ATHENIAN ARCHONS.

4.6 × 4.4 cm.

Second century.

This small fragment from the middle of a column belongs to a list of the earliest Athenian archons with the numbers of their years of office, like the lists in Eusebius (Schöne, Euseb. Chron. i. 188 and App. 1 a. 11), Jerome (op. cit. App. 1 b. 31), the Excerpta Latina Barbari (op. cit. App. 6. 217), and Syncellus (ed. Dindorf i. 368, 399); cf. v. Schoeffer in Pauly-Wissowa, Realenc. ii. 582-3. Such lists were no doubt common in Egypt; cf. the chronological list of Olympic victors in 222, and A. Bauer's Alexandrinische Weltchronik (Denkschr. d. Wien. Akad. li). The handwriting is a small uncial of the Roman period, probably of the second century. After the abolition of the Athenian monarchy archons according to tradition were appointed at first for life, afterwards for ten years, and from 683 B.C. onwards annually. The change from archons for life to decennial archons began according to the Exc. Lat. Barb. with Alcmaeon, but the other authorities make him the last of the first category. The papyrus contains the name of Alcmaeon (l. 5) with the names of his four predecessors and six successors in the best supported order (cf. ll. 3-4, n.); but the numbers of the years of office are missing throughout, and there is nothing to show which view was taken with reference to the chronology of Alcmaeon. One name is quite corrupt (l. 6. n.) and another is misspelled (l. 8, n.). Only one more name after l. 11 is required to complete the list of decennial archons: before l. 1 eight names of archons for life are probably lost; cf. ll. 3-4, n.

1-3. That the originally separate fragment containing ετη (three times) is correctly assigned to these lines is not quite certain.

3-4. Between Agamestor and Aeschylus the Exc. Lat. Barb. insert Thersippus, who is placed by the other authorities (cf. int.) 4th in the list of archons for life, Ariphron (l. 1) being 9th, as he presumably was here.

5. Ἀλκμεων: cf. int.

6. Χαιος: l. Χαροψ. From this point onwards the figure lost was presumably ι in each case; cf. int.

8. Κλεοδικ[ος]: so also Syncellus; but Eusebius has (κ)λείδικος or Klidikus, Jerome Elidicus, and Exc. Lat. Barb. Celdicus. Κλείδικος is the correct form; cf. Paus. i. 3. 3.

III. FRAGMENTS OF EXTANT CLASSICAL AUTHORS

1614. PINDAR, Ol. i, ii, vi, vii.

28.8 × 27.2 cm.

Fifth or sixth century.

The lost poems of Pindar occur in several papyri, chiefly from Oxyrhynchus, Dithyrambs in 1604, Paean in 841 and P. S. I. 147, Partheneia in 659, odes of uncertain character in 408 and possibly 426; but the extant epinician odes have not hitherto been represented in Egyptian finds, so that a special interest attaches to this fragment of a codex of the Olympian odes. It consists of a single sheet forming two leaves, the first of which contains i. 106-ii. 45 (when complete i. 104-

ii. 50), the second vi. 71-vii. 20 (when complete vi. 68-vii. 26). The lines are for the most part short, being divided much as in the extant MSS., and of the four columns two (i and iii) are fairly well preserved, but the other two have only the ends of lines. The upper margin is not preserved anywhere, but in Col. iii l. 150 (= Ol. vi. 95) is the last. 20 more lines corresponding to vi. 96-105 are required to complete the ode, but these must have been omitted in Col. iv, for l. 158 (vii. 6) is at the back of l. 111 (vi. 72), and that the number of lines lost at the top of Col. iv did not exceed 7 is clear from the size of the corresponding interval between the last extant line of Col. i (l. 51 = ii. 17) and the first of Col. ii (l. 57 = ii. 21). How the 5 missing lines were distributed between Cols. i and ii is not quite certain, for, as far as Col. i by itself is concerned, there is room for 1 or 2 more lines at the bottom. But if, as seems not improbable, Ode vii began at the top of Col. iv, the top of Col. ii can be made fairly even with the top of Col. iv only on the hypothesis that l. 51 was the last of Col. i. Otherwise, if e.g. there are only 3 lines instead of 5 lost at the top of Col. ii, there will certainly not be room at the top of Col. iv for the first few lines of Ode vii, especially since the writing in Cols. iii-iv is by a different scribe from that of Cols. i-ii and less compact. Neither scribe employed a formal uncial, the hand of the first being rude and irregular, while that of the second tends to become cursive, particularly in ϵ at the ends of lines. Black ink was used by the first scribe as far as l. 67, brown ink by him in ll. 68-95 and by the second scribe, whose pen was thinner. Iota adscript was rarely written. Both scribes inserted marks of elision and diaeresis and occasional stops (high points), the second also occasional breathings and an apostrophe after $\gamma\acute{\alpha}\rho$ in l. 144; but a breathing in l. 37 in brown ink was not written, originally at any rate, by the first hand. That is the only trace of a subsequent revision apart from corrections clearly due to the two scribes themselves. The date of the papyrus is certainly fifth or sixth century, more probably the former, but the Byzantine documents found with it have not yet been unrolled.

The MSS. of Pindar's epinician odes are divided into two families, called the Ambrosian and the Vatican. Of the first group the chief representatives are A (13th cent.), C (late 14th cent.), N (13th-14th cent.), V (late 13th cent.); of the second B (12th cent.), D and E (14th cent.). In Ol. i this classification has to be modified, since A there combines with the Vatican group, D with the Ambrosian. The archetype of both families is assigned to the second century, to which the extant scholia are also referred. The text is generally thought to have been preserved with considerable care owing to the efforts of grammarians, and to have undergone comparatively little corruption since the second century, before which, as is shown by quotations, it was far from being fixed. This view is borne out by the papyrus, which carries back the evidence some seven centuries and is very close to the text of the best MSS., agreeing sometimes with the Ambrosian family (ll. 79, 112, 116-17, 121, 146, 169), somewhat oftener with the Vatican (ll. 8, 24, 30, 36, 59, 82, 85, 92, 95, 126, 175). The difficulty in ii. 6 (ll. 32-3, n.) and the interpolation in ii. 29-30 (ll. 70-1, n.) recur. A number of slips are found, as is usual in Byzantine texts; cf. e.g. 1618. Of the new readings the most interesting occur in ii. 39 and vi. 77; cf. ll. 88 and 119, nn.

8. The second ν of γλυκυτεραν is corr. from ε: i. e. the scribe began to write γλυκερωτεραν, which is found in DN.

κ[εν]: so ABE; all that remains is the tip of a vertical stroke, which would also be reconcilable with τ[ε, as proposed by Schr(oeder), but not with ε[λπομαι, the reading of CDN.

9. ξυν: this form is not certainly attested in Pindar; cf. 1604, II. 13, n.

κλ[ε]ξειν: so CE, Schr.; κλειζειν BADN.

13. αλκᾶι: so most MSS. rightly; ἀλκάν DE.

13-14. ἀλλοι[σι]: this passage is corrupt in the MSS., which all have ἀλλοισι against the metre, except V (ἐν ᾧ). The Byzantine correctors read ἐπ' ἀλλοισι, but Schr. conjectures ἀμφ' ᾧ.

17. σε γε: σέ τε MSS., except V (om. τε). The scholl. remark ὁ νοῦς· εἴη δὲ σὲ μὲν τοῦτον τὸν χρόνον . . . ἄλλως· ἀλλ' εἴη σὲ τοῦτ. τ. χ. κτλ., from which it has been supposed that there was a reading σὲ δέ. τε, which connects with τε in l. 19, seems preferable to γε, but may have arisen from the second τε.

18. υψον: so MSS. except D (ύψοις).

19. τε: δὲ DN. Cf. l. 17, n.

22. I. Ακρο[γαντινω. If αρματι, which is usually added by the MSS. after it, was written, the end of this line projected very considerably; but cf. l. 145.

24. θ[ε]ον: θεῶν EV.

τιν' η[ρ]ωα: τίνα δ' ἥρωα AE against the metre.

25. τιν[α δ'] ἀνδρα: so ABE; τίν' ἄνδρα CD against the metre.

29. ακροθίνα: so ABDN², Schr.; ἀκροθίνια CN¹, Zenodotus; ἀκροθίνιον E.

30. δε: ε is corr. from ο (?). The word is omitted by A, which has τετραωρίας.

32-3. οπι δικαιον ξενον: so MSS. (mostly ὀπί, but a few ὀπι). The second syllables of οπι and ξενον ought to be long, and Schr. follows Hermann in reading ὀπι (= ὀπιδι) δίκαιον ξένων. The division between the corresponding lines 68-9 comes a syllable earlier.

36. ορθοπολιν: ὀρθόπολιν against the metre ADN.

41. μο[ρσι]μ[ος] πλουτον: so MSS.; μ. ὁ πλούτον (Hermann) or μ. ἐπ' ὀλβον (Heyne) has been suggested on metrical grounds.

52-7. These lines are restored so as to correspond to ll. 89-94. The traces of the supposed ν in l. 57, which comes above the second α of δαμασθεν in l. 58, are very doubtful, and the first syllable of εσ(θ)λων, the reading of the MSS. in l. 57, is against the metre; there is also an uncertainty about l. 94; cf. n. ad loc. The reason for the assignment of all ll. 52-6 to Col. ii is explained in int.

59. πεμπη: so most MSS., Schr.; πέμψη A.

62. επαθον: πάθον A. The word corresponds to Δι[ος] | O- in ll. 26-7.

65. ο of [κρε]σσονων is corr. from ω.

66. μ of μεν is corr. εν has been omitted by mistake after it; cf. l. 169, n.

70. αιαι: I. αιει.

70-1. φιλε[οντι δε M]οισαι: a superfluous verse which was athetized by Aristophanes, but is found in all MSS. except those of Triclinius.

75. Ν]ηρεος: so CE; Νηρέως ABDN; Νηρῆος, required by the metre, occurs above the line in CDN.

79. [βροτων γε: γε, which is omitted by B, must have been written.

80. Considerations of space make the unmetrical form περας, found in all ancient MSS., more probable than πειρας, which was introduced by the Byzantine correctors.

82. αλιον: so BE; ἀελίον against the metre ACDN.

85. αλλαι: ἀλλοίαι against the metre C²DN.

88. α τε πατρωιαν: ᾧ τε πατρώϊον MSS., which is generally retained by edd., though Hermann conjectured ᾗτε (or ᾗ τὰ) πατρώϊα, and Mommsen ᾗ τὸ πατρώϊον from the schol. κατέχει τὸν εὐφρονα πότμον ἢ τύχη καθάπερ τὸ πατρώϊον κατέσχε. πατρωιαν must be wrong, but two other scholia οὕτω δὲ ἐπὶ τούτων . . . ἡ πατρικὴ μοῖρα κακὸν φέρει . . . and οὕτω δὲ καὶ ἐπὶ τούτων . . . ἡ πατρῷα κακὸν ἄγει μοῖρα would be compatible with an ancient reading πατρῷα, of which πατρῷαν might be a corruption, due to εβαν at the end of the previous line. The last syllable of l. 88 can be either long or short. It seems, however, more likely that, as suggested by Lobel, the scribe has omitted an elision-mark and πατρῷ' ἄν was really meant, ἄν belonging to ἔχειν. ἀνέχειν 'support' is more suitable here than the simple verb; cf. Py. ii. 89 θεὸν . . . ὃς ἀνέχει τότε μὲν τὰ κείνων τότε αὖθ' ἑτέροις ἔδωκεν μέγα κῦδος and Nem. vii. 89 εἰ δ' αὐτὸ καὶ θεὸς ἀνέχοι, and κατέχει in the schol. quoted above. πατρῷ(α) would be an adverbial accusative or in apposition to τὸν εὐφρονα πότμον. This reading is probably right.

89. 8-10 letters would be expected in the lacuna, where the ordinary reading of the MSS. gives 12, and perhaps there was an omission. εχι may well have been written; cf. l. 127.

92. ἀλ[ω χρ[ον]ω: ἄλλος χρόνος A.

93. Considerations of space favour the correct forms Λαον (i. e. Λᾶον) and μοριμος (a v. l. in the scholia and introduced by the Byzantines) against Λαῖον and μορσιμος which are found in the MSS.

94. This line, if written, must have been rather cramped, for νιος in l. 93 presents the appearance of belonging to the line immediately above τελεσσειν (l. 95).

95. τελεσσειν: so B rightly; τέλεσεν ACD; τελέσας E; om. N.

112. ολβος αμ': so ACD¹; ὀλβος δ' ἄμ' the rest against the metre.

114. μω[μος δ' εἰ: 1614 may of course have omitted δ, which is found in the MSS., but was deleted by Boeckh on metrical grounds.

116. πρωτοῖς: so AC²DE, Schr.; πρῶτον BC¹N.

117-18. ποτι]σταξῆ: so CD (-ξει), Schr.; ποτιστάζει ABE.

119. ορος: so Callierges (Rome, 1515), as is supposed, from the scholia (e. g. in D; cf. also Homer, B 603 ὑπὸ Κυλλήνης ὄρος αἰπύ; ὄροις ABCE; ὄροις DE (lemma); ὄρέων conj. Schr. The objection to ὄρος is that the second syllable is expected to be long here.

121. ἐδωρησαν: so AB² rightly; δώρησαν the rest.

126-7. τιμαῖ: so MSS. except A (τιμάν).

131. γλωσσᾶν: the accent ought to have been paroxytone. Editors generally place no stop after γλώσσα, explaining ἀκόνας λιγυρᾶς as a genitive of quality. The papyrus agrees with Boehmer, who connected ἀκ. λιγ. with πνοαῖς.

132. προσ[ερ]πει: so most MSS. and edd.; προσέρποι D; προσέλκει Triclinius.

133. καλλιροα[σι]ν: the ν ἐφέλκυστικόν is wrong; cf. l. 142, n.

135-6. ετικεν: l. ετικεν. τες is merely an error.

142. αλαθεσι: so ABD; l. αλαθεσιν with EN.

144. εεσι: ἐσσι MSS.; ἔστι Wilamowitz, objecting to the poet's address to his poem, and avoiding the three predicates without a connecting particle. The second letter of εεσι was not corrected, but the third was not σ originally, being corrected from a letter with a tail, probably ι or ρ.

146-7. Συρα]κουσαν: Συρακοσσᾶν (BDE) is the form preferred by edd. The division of these lines does not correspond to that in ll. 110-11, where there are two more syllables in the earlier line.

149-50. Cf. ll. 113-14, where there is a syllable more in the earlier line.

150. On the omission of the end of Ode vi see int.

165. αγασθαι: l. αγαθαι.

167. That 1614 had ζωθαλμος with most MSS. rather than ζωφθαλμος with CNO¹ is not certain.

169. Considerations of space favour the insertion of εν which is omitted by BDE before εντε]σι[ν].

170. The stop after αμφοτερ]ων is misplaced.

171. ποννοντιαν: l. ταν ποντιαν with the MSS. The scholia mention a v. l. ποντίας.

175. Αλφειωι: so most MSS.; Ἀλφειῶ(ι) A. Schr.

1615. SOPHOCLES, Ajax.

4.2 × 3.9 cm.

Fourth century. Plate IV
(recto).

This small fragment from the middle of a leaf of a papyrus codex of Sophocles, containing the beginnings of ll. 694-705 and ends of 753-64 of the Ajax, was found with a number of other literary pieces which date from the third or fourth century. The writing is a small sloping uncial with a tendency to cursive forms and to exaggeration of the final letter of a line, and there is little doubt that it belongs to the fourth century, probably to the earlier half of it. Breathings, accents, marks of elision and quantity, and high stops were freely inserted by the scribe himself. The circumstance that this is the first papyrus fragment of the Ajax to be discovered gives it a certain interest, but it is too short to be of very serious value. A new variant in l. 699, which has apparently left a trace in Suidas, is likely to be right, as is another new reading in l. 756, and the quality of this text seems to have been distinctly high. The division of lines in the choric passage is the same as that in the Laurentianus (L).

699. Μύσια: Νύσια MSS., a reading which seemed appropriate enough in view of the close connexion between Pan and Dionysus. But, as was observed by Mr. A. C. Pearson, Μύσια is probably right. Pan was the cult-companion of the Mother of the gods (Schol. Pind. Pg. iii. 137), and in Strabo 466 the Curetes are connected with ἱεουργίας . . . περὶ τε τὴν τοῦ Διὸς παιδοτροφίαν τὴν ἐν Κρήτῃ καὶ τοὺς τῆς μητρὸς τῶν θεῶν ὀργασμοὺς ἐν τῇ Φρυγίᾳ καὶ τοῖς περὶ τὴν Ἰδὴν τὴν Τρωικὴν τόποις. The region of Trojan Ida was in Mysia (Jebb on At. 720), and Κνώσια in l. 699 is no doubt rightly referred to the Curetes. In the scholia on l. 699 as quoted by Suidas s.v. Νύσια is the following note: *Νύσια ὀρχήματος εἶδος. τῶν γὰρ ὀρχήσεων ἡ μὲν Βερεκυντιακὴ λέγεται, ἡ δὲ Κρητικὴ, ἡ δὲ Παρικὴ (l. ἡ καὶ πυρρίχη with L). Νύσια οὖν τὰ Βερεκύντια· Νυσίας γὰρ ἔστιν ἡ Βερεκυντιακὴ, Κνωσία δὲ ἡ Κρητικὴ. ἐν Μυσίᾳ γὰρ καὶ Κνωσσῶ ἐπιμελὴς ἡ ὄρχησις. Μυσία there has been corrected to Νυσία, but in the light of 1615 Νύσια and Νυσίας are to be corrected to Μύσια and Μυσίας, for what has Nysa to do with the Berecynthian Mother? If Nysa and Dionysus are got rid of, everything fits together, and Sophocles is brought into line with Strabo; cf. also Virg. Aen. ix. 619 buxus . . . Berecynthia Matris Idaeae, and Lucr. ii. 611 sqq. Idaeam vocitant Matrem, etc., the Curetes being mentioned in l. 633.*

754. ἀφ' ἑντ': the supposed elision-mark and breathing are uncertain.

755. θελοι: so L; θέλει the recentiores.

756. τηνδ' εθ] ημεραν μονην: or τηνδε γ] ημ. μ.; τηιδεθ' ἡμέρα L; τηδέθ' ἡμέραι the recentiores; some editors, objecting to the crasis of τῇ ἡμέρα in Tragedy, write τῇδ' εθ' ἡμέρα or τῇδ' ἐν ἡμέρα: τῇδε θῆμέρα Jebb. The accusative is quite as good as the dative, but whether the scribe understood the passage is doubtful, for no stop is required after μονην.

759. βαρειαις πρὸς θ]εῶν δυσπραξίαις: so MSS.; but whether the supposed traces of is are really ink is not quite certain, especially as the preceding a is rather large, so that βαρεία . . . δυσπραξία may possibly have been the reading, at any rate originally.

761. φρονήι: so originally L, corr. by a later hand to φρονεῖ, the reading of the recentiores. Jebb prefers φρονήι.

1616. EURIPIDES, Orestes.

4.2 × 7.8 cm.

Fifth century.

A fragment from the middle of a leaf of a codex of Euripides, containing parts of Orestes 53-61 and 89-97, written on thin vellum with brown ink in a round calligraphic uncial hand of probably the fifth century. Elision-marks and high stops at the ends of lines are probably due to the first hand: a corrector, who used black ink, has altered the reading in ll. 60 and 91 and added occasional accents and stops (in l. 56 in the middle position). This is the fifth fragment of the Orestes which has been obtained from Egypt; cf. 1370. int. It is too short to have much bearing on the divergences of the MSS., but has a new reading which may be right in l. 61. The verso is in much worse condition than the recto. 1623 was found with 1616.

53. [εἰς]: εἰς edd., as in l. 59 and 60.

58. The supposed accent on στείχουσαν is somewhat uncertain, being really over the χ: but in l. 59 the accent on πέτ[ρων] (which is also not quite certain) is above the τ.

59. πέτ[ρων]: πέτρων Cod. Parisinus 2713; πετρων other MSS.; πέτρων edd. Cf. l. 58, n. Whether 1616 had ἐλθη with most MSS. or ἐλθαι with Vat. is of course uncertain.

61. συ[μφορας]: συμφοράν MSS. Cf. int.

91. The first hand may have written 3 letters where ηκ was substituted by the corrector. The MSS. vary between ἀπειρηκεν (so 1616 corr., the Marcianus and edd.), ἀπειρηκα, and ἀπειρηκ' ἐν, but the original reading here seems to have been different.

97. φιλ[ω]ν: the MSS. vary between φίλων and φίλον: φίλων edd. ω suits the size of the lacuna here better than ο.

1617. ARISTOPHANES, Plutus.

23.5 × 16.7 cm.

Fifth century.

Part of a sheet containing two leaves of a papyrus codex of Aristophanes, one of which has most of the first 60 lines of the Plutus, a play not hitherto represented in papyri, while of the other leaf only a small fragment is preserved, which is insufficient for purposes of identification. The script is a mixture of uncial and cursive in a style resembling that of 1599, but somewhat later in date, and probably belongs to the fifth century, like most of the extant fragments of Aristophanes upon papyrus. The breathings and most of the accents, which are fairly numerous, are by the original scribe, who used brown ink; but some accents were added in black ink, presumably by a different person. The stops, consisting of double dots marking a change of speaker or single high points, are, except at the end of l. 35, by the first hand, as are probably the name of the speaker against l. 22, the glosses on ll. 34, 39, and 51, the iotas adscript, which were usually omitted in the first instance, and all the corrections except perhaps that in l. 13 and the correction or gloss in l. 17. An omission of two lines after l. 19 seems to have been made good by an addition at the bottom.

The corrected text is fairly accurate, and shows the same tendency as that observable to a marked degree in 1374 (Wasps) to support the Venetus (ll. 17, 22, 32, 33, 40) rather than the Ravennas (ll. 38, 43, 51, but all points of minor importance). In two places (ll. 4 and 50) it agrees with the Parisinus (A) against both R and V. The only new variant occurs in l. 49, ταῦθ' for τοῦθ', which makes no difference to the sense. The difficulties in ll. 17, 46, and 48 are not affected, the reading of the MSS. being apparently confirmed in each case. The circumstance that the Plutus begins at the top of a page suggests that this play was the first of the codex, as in R and V: the same argument applied to 1371-4 made the Clouds the first play of that collection; cf. 1371. int.

12. ἀπέπεμψεν: l. ἀπέπεμψε.

17. ἀποκρινο]μενου: or ἀποκρινο]μενοι, which is equally difficult; ἀποκρινομένη R; ἀποκρινομένου VAU; ἀποκρινόμενος Bentley. The interlinear writing does not seem to refer to the termination of the word and may be a gloss, as in l. 39; but it is not certain that anything was written before αἰ, and, as Dr. R. T. Elliott remarks, αἰ may be merely a variation of spelling of ε; cf. ll. 33, 41.

19. The partly obliterated sign against this line seems to be distinct from the abbreviation of Χρεμ(ύλος) immediately below and to refer to the omission of ll. 20-1, which were presumably supplied in the lower margin.

22. ἀφ[ε]λ[ων]: so VAU; R. adds γε.

32. ὧς: so VAU; πρὸς R.

33. τοῦ: so VAU; om. R.

37. There was possibly a stop (one or even two dots) after εν, but none is required.

38. αὐτο: so RAU (αὐτὸ): ωὐτῶι corr. from αὐτῶι (?) V.

συμφερεῖν: so RV; ξυμφ. AU. Cf. l. 43, n.

39. εἶπεν is an explanation of ἐλακεν, not a variant. Double dots are expected at the end of the line, and perhaps the lower one has been effaced.

40. ταδι: so V; τοδι RAU.
 42. Whether the papyrus had εκελευσε with VAU or εκελευε with R is uncertain.
 43. ξυνακολουθεῖν: so RAU; συνακ. V. Cf. l. 38, n.
 45. ξυνίεις: so RV; ξυνίης AU.
 46. φραζουσα]ν: so MSS.; φράζοντος Cobet. The traces of the last letter suit ν, but not ς.
 48. τυφλ]ω: so MSS.; τυφλός Hemsterhuys. The reading of the vestiges is very uncertain, and possibly there was a stop at the end of the line.
 49. ταυθ: τοῦθ MSS. ταυθ' would be more likely to become τοῦθ in view of the following συμφέρον than vice versa.
 50. χρόναι: so AU; βίαι R; ἔτει (with γρ. γένει καὶ χρόνῳ in the marg.) V.
 51. εἰς: so RAU; ἐς V.
 51 marg. For φέρ[ε]ται (a note on ρέπει) cf. Schol. Junt. φέρεται, ἀποβλέπει κτλ. But the vestiges are very doubtful.
 52. με[ι]ζον: : R also marks a change of speaker here, assigning ἦν δ' ἡμῖν κτλ. to θερ(άπων), i. e. Καρίων, and l. 56 originally to Χρ(εμύλος).

1618. THEOCRITUS, Idyls v, vii, xv.

Fr. 7 24.4 × 24 cm. Fifth century. Plate IV (Col. x).

These fragments of a papyrus codex of Theocritus, originally about 40 in number, combined with the exception of a few minute scraps, which are not printed, to form parts of four leaves, of which two containing Id. v. 53-end and vii. 1-13 are successive, and a third (vii. 68-117) is only separated from the second by an interval of one leaf, while the fourth (xv. 38-100) may have come much later. A narrow selis of the third leaf (Cols. vii-viii) was joined so that the verso corresponds to the recto of the rest of the leaf. All the leaves are much damaged, especially the first, of which the recto is barely legible anywhere owing to the discolouration of the papyrus, and the second, which is in almost the last stage of decay, so that decipherment is sometimes precarious. The script is a good-sized somewhat irregular uncial with a tendency to cursive forms, especially in α and λ, and resembles the Cairo Menander Plates D and E and 1369 (Oedipus Tyrannus; Part xi, Plate vii): it most probably belongs to the fifth century rather than the early part of the sixth. Iota adscript was generally omitted. The height of the column varies from 32 lines in Col. ix to 25 in Cols. vii-viii. The first hand was responsible for a few corrections, for the marks of elision throughout, and in Id. vii for a number of accents and breathings, besides a breathing in v. 114. Elsewhere in Id. vii, i. e. in Col. viii frequently and more sparsely in Cols. iv and vii, accents and breathings were inserted by a corrector, who was not appreciably later than the first hand and revised Id. v and vii (not always very intelligently; cf. vii. 101, n.), but apparently not xv, altering a number of readings and adding a few interlinear glosses (vii. 110) and stops (vii. 77).

The published fragments of Theocritus from Egypt have hitherto been very exiguous, being limited to 694, which contains parts of xiii. 19-34 (2nd cent.), some tiny vellum scraps of Id. i, iv, v, xiii, xv, xvi, xxii (Wessely, Wiener Stud. 1886, 220 sqq. and Mittheil. Pap. Rain. ii. 78 sqq.; 5th or 6th cent.), and of xi and xiv (Berliner Klassikertexte v. 1, p. 55; 7th? cent.), and a small piece of scholia on v. 38-49 (op. cit. v. 1, p. 56; 1st or 2nd cent.), all of them being practically worthless. Hence, pending the publication of the nearly contemporary and very much longer fragments of a Theocritus codex found by Johnson at Antinoë, 1618 is in spite of its lamentable condition the first papyrus contribution of any value for the text of that author. The Greek Bucolic poets are thought to have been collected two centuries after Theocritus by Artemidorus, whose son Theon edited Theocritus alone with a commentary. Additions to the collection were made by other grammarians down to the second century, and in the fifth and sixth centuries the Bucolic poets were much studied, but afterwards they suffered a long period of neglect. When in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries MSS. of them make their appearance, the collection of Artemidorus had been reduced to a nucleus of poems of Theocritus (Id. i, iii-xiii) accompanied by varying additions. The leading position in the MSS. is assigned to K (13th cent.), which contains Id. i, vii, iii-vi, viii-xiv, ii, xv, xvii, xvi. . . . Other important MSS. or groups of MSS. are (1) B, a lost codex which was the basis of the edition of Callierges and the Juntine (both 1516), and apparently had i-xvii in nearly the same order as K; (2) PQT (all 14th cent.), which have the order i, v, vi, iv, vii, iii, viii-xiii, xv, xiv, ii . . .; (3) H (13th-14th cent.) with the order i-xv, xviii . . .; S (14th cent.) with the order i-xiv, ἐπιτάφιος Βίωνος, xv-xviii; (4) M (13th cent.), considered to be the second-best MS. for the earlier poems, with the order i-xvii; (5) V (late 14th cent.) and Triclinius (c. 1300) with the same order as PQT up to xiii, followed by ii, xiv, xv . . .; (6) AEU (all 14th cent.) with the order i-xviii; (7) O (12th cent.; the oldest MS., but still imperfectly collated) containing only v. 62-viii, allied to AE. In Id. xv, where the divergences of the MSS. are much greater than in v and vii, L (14th cent.), containing v. 55-xv . . . but imperfectly collated in the earlier poems, supports V Tricl.

1618, as would be expected from its comparatively late date, does not present a very correct text; cf. 1614. Apart from the usual difficulties arising out of the dialect and minor errors such as μετ' for μεγ' in vii. 100, ωστ for οστ' in vii. 103, ου for ου in xv. 54, αυτας for αυται or αυτα in xv. 67, more serious corruptions occur in vii. 73 τα Ξενας for τας Ξενας, xv. 99 φθεγξει [τι] σφ' for φθεγξεται τι σαφ'. In v 1618 tends to support K against M (ll. 111, 115-16, 118, 148; 57 and 146 are doubtful); but in vii the opposite tendency is just as noticeable (ll. 79, 90, 109; against ll. 81-2, 85, 112), and in general the eclecticism of the papyrus is evident.

In v and vii new readings are rare, being confined to vii. 75 αἴτ' ἐφύοντο for αἴτε φύοντι and vii. 112 Ἐβρω παρ ποταμῶ for Ἐβρον παρ ποταμὸν (both easier than the reading of the MSS.), and vii. 92 ἐν ὧ[ρ]εσι for ἀν' ὧρεα, which makes no difference to the sense. The difficulties in v. 118 and 145 recur, though in v. 116, where all the MSS. except S have gone astray, 1618 has the right reading. In xv, however, where the text of Theocritus is in a much more unsettled condition, there are several novelties of importance. Chief of these is [πέρυ]σιν in l. 98, confirming a generally accepted conjecture of Reiske for the corrupt σπέρχιν or πέρχην of the MSS. Other valuable readings are ὄχλος ἀλαθέως in l. 72, which seems to account for the variants of the MSS., and ὁ κῆν Ἀχέροντι φ[ι]λ[ι]ηθείς which removes a difficulty in l. 86; but in l. 38 κατέϊπες does not solve the problem of that corrupt passage. μὴ ἀποπλαγχθῆς for μὴ τι πλανηθῆς in l. 67 is also attractive, and εἴθε for εἴ τι in l. 70 may be right, as possibly λαλεῦσαι for λαλεῦμες in l. 92. Considering the fragmentary condition of Cols. ix–x, the gains are not inconsiderable, and 1618 as a whole is an interesting specimen of a text which stands apart from the existing families of MSS. and seems to have been at least as good as that of K. That in the later poems, from xiv onwards, the condition of the text has suffered considerably since the fifth century is now probable, but the earlier poems do not seem to have undergone much change between the fifth and thirteenth centuries. On this subject, however, much fresh light may be expected from the Antinoë papyrus, which does not overlap 1618, and consists largely of the later poems.

With regard to the order of the Idyls, the placing of vii immediately after v is without parallel in the later MSS., but the arrangement in the contemporary vellum fragments published by Wessely, in which v followed iv and xxii followed xiii, xv being also represented, was possibly identical. The occurrence of fragments of xv in conjunction with v and vii suggests that xv occupied an earlier position than usual, but the absence of revision in xv supports the natural presumption that this poem followed, not preceded, v and vii, whether the interval was large or small.

v. 53. The vestiges of ll. 53, 56, 58, 60-2, and 65 are too slight to give a real clue.

57. πολ[λ]ακ[ις]: so KH²AE (and O according to Wilamowitz, who, however, elsewhere states that this MS. begins at l. 62); τετράκις MPQTH¹. There are fairly distinct traces of λ, but possibly it was corrected from or to ρ by the first hand.

87. τυρω: the ω seems to have been corrected from ον.

111. χυμες: so K; κ' ὕμες or χ' ὕμες the rest.
ερεθισδε[ε]: so most MSS.; ερεθίζετε KMP.
114. εγω: so MSS.; ἐγὼν edd. since Brunck. Cf. l. 116, where 1618 has εγων, but most MSS. and edd. ἐγώ.
115. φορεονται: so KOHA; ποτέονται MPQTV, v.l. in schol.
116. [η ο]ν: η is omitted by OPTQ¹ Tricl., but must have been written here.
μεμνησ': so KP (μεμνας') according to Hiller; but according to Wilamowitz KP have μέμνα like MHA¹E, others reading μέμνας'.
οτ': so MSS.; ὅκ' Tricl., edd. For εγων cf. l. 114, n.
117. ηχεο: l. ειχεο.
118. μαν ποκα: so K γρ. (ὅκα μάν ποκα τίν τοι δῆσας) M²PQT¹H¹S² Tricl.; μάν the rest; μάν τοι Wilamowitz.
τειδε: so K; τείνδε P; τῆνδε Q; τῆδε MOAS.
121. [σκιλλ]ας ῖων: the reading is uncertain, but no variant is known.
129. σ]χουνον: so ASL; σχῖνον other MSS., edd.
144. τον: so MSS. except K² (τάν; so edd.).
145. κερουχιδες: so MSS. κερουλίδες and κερουλκίδες are vv. ll. in the scholia; κερούτιδες Ahrens.
146. λιμ[νας]: so MAE; but the vestiges are too slight to decide with certainty between this and κρα[νας] (KOP).
148. η γ' [ε]με: so KO &c.; ἡ ἐμὲ M¹PQ Tricl.; ἡ γέ με Schaefer. Cf. vii. 88, n.
- vii. 5-6. The ν of αὐτω has a stroke through it in the black ink used by the corrector, and it is not clear whether he rewrote that letter or was making a flourish at the end of κραναν when inserting l. 6 in its proper place. Line 7 was placed before l. 6 by the first hand. The final letter of κραναν is not much like ν in either place, but no variant is known.
8. ἐφαινον is the reading of the MSS., corrected to ὑφαινον by Heinsius, comparing Virg. Ecl. ix. 42 lentae texunt umbracula uiles. All that survives in the papyrus is an accent by the corrector (as is that in l. 12) and traces which are reconcilable with φα and ν.
10. The first hand apparently wrote σημα.
- 12-13. It is not certain that the fragment containing ε[ and ονν[ at the beginnings of lines is correctly placed here.
13. μιν: apparently corr. from νιν, rather than vice versa. μιν MSS.; νιν edd.
69. The first hand perhaps wrote Αγιανакτος like P.
70. αὐταισ]ν: so (or αὐταῖσι) MSS.; αὔαισιν Schaefer; αὐταῖς ἐν Valckenaer. The traces of a letter preceding ν do not suit ε.
71. The ν of αὐλησ]ενντι seems to have been corrected or added by the second hand, which crossed out the superfluous ν at the end.
73. τα Ξανές: l. τας Ξενέας (or ξενέας) with KMO &c.; ξενίας PS; a v.l. ξανθῶς (i.e. Ξάνθας) is recorded by the scholia.
74. αμφ' επονειτο: so Ahrens; ἀμφεπονείτο Wil. with KPH; ἀμφεπολείτο OSQAE Tricl.; in M ν is corr. from λ. The apostrophe does not necessarily imply that the scribe regarded αμφ and επονειτο as two words; cf. e.g. v. 116 κατ'ηλασα.
75. αὐτ' εφύοντο: αὔτε φύοντι MSS. The intransitive use of φύω is very rare in early writers, but occurs again in Theocr. iv. 24 καλὰ πάντα φύοντι (where, however, HS read φύονται) and in Mosch. iii. 108. αὐτ' εφνοντο removes a difficulty, but may be only an emendation or a slip due to the other imperfections; cf. xv. 86, n.
78. The first hand wrote αισει and seems to have omitted ξ of λαρναξ.
79. ατασθαλίησιν: so M; ἀτασθαλίαισιν KP.

80. λ[ι]μωνόθε: λειμωνόθεν KP; λειμωνοθι M; λειμωνόθε the rest (?). Above the vo the corrector has apparently crossed out a grave accent by the first hand, which at the end of the line seems to have written ιουσαι like P.

81. άνθεσι: so K; l. άνθесси.

82. [στ]όματος χέε: so KP &c.; στόμα ἔγχεε M.

83. Κομάτα: the MSS. wrongly accentuate this paroxytone.

85. ἐξεπόνησας: so most MSS. (ἐξεπόνασας); ἐξετέλεσσας OM and v. l. in the scholia.

86. εμοι: so most MSS.; ἐμεῦ P, edd.

88. η γ' υπο: ἡ ὑπὸ MSS. There is room for two letters between η and υ, and γ' is uncertain; but cf. v. 148.

90. απεπαύσατο: so most MSS., edd.; ἀνεπαύσατο K.

92. κημ' ἐδιδ[αξα]ν: κῆμὲ διδάξαν MSS. apparently.

εν ὠ[ρεσι]: ἀν' ὦρεα MSS., a reading which may well be due to the proximity of ἀν' ὦρεα in l. 87. Cf. int.

94. οττι γ' αειδεν: so O Tricl. and v. l. in the scholia. The vestiges are very faint, but do not suit ω τυ γεραιρε(ι)ν, the ordinary reading.

96. ἡ: l. ἡ.

98. Αρατος: so KMPQA¹; Ὠρατος SA² Tricl.

100. μετ': l. μεγ'. Cf. the next note.

101. μεταίροι: μεγαίροι MSS. except P (μεγαίρει). Probably the first hand wrote μεγαίροι, and the corrector altered it wrongly, being apparently under the influence of the incorrect μετ' in l. 100. The τ is clear; με-γαίροι (cf. l. 102, n.) cannot be read.

102. The first hand had divided wrongly αιθ' ετ, which the corrector altered by a stroke connecting θ and ε; cf. xv. 70, n.

103. Ομόλας: so KM; ὁμόλου HO; ὁμόλου with ω suprascr. P; Μαλίας Ahrens.

104. κε[ίνο]ιο: so KMP &c.; τήνοιο H. Above the κ is a superfluous accent added by the corrector.

ερείσαις: the corrector apparently added an accent above ερ, but crossed it out, adding one over ισ, though that is really more like a rough breathing.

105. ειτ' εστ' αρα Φιλίνος: so MSS. except S (εἴτε Φ. ἄρ' ἐστίν). 1618's accent on Φιλίνος should have been circumflex.

106. κει: so S, edd.; κῆν the rest.

ταῦθ': so H &c.; ταῦτ' KMP.

έρδοις: so KMPE²; ἔρδεις HSE¹.

συ: so K²; τυ most MSS. and edd.

108. μαστίζοιεν: μαστισδοιεν MSS. apparently.

109. νενσαις: so most MSS.; νεύσεις K; νεύσοις PS. What the first hand wrote instead of αλλως is obliterated.

110. With the gloss on εν κνιδαισι cf. schol. κνίδη ὑφ' ἡμῶν, ἀκαλήφη δὲ ὑπ' Ἀττικῶν.

111. ὠρεσι: οὔρεσι, KMP &c.

112. [Εβ]ρω πα[ρ] ποταμῶ: a new reading. The first hand wrote [Εβ]ρον πα[ρ] ποταμον. ἔβρον πὰρ ποτ. S; εὔρον πὰρ ποτ. KMOPHA. Cf. int.

τ[ε]τραμμένο[ς]: so most MSS.; κεκλιμένος K γρ. MPTQ¹; τετραμμένον some late MSS. The corrector at any rate must have read -μένος, not -μένον.

113. The first hand wrote Αι[θε]λοποισι.

116. Οικευ[ν]τα: so S and schol.; οἰκεύντας O; οἰκεῦντες the rest; Οἰκοῦντα Hecker.

ΧV. 38. τοῦτο κατ'εἰπ[ες: τοῦτο κα ε. KL; τ. καλὸν ε. PHS²AE; τ. καλ' ε. some late MSS.; τοῦ τόκα ε. or ναὶ καλὸν εἶπας the old edd. Cf. int.

41. [δα]κρυε: so MSS.; δάκρυ' edd.

[ο]σσα θέλεις: so KP &c.; ὅσσ' ἐθέλεις HS. θ is corr. from λ or π by the first hand.

42. παι]σδε: so most MSS.; παῖδα K.

54. Εὐνοα συ φε[υξῆ: Εὐνόα οὐ φευξῆ MSS. It is possible that ο was added above the line after α, but the σ of συ was not corrected.

59. επιρρ]ει: these two letters are on a separate fragment of which the position is uncertain.

60. εγ[ων ω τέκνα παρενθε]ι[ν. The supposed ι is represented by the tip of a stroke above the χ of Αχαιοί in l. 61, which suggests ι or ρ. The MSS. vary between τέκνα εἶτα π. H¹SW Tricl., ὦ τέκνα εἶτα π. AEL, and ὦ τέκνα π. KPH². The objection to the restoration of either of the first two readings is that παρενθε]ι[ν would not come at the right point and with πα]ρ[εν]θεν the last letter or two would be expected to be visible, whereas a vestige of ink at the end of the line is too near the supposed ρ to be the final ν of ενθει]ν and seems to be the accent of Αχαιοί.

62. [κα]λλισται: so D and another Paris MS. according to Ahrens, and a Venetian MS. according to Ziegler; κάλλιστε P; καλλίστα K &c., Wil.

64. Ηραν: so KP; Ἥρην most MSS.

67. αυτας: αὐτά(ι) or αὐτά MSS.; αὐτα Wil.

μη [α]ποπλαγχθῆς: μή τι (or τυ) πλανηθῆς MSS. ἀποπλαγχθῆς, an aorist often found in Homer, may well be right. For the hiatus cf. e.g. the reading of the MSS. in vii. 88.

1619. HERODOTUS iii.

Fr. 10 10.8 × 13.5 cm. Late first or early second century. Plate V (Fr. 10).

These portions of a roll containing the third book of Herodotus belong, like 1092 (fragments of the second book in a different hand), to the large find of literary papyri made in 1906 which produced 1082-3, 1174-6, 1231, 1233-5, 1359-61, 1610-11, &c. About 40 pieces, subsequently reduced by combinations to 25, have been identified; but several of the still more fragmentary texts accompanying the Herodotus were written in hands so similar that small pieces of the various texts can hardly be distinguished, and two of these MSS., Homer, N-Ξ and a tragedy (?), seem to have been actually written by the scribe of the Herodotus: we have therefore ignored for the present a large number of unidentified scraps. Parts of about 220 lines scattered over chs. 26-72 are preserved, the earlier columns being better represented than the later. The hand is a well-formed round uncial of medium size, of the same class as P. Brit. Mus. 128 (Homer Ψ-Ω; Kenyon, Class. Texts, Plate viii, there dated too early), 8 (Alcman?; Part i, Plate ii), and the Berlin Alcaeus (Schubart, Pap. Graecae, Plate xxix b), and no doubt belongs to the period from A. D. 50 to 150. Some documents of the Domitian-Trajan period, e. g. 270 (A. D. 94; Part ii, Plate viii) and P. Fay. 110 (A. D. 94; Plate v), are written in practically uncial hands of a similar type, and the care with which iota adscript is inserted also supports a late first-century date. K is written in two pieces separated by a space, and Γ is γ-shaped. The columns had 39-40 lines, and the beginnings of lines tended to slope away slightly to the left. The lines range from 21-6 or 27 letters, with an average of 23-4. The common angular sign is used for filling up short lines. Punctuation was effected by short blank spaces and paragraphi, which in the case of longer pauses are combined with a coronis, as e. g. in the British Museum Bacchylides papyrus. A few stops (in the middle and low positions) which occur (ll. 177, 332, and 410) are not due to the original scribe; but he was responsible for the breathings in ll. 180 and 434, the occasional diaereses over initial ι or υ, as well as for the insertion above the line of an omitted word (l. 446), and probably for the corrections or alternative readings added above the line between dots in ll. 143, 327, and 380. The MS. has undergone considerable revision, for at least two cursive or semiuncial hands, which are different from that of the main text but approximately contemporary with it, can be distinguished in various notes in the upper margin or between the columns, either correcting or explaining the text (ll. 69, 131, 355, 379, 410, nn.).

in which respect 1619 is not conspicuously more correct than the MSS., as is shown by e.g. the forms ἐδικαιεῦντο (l. 19), κρίσει (l. 175), and σφε (l. 344). πρήχμα, an alternative reading in ll. 327 and 380, though not found in the MSS., is known in the fifth century B.C. from a Chian inscription; cf. Smyth, Ionic Dialect, § 350. For Καμβύσην, a new form of the accusative as far as Herodotus is concerned, see l. 176, n. Regarded as a whole, the text of 1619 is free from scribe's errors (one seems to have occurred in l. 374, another in l. 131 to have been corrected subsequently) and generally sound, presenting not many novelties, but combining most of the good points in both the families (α) and (β). Of an alternative recension with great variations, such as that indicated in 1092. ix, there is no trace.

Before the discovery of Herodotean papyri the origin of the two lines of tradition represented by the MSS. was naturally not the subject of much discussion. Editors of Herodotus from Wesseling to even Hude were content to assume the existence of an archetype of the two families, and to aim at reconstructing it without much regard for the question whether it was Alexandrian, Roman, or Byzantine. In 1909 Aly (Rhein. Mus. lxiv. 591 sqq.) put forward the hypothesis that (α) mainly represented the Alexandrian text as edited by Aristarchus, (β) the pre-Alexandrian vulgate in a redaction of the time of Hadrian; but this view, which would cut the ground from the archetype-theory, has not gained much acceptance, and is controverted by Jacoby in Pauly-Wissowa's Realencycl. Suppl. ii. 516-17. 1619 certainly does not lend it any support. Jacoby himself is also sceptical about the validity of the current archetype-theory, and is disposed to regard the two families as quite ancient recensions, parallel to the papyri. But the most natural inference to be drawn from the eclectic character of 1092 and 1619 is that these first-second century papyrus texts were older than the division of the families (α) and (β), which seems to have taken place not earlier than the fourth century; cf. 1092. int. and Viljoen, op. cit. p. 56. By the first century the text of Herodotus had reached a condition which is only slightly better than the text recoverable from a combination of (α) and (β).

Frs. 3, 7, 10, and 20 are from the tops of columns, Fr. 14 from the bottom, the rest from the middles. The point of division of lines is quite uncertain in Frs. 1, 2, 13, 23, and 24, and the proposed arrangement of Frs. 9, 20, and 25 is only tentative.

58-9. επι]σπομε]νην: so R, Hude; επισπωμένην SV. ε]σπομε]νην (ABP, Stein) is too short.

69. The two strokes after κα]λεομενους presumably refer to the marginal note (l. 49), where they may have been repeated at the beginning of the line; cf. 1620. ii. καλεομένους, which is omitted by ABP and apparently erased in C, is omitted by Stein and bracketed by Hude; but if the corrector wished to omit it, βασ]ιληιους δικαστα[ς, not βασ]ιληιοι δικαστα[ς, would be expected in the note. Probably one or more words are lost before βασ]ιληιοι and the note is explanatory, like that in the margin of l. 355, which is in the same hand. That the note refers to l. 72, where βασιληιοι δικασται occurs in the text (1619 is defective at this point), is unlikely in view of the critical mark against l. 69.

103-4. νι]κωμεν[ου: νικομένου BR.

105. αυτ[ου αλλον σκυλακα: so ABC, edd.; αλλον αὐτοῦ σκ. PRSV; om. αλλον σκ. Naber; cf. the next n.

108. After δη the MSS. have τοὺς σκύλακας, but 1619 is probably right in its omission; cf. int. and l. 105, n.

131. The cursive marginal note εκτρωσασ(αν) is possibly by the writer of the scholium on l. 410, but is certainly not due to the writer of notes on ll. 69 and 355, and seems not to be by the first hand. The size of the lacuna suits the hypothesis that the first hand had omitted σσ.

132-3. οικ[ε]ι[οτατους: οικ[η]ι[ους (ABCP, edd.) is too short.

135. [εωθε]: so RSV (εωθεν), edd.; [εωθεε] (ABC) is too long.

136. καταλαμβο[νειν]: before this edd. insert κακὰ with RSV.

137. και: om. ABC, edd.

143. ABC agree with the original reading τὰ δὲ ἐς, while RSV rightly have τὰδε δ' (or δὲ?) ἐς, agreeing with the superscribed reading.

147. εφορεε: so MSS., Stein; ε[σ]ε[φορεε] Naber, Hude. εσ]εφορεε is unsatisfactory, for the supplement in l. 146 is already long enough.

149. και: om. P.

150. δε: Krüger's conjecture δὴ is not supported.
168. τελεσαι: so ABRSV; om. E; καλεσαι (= -εὔσαι?) C; εικάσαι? Stein. Hude brackets this inappropriate word.
172. προσεκτήσθαι: προσκτήσασθαι RSV.
175. τη κρίσει: τῇ γινομένη κρίσει RSV.
176. Καμβύσην: Καμβύσεια MSS. here as elsewhere in Hdt., though in the other cases the word belongs to the first declension, and the Attic accusative is of course Καμβύσην. With regard to Ξέρξης, Ὀτάνης, and some other proper names in -ης both forms of the accusative are found in MSS. of Hdt.; cf. Smyth, op. cit. § 438.
- 176-7. ταδε: om. RSV.
181. ακουστ[ο]ς: om. ABCE.
231. Whether ενετέλλ[ε]τ[ο] (ABCE) or ενετείλα[το] (RSV) is to be read is not certain. There is no reason for supposing that in 1619 ὁ was inserted before σός, as suggested by Bekker.
267. μετέπειτα χρόνῳ: μετέπ. χρ. ὕστερον MSS., which is too long. The vestige of a letter following λῶι suits μ very well, but χ[ρο]νῳ followed by μετεπειτα or ὕστερον could be read. ὕστερον is superfluous; cf. vii. 7 χρόνῳ μετέπειτα.
- 268-9. ἐπηγ[ε]λλ[οντο] αὐτοῖς: ἐπήγγελλον τὸ αὐτὸ (V), ἐπήγγελλον αὐτῶ (S), ἐπήγγελλον αὐτῶ (Schweighauser) are all unsuitable.
- 286-8. The position assigned to this fragment is far from certain, περ[ι] in l. 288 being doubtful. ν or [ο] can be substituted for π, and η, ι, ν, or π for ρ.
319. διαφ[ο]ροι: the MSS. are corrupt, having διάφοροι εἶντες ἐωντοῖσι (ἐωντοῖ RSV). Krüger suggested ἐρίζοντες for εἶντες, Reiske supplied οἰκῆμοι before εἶντες, Valckenaer συγγενεῖς after ἐωντοῖσι. 1619 was clearly shorter, and the sentence may have ended with διαφ[ο]ροι, for in l. 320 ὧν, which occurs in the MSS. after τούτων, is omitted, and the new sentence may have begun ὧν του[των] εἰν[ε]κεν. A connecting particle is, however, not necessary with τούτων (cf. e.g. l. 13), and the absence of a paragraphus below l. 319 suggests that ll. 317-21 may have formed one sentence in the papyrus, though the scribe is not very regular in the use of paragraphi.
320. For the omission of ὧν after του[των], which may be merely a slip, cf. the previous note. RV have ἐνεκεν for εἰν[ε]κεν.
- 321-2. ε[ἰ]πεμπε: there is not room for ἀπε[μ]πε (ABC, edd.), unless οἱ before Κορινθιοι was omitted.
325. τιμωρεν[μενος]: τιμωρέμενος RSV. Cf. Smyth, op. cit. § 684. 2. The restoration προτεροι (πρότερον RSV) is supported by the parallel in l. 380; cf. n.
- 326-7. For the alternative form πρήχμα, which is ignored by the MSS. of Hdt., see int.
328. [οικτιρε: so MSS.; [οικτιρε, the form preferred by edd., would be long enough.
333. αγαθα τα: so MSS.; <τὰ> ἀγαθὰ τὰ edd. since Aldus.
339. ες: εἰς AB less correctly. At the end of the line, where the supplement is rather long, producing a line of 27 letters, the division was perhaps ε[χ]ρην, but only 8 or 9 letters are expected in the lacuna at the beginning of l. 340.
344. σφε, the reading of the MSS. corrected by edd. to σφεα, is rendered certain by the size of the initial lacuna. ἀπιθι suits the space better than ἀπελθε (RSV).
346. φι[λο]τιμιη: for η φι[λο]τιμιη (RSV, edd.) there is not room, if, as is probable, there was a space after ὧν.
351. Either ἀπεβαλον or μετεβαλον (ABC) can be restored.
353. The supplement, based on AB, is rather long, producing a line of 27 letters, and perhaps either η- should be omitted with R (SV om. ηδη), or τε, or even both.
355. The marginal note is in the same hand as that in l. 49.
- 361-2. RSV have ἐκτείνοντες instead of ἐκτεινον . . . παραινόντες.
363. εγνο[υ]το: or εγενο[υ]το (ABS, Stein).

365. αἰρέθη αν Σαμ]ος: αἰρέθησαν Σαμίους RSV.
 370. δη: om. RSV.
 372. Λακεδαιμ[ονιοισι (PRS; -ησι V) suits the size of the lacuna better than Λακεδαιμ[ονιοι (AB, edd.).
 373-4. Πο]λυκ[ρ(ατ)εα σ]τρατ.: the lacuna ought not to exceed 4 letters, but the omission may have been supplied above the line, as in l. 446.
 378-9. ε]δ[εοντο: the supposed vestige of δ may belong to a paragraphus. In the margin are traces of a note, which might refer to ll. 361-2, but is nearer to col. xxiv.
 379-80. For the alternative spellings πρη]χ[ματα, πρη]χ[ματα cf. l. 327 and int.
 383. τη]ς: om. MSS. But cf. e.g. v. 82 τη] 'Αθηναίη τε (τε om. SVU) τη] Πολιδδι, vii.
 43 τη] 'Αθηναίη τη] 'Ιλιάδι.
 386. προτ]εροι: πρότερον RSV.
 406. τ]ου ορυ[γματος τουτου: τούτου τοῦ ὄρ. RSV.
 410. The supposed stop after λι]μενα, which is not wanted, might be the bottom of a critical sign referring to the marginal note, which begins π(ερι) λιμε(να) and seems to be of an explanatory character. In the second line ωσει π[' or π[' (i.e. παρά) or ως εν[αι can be read; the third line does not seem to be λ[ι]με[ν] . . . The ink is lighter than that of the main text and the marginal note on l. 131, and the hand certainly different from that of ll. 49 and 355 marg.
 411. κατα: so MSS., which continue εἴκοσι ὀργυιέων. Stein and Hude follow Eltz in reading καί for κατά, which is not satisfactory. As Lobel remarks, κατά would be expected here to mean 'about', especially since most of the dyke was under water; cf. the frequent examples of κατά with numerals quoted by Schweighauser, Lex. Herod. ii. 10. Hence the mistake may well lie in ὀργυιέων, for which we suggest ὀργυίας, unless there was a substantive εἰκοσιόργυιον, meaning a 'length of 20 fathoms'.
 423. οι: om. C.
 427-8. 1619 no doubt had δη ταυτην ειχε (om. RSV) between αυτ[ην and το]τε.
 430. παραγιν]ετο[ι: or possibly ε]ς τα [Σουσα.
 434. Of the supposed breathing over ε]ξ only the tip of a horizontal stroke is left, which might be interpreted as belonging to a paragraphus. Lines 433-4 would then begin [χ]ος and [σι ε]ξ, but this arrangement does not suit ll. 432 and 435-6 very well, and εἶξ is a very natural word on which to place a breathing; cf. l. 180.
 438. ε]πε[ιτε or επει]τε[can be read.
 440. Οτανη: 'Οτ. ἡ AB, edd.; 'Οτ. ἡ C.
 443-4. ἔργον δὲ οὐδὲν ἀπ' αὐτῶν λαμπρόν γίνεται MSS. 1619 was shorter and presumably omitted γίνεται or ἀπ' αὐτῶν rather than λαμπρόν.
 445. κατεστ]εωσας: κατεσ]ρωσας (RSV) can equally well be read, but is somewhat less suitable to the supposed length of the initial lacuna.
 446. μ[εν, inserted above the line by the first hand, is read by all the MSS.
 447. τωωνδε: so Hude with RSV; τοίων ABCP, Stein.

1620. THUCYDIDES i.

14 × 14.3 cm. Late second or early third century.
 Plate VI.

This fragment consists of the upper portion of two columns and a few letters from the beginnings of lines of a third column of a roll containing the first book of Thucydides, and covers chs. 11-14 with considerable lacunae.

The script is a medium-sized uncial of a second-third century type, resembling 843 (Part v, Plate vi) and 1175 (Part ix, Plate iii). That it is more likely to have been written before A.D. 200 than after is indicated by the notes referring to alternative readings, which have been added later in the upper margin by a different and cursive hand. These notes are very like those in 1234 (Part x, Plate iv), of which the main text is not dissimilar in style to that of 1620, though in a larger hand, and suggest a date not later than the reign of Caracalla. The main text may therefore well be ascribed to the reign of Commodus or even M. Aurelius. The columns are rather tall, containing about 54 lines of 18-22 letters. High stops accompanied by paragraphi (which are to be restored after ll. 3, 10, 14, and 21) are frequent, and there are occasional diaereses, but no breathings or accents. Iota adscript was written in l. 13, but apparently not in l. 62. An omission in l. 3 is supplied by the original scribe, who also superscribed a variant in l. 67; but a slip in l. 8 is corrected by the writer of the marginal notes, which seem to be variants obtained from a different and older MS., not corrections; cf. ll. 67-8, n. Critical signs are placed against the notes and the corresponding line of the text, four different signs being found in Col. ii.

The relation of the papyri of Thucydides to the vellum MSS., which are divided into two families, CG and BAEF, M approximating to a middle position, is discussed at length in 1376. int.; cf. also Hude, Bull. de l'acad. royale de Danemark, 1915, 579-85. Of the five best papyri the first century specimens tend to support C, those of the second century B, especially in the later books. In the chapters covered by 1620 both C and F are defective, the lost portions having been supplied by later hands, in both cases from MSS. of the C family (c and f), so that F and f represent different families. 1620, a careful and elaborately revised text, agrees with B against cfG four times, and with the C family against B twice. 1621, however, which is about a century later than 1620, inverts the relationship to the two families, agreeing five times with C, twice with the B group. 1622, which is about fifty years earlier than 1620 and agrees twice with either group, and 1623, which is three or four centuries later and agrees twice with the B group, once with CG, are both too short to show their real character. But the customary eclecticism of papyri in relation to the mediaeval MSS. is apparent throughout the four Thucydides fragments in the present volume, and the division of the MSS. into two families is no doubt later than the papyrus period; cf. the parallel case of the MSS. of Herodotus discussed in 1619. int.

New readings in 1620 occur in ll. 1, 73-4, 76, and side by side with the traditional readings in ll. 61, 67-8, 72 (cf. also Col. i. marg., ll. 58, 109, 112, nn.).

Some of these are concerned with trivial differences, such as the omission of the article or the order of words; but in l. 67 the traditional participle is no better than the hitherto unrecorded infinitive, and, especially since the marginal readings tend to be superior to those of the main text, the new reading proposed in the marginal note on ll. 67-8 may well be right. A tendency to smooth slight irregularities and roughnesses of style is traceable throughout 1620-3, especially in 1621, which confirms two modern emendations; and, although some of the novelties can be explained as editorial improvements, and omissions may be merely due to accident, the four new fragments seem to represent texts of rather high quality, and distinctly support the impression gained by a survey of the longer Thucydidean papyri such as 16 and 1376, that without resorting to the drastic changes proposed by Rutherford there are many improvements to be made upon the tradition of the mediaeval MSS.

Col. i. marg. και αλ(λα) 'and so on' recurs in the third marginal note at the top of Col. ii. The preceding word apparently does not occur anywhere in the known text of ll. 1-54, and an unknown variant seems to be indicated; cf. ll. 67-8, n.]ε αει or]κασι or]κει can be substituted for]ελει.

1. Τροϊαν: τήν Τροίαν MSS. Cf. ll. 58, 61, 73-4, nn.

3. τε, supplied by the first hand, is in all the MSS.

π[ρο] τουτων: so A²cF²GM, edd.; π[ρος] τ. (A¹BEF¹) is unsuitable to the size of the lacuna.

4. γε: om. cfG.

8. των, the reading of the first hand, is a mere error.

11. ηδη, which has a line above it to indicate deletion, is not known as a variant here.

14. [μη ησυχασ(ασ)]αν: the traces of α are very slight, but ν is fairly certain, and there is not room for more than 7 or 8 letters in the lacuna. μη ησυχάσασα cf¹, Hude; μη ησυχάσασαν ABEMf², Stuart Jones.

17-18. ενεω[χμωσε]: so AEM; ενεόχμωσε Bcf, edd.

19. επι το πολ[υ]: so cEf, Hude; om. τὸ ABM, Stuart Jones.

21. τας] πολεις: so MSS., Stuart Jones; νέας (Madvig, Hude) does not suit the size of the lacuna.

22. Gertz wished to omit γαρ.

Col. ii. marg. Cf. ll. 58, 61, 67-8, 72, nn., and for και αλ(λα) Col. i. marg. n.

58. Which word or words in this line were referred to in the lost marginal note at the top of Col. ii is uncertain. The only clue afforded by the MSS. is the circumstance that in E the ι of πρώτοι is by a later hand, perhaps indicating πρώτων as the original reading; cf. πρώτων in l. 62. If not πρώτων, the lost variant may have been οι Κορινθιοι; cf. ll. 1, 61, 73-4, nn.

61. navs: τὰς ναῦς MSS., agreeing with the reading in the second marginal note. τριήρεις immediately following has no article, and τὰς can be dispensed with; but the omission may be due to the accidental collocation of ναῦς and τριήρεις which belong to different sentences. Cf. ll. 1, 58, 73-4, nn.

62. πρωτον εν Κορινθω: so BcEf, Hude; ἐν Κ. πρ. AGM, Stuart Jones. Cf. ll. 73-4, 76-7, nn.

63. ναυπηγηθῆναι: so ABEGM, Stuart Jones; ἐνναυπ. cfG suprascr, Hude.

67. ποιῆσαι: ποιήσας MSS., agreeing with the superscribed reading. The infinitive makes the statement less definite and is quite appropriate.

τεττ[α]ρας, with the marginal variant [τε]σσαρας: cf. the superscribed σσ in the case of 16. i. 4 ἐφυλαττον and 38 ηττηθειεν.

67-8. ε[τη] δ ἐστὶ μαλιστα: so all MSS.; the marginal variant και ταυτα ε[τη] ἐστὶ μαλ. is unknown here, but at l. 76, where 1620 like ABEGM has ετη δε μα[λι]στα, cfG add. have ετη δε μάλ. και ταύτη and Bekker's N ετη δε μάλ. και ταῦτα. The most probable explanation of this duplicate set of variations is that the original reading was that of 1620. marg., but και ταυτα was omitted, δ being inserted in its place (so 1620. 67, ABEGM); και ταυτα was, however, supplied in the margin, from which the words were restored to the text in the wrong place (as in N), resulting in the subsequent emendation of ταῦτα to ταύτη (cfG add.). If the reading of the later MSS. (G is 13th cent.; cf are later than CF), which editors have hitherto adopted, be supposed to be original, it is almost inexplicable that neither the scribe nor the corrector of 1620 knew of the reading και ταύτη in l. 76, and that the corrector should make matters worse instead of better. The source of the marginal variants in 1620 is probably older than the main text, and may well have been a Ptolemaic papyrus or at any rate as old as the archetype of 1620. In view of the great antiquity of the reading και ταῦτα and the very late character of the evidence for και ταύτη we much prefer to explain the variations in the light of their chronological arrangement, and to regard the readings of (a) 1620. 67 and the older MSS. and (b) N as intermediate steps in the process by which the reading preserved in 1620. marg. became corrupted into that of cfG add.

71. ηλθε: so MSS.; ἦλθεν edd. The earlier papyri of Thucydides as a rule omit ν ἐφέλκυστικόν at the end of a sentence; cf. e.g. 1622. 81, 84.

72. παλο[ι]στατη: so some of the deteriores; the earlier MSS. have παλαιτάτη here, as has the marginal note, but in e.g. ch. 1. 1 παλαιότερα occurs.

73-4. ω[ν] η[δ]η ισ[μ]εν η Κορινθιω[ν] γ[ιν]ν[ε]ται: ὡν ἴσμεν γίγνεται Κορ. MSS. (G at first inserted γίγνεται before ὡν ἴσμεν, but erased it). ισ is fairly certain, and the preceding letter can be η, μ, or ν, while the letter after ισ[μ]εν, if not η, must be ν: the traces of εν and of a letter after α[ν] are very slight and indecisive. [ι]σμ[ε]ν Κορ. might be read, but before it ων [η]μεις is not long enough and ων [η]μεις is inadmissible. η[δ]η is not very satisfactory, but preferable to α[ν] σ[ν]νισμ[ε]ν. The insertion of the article before Κορινθιω[ν] may be right (cf. ll. 1, 58, 61, nn.); the loss of it may be due to the hiatus created when γίγνεται was placed before instead of after ἡ Κορινθίων. That 1620 had the form γ[ιν]ν[ε]ται (with cf) is uncertain, for γ[ιν]ν[ε]ται can be read.

75-6. μα[λι]στα: μάλ. και ταύτη cfG add., edd.; cf. ll. 67-8, n.

76-7. διακο[σ]ι[α] ε[ξ]η[κ]οντα: ἐξήκ. και διακ. MSS. The traces suit διακο[σ]ι[α] very well, but in l. 77 μ[ε]χ[ρ] is quite uncertain.

109. To what the critical sign refers is uncertain. The only variants in the MSS. at this point concern the spelling 'Ρήρειαν or 'Ρηρίαν (in other authors spelled 'Ρήρειαν or 'Ρηραιάν), except for the dittography 'Ρήρειαν ἀνελών in cf.

112. The critical sign perhaps refers to a variant concerning the spelling of Μεσσαλίαν (Μεσσαλίαν, Μασαλίαν, Μασσιλίαν, or Μασσαλίαν MSS.).

1621. THUCYDIDES ii (Speeches).

14.3 × 11.4 cm.

Fourth century. Plate V

This leaf of a vellum codex is of a somewhat novel character, since it belongs to a collection of the speeches in Thucydides. The fragment contains the conclusion of the speech of Archidamus at the beginning of the war (ii. 11) and the beginning of the funeral oration of Pericles (ii. 35). There are 21 lines on a page and 20–5 letters in a line. Traces of the pagination are visible on both sides, but the figures are illegible. The hand is a calligraphic uncial of the same type as the Codex Sinaiticus, and the fragment has a special palaeographical interest, for some omissions by the first hand (ll. 18 and 26) have been supplied in darker brown ink by a cursive hand. These cursive additions are not later than the fourth century, and the main text is likely to belong to the early or middle part of that century. Stops occur in the high, middle, and low positions, but are partly due to the corrector. A stroke for punctuation (l. 2) and occasional diaereses and elision-marks are due to the original scribe, a breathing to the corrector. Iota adscript was generally written: where omitted, it has been supplied in at least one place (l. 16) and perhaps two others (ll. 10 and 15), apparently by the corrector.

The text as corrected is on the whole a good one and has several interesting novelties, which are in most cases superior to the readings of the MSS. The omission of the unsatisfactory οὔτω in l. 4 confirms a conjecture of Madvig, though confidence in the omissions in 1621 is somewhat shaken not only by the two mistaken omissions of the first hand, which are supplied by the corrector, but by a third (l. 36), which has escaped his notice. ὑμῖν for ἡμῖν in l. 25 confirms the conjecture of Hude already substantiated by 853. vii. 15, the confusion between these words being of course common. ἀμύνασθαι for ἀμύνεσθαι in l. 4 and the omission of τῶν before ἄλλων in l. 19 may well be right. C is supported against B five times, B against C twice; cf. 1620. int.

4. [α]μυνασθαι: ἀμύνεσθαι οὕτω MSS., Stuart Jones; ἀμύνεσθαι omitting οὕτω Hude, following Madvig. For other variations between ἀμύνεσθαι and ἀμύνασθαι cf. e. g. i. 96. 1.

11. τα εκεινων: so C; τὰ κείνων A; τὰ κείνων BEFM, edd.

14. τι: τε C.

15. Usener wished to delete οι.

18. τι, supplied by the corrector, is in all the MSS.

19. αλλων: τῶν ἄλλων MSS.; but τῶν ἄλλων has just occurred in l. 18 and αλλων is quite defensible.

21. των: τὴν MSS., rightly. It is certain that των was first written, but the second half of the ω is incompletely preserved, and ω may have been corrected to η.

22. αυτων: αὐτῶν C, Hude, Stuart Jones; ἐαντῶν ABEFM³. αὐτῶν was probably meant by the papyrus and is likely to be right.

22-3. τοσαν|την: so CEG marg. B γρ. F¹ γρ. M⁴ ex corr., edd.; τὴν ἄλλην ABEFM³; τοιαύτην some late MSS.

24. οισομενοι: οἰόμενοι B.

25. υμιν: so 853; ἡμῖν MSS. Cf. int.

35. ο[ι] μ[εν]: so ABEFM with Tiberius, Syrianus, Dionysius, Castor, and Max. Plan. Hude (but not Stuart Jones) formerly carried his preference for CG to the length of reading μὲν οὖν, but now (ed. maior²) brackets οὖν.

35-6. ηδη ειρηκοτων: so CG (ἥδη add. G¹), schol., Syrianus, Max. Plan., edd.; εἰρηκότων ἥδη ABEFM; om. ἥδη Tiberius, Castor. The MSS. of Dionysius vary between ἥδη εἰρ. and εἰρ. ἥδη.

39. πολεμων: πόλεων ABF.

40. Dobree wished to omit αυτον.

41. δ': δὲ CG, edd. αρκουν αν: ἂν ἀρκούν M.

1622. THUCYDIDES ii.

17.5 × 21.2 cm. Early second century. Plate IV.

The chief interest of this much damaged fragment, which consists of the lower halves of two columns and a bit of the column preceding, and contains parts of chs. 65 and 67 of Thuc. ii, is palaeographical, for on the verso is part of a contract for loan dated in Mecheir of the 11th year of Antoninus Pius (A. D. 148), so that the recto must have been written before 148, probably in the reign of Hadrian, and is an unusually well dated specimen of second-century uncial writing. Other papyri which more or less approximate to it in style and date are 9 (Part i, Plate iii, which was there dated somewhat too late), 841 (Part v, Plate iii), 1233 (Part x, Plate iii), and 1619 (Plate iv). A >-shaped sign is used for filling up short lines, and pauses are indicated by occasional blank places, paragraphi, and stops chiefly in the middle position (the high stop at the end of l. 51 is not certain). A mark of quantity occurs in l. 53, and a correction of spelling, possibly in a different hand, in l. 81. The column contained 29-30 lines of 16-22 letters. Iota adscript was written. 1622 agrees with C twice and with the other family twice; cf. 1620. int. The only new reading occurs in the very compressed sentence beginning in l. 84, of which the end is not preserved. Here the text of 1622 is apparently corrupt as it stands, but is perhaps nearer the original than the reading of the MSS., which may be only an emendation; cf. n. ad loc.

mediaeval MSS., agreeing once with CGM, probably twice with the B group (cf. 1620. int.), and presenting several new readings. Of these the omission of τῶν νεῶν in l. 1 and τὸ πεζόν for τὸν π. in l. 11 are quite defensible. More interesting is the variant ἀνέ[πλευσε for ἔπλευσε in l. 8, where the simple verb was rather ambiguous. The precise nature of the variation in ll. 19–20 is obscured by lacunae. 1616 was found with 1623.

1. πλείους α]ποπεμπει: πλ. ἀποπέμπει τῶν νεῶν MSS. Since αἱ νῆες occurred in the previous sentence, the repetition is unnecessary.

8–9. ἀνέ[πλευσε: ἔπλευσε MSS. ἀναπλεῖν occurs only once in Thuc. i, 104. 2 καὶ ἀναπλεύσαντες ἀπὸ θαλάσσης ἐς τὸν Νεῖλον, where it implies sailing up stream. If this was also implied here, ναυ[σιν ες τον Αχ]ελῶον αν. may have been the reading; but ἀνέ[πλευσε may simply mean 'sailed out', in which case it hardly differs from the simple verb and κατά means 'in the direction of' or 'off' or perhaps even 'on'. Oeniadae was situated near the mouth of the Acheloüs, surrounded in winter by marshes into which the Acheloüs flowed (Thuc. ii. 102. 2), and of which one connected with the Gulf of Corinth according to Strabo, p. 459. The ships may therefore have been taken a little way up the river. A compound verb has this advantage over the simple one that it is not open to the interpretation 'he sailed down the Acheloüs', which is inadmissible here; cf. iv. 25. 8 ταῖς μὲν ναυσὶ περιπλεύσαντες κατὰ τὸν Ἀκεσίην (in Sicily) ποταμὸν τὴν γῆν ἔδῃον. That ἀνέπλευσε here means 'sailed back' (Asopius had already passed Acarnania on his way up the gulf to Naupactus) is less likely.

11. το: τὸν MSS. Thucydides uses both the masculine and neuter of πεζός substantively 18-19. αὐτό[[θεν (ABEFM, edd.) suits the length of the lacuna better than αὐτό[[θι (CG). The supposed accent is very doubtful.

19-20. τινων? ων υστερον [[υποσπονδους: τινῶν ὀλίγων καὶ ὕστερον ὑπ. MSS. There is certainly not room for both τινων and ὀλίγων and there is no trace of και, but ων instead of being ῶν might be the termination of τινῶν or ὀλίγων with δ before υποσπονδους in l. 20, though the supplement there is quite long enough. υ and ερ of υστερον are fairly certain; the στ is cramped and seems to have been corrected, probably from π, and δ is not a very satisfactory reading. ῶν is not in accordance with Thucydidean usage in this context, καὶ ὕστερον ὑποσπονδους being common.

37-8. αν]]δρες: so ABEFM; om. CG, edd.

41. πολεμοις: so CGM, edd.; πολεμίοις ABEF.

1624. PLATO, Protagoras.

Fr. 1 10.5 x 17 cm.

Third century. Plate VI
(Cols. lxiii-iv, lxvi).

These scanty remains of a roll containing the Protagoras originally consisted of about 100 pieces, of which nearly three-quarters have been placed and some very minute scraps ignored. The identified fragments, which amount to about 230 lines in all, are scattered over the latter part of the dialogue from pp. 337-57, representing 23 out of the last 71 columns, but none at all completely. The upper margin is partly preserved in Cols. ii, xx, xxxv, xxxvii, xlv, lxi, lxiii-v, the lower in Cols. i, xvi, and lxiii, showing that each column contained 37 or 38 narrow lines of 10-17 letters, usually 12 or 13. The writing is a handsome specimen of the now well-known third-century type of uncials approximating to that of the early biblical codices; cf. 1365. int. Like 1017 (Phaedrus), 1624 is remarkable for the presence of many corrections or alternative readings, which have been inserted in a different and cursive hand. These seem to have been written somewhat later in the third century than the scholia in 1241, but to be contemporary with the scholia in P. Grenf. ii. 12, the main text in those two papyri being in hands very similar to the first hand of 1624, which is probably not later than the middle of the century. Iota adscript was written, so far as can be judged. Paragraphi were employed by the first hand, but in the four places in which they occur have been placed in brackets by the corrector. Stops in all three positions occur, besides double dots marking a change of speaker, but in many cases are due to the corrector, who was apparently responsible for a breathing in l. 169 and accent in l. 285. Wedge-shaped signs for filling up short lines, occasional diaereses over ι and υ, and probably the accent in l. 16 and elision-mark in l. 227 are due to the first hand. The corrector's omissions, apart from the bracketing of paragraphi mentioned above, are indicated in ll. 114, 272, 589 by a stroke, elsewhere by dots, above the letters in question.

Papyri of Plato are now fairly numerous, 1624 being the 19th known; but no fragments of the Protagoras have been discovered previously. For this dialogue the chief MSS. are B (the Clarkeanus), T (the Marcianus), and W (Vindobonensis 54); but 1624 happens to cover very few passages in which they differ seriously. A mistake of BT is avoided (l. 360), but in ll. 629 and 663 the papyrus apparently supports BT against W. In ll. 319 and 435 the first hand agrees with the reading of W, the corrector with that of BT (in l. 435 not exactly). Some agreements between 1624 and Vaticanus 1029 are noticeable (ll. 435, 592, 632, nn.) and the text of Stobaeus is supported in l. 396, so that with regard to the existing tradition there is no reason to suppose that 1624 was less eclectic than the longer Plato papyri from Oxyrhynchus, 843 and 1016-17. In the new readings, which are frequent, the first hand and the corrector usually took different views, the only instance in which they agreed upon a hitherto unrecorded variant being the insertion of the article before μέρει in l. 288. In ll. 6, 594, 632, and 637 the corrector has restored the ordinary reading of the MSS. by inserting words omitted either intentionally or by inadvertence by the first hand; cf. also ll. 176-7, n. The first hand was not a very accurate scribe, to judge by several apparent repetitions of syllables; cf. l. 114, n., and 843 (Symposium), which has numerous mistakes of this character. The most striking of the new readings rejected by the corrector is the addition of αἰ before ἴσαι in l. 589, a reading which had been generally adopted by modern editors from a conjecture of Heindorf, but is hardly rendered more convincing. More often it is the first hand, not the corrector, who agrees with the MSS.; cf. ll. 15, 431, 481, 486, 490, 590, 592, 640, 665, 666, 672, nn. In several of these places there is an obvious difficulty in the ordinary reading, and in l. 672 the corrector's reading had already suggested itself to some of the Renaissance editors of Plato as an improvement, while in ll. 15 and 640 his readings seem to be superior; but the changes proposed in ll. 592 and 666 are of more doubtful value. The other novelties are all of the nature of omissions from the ordinary text, in revising which the corrector, presumably on the authority of a different

MS., exhibits an unwonted and perhaps exaggerated tendency to solve difficulties by excisions. His text is, however, as a whole distinctly better than that of the first hand, and interesting as a specimen of a recension which was probably due to some Alexandrian grammarian, and possibly connected with the corrector's text in 1017. A proneness to omissions of words found in the traditional text is one of the characteristics of the Phaedo and Laches papyri of the third century B. C., but these of course differ from the ordinary text much more widely than 1624.

6. και: so MSS.

7. επαινοισθε: so B, edd.; επαινείσθε with superscribed οι T.

8. μεν: so MSS.; τε, the reading of the first hand, is probably due to a reminiscence of l. 2. It is not quite certain that he wrote [δε] rather than [τε] in l. 13.

15. [ψε]υδομένων: so MSS. except Vat. 1029 (ψευδομένω). The corrector's reading ψευδόμενον, which is passive, not middle, and refers to the subject of the infinitives, brings out the antithesis between εὐδοκιμεῖν and ἐπαινείσθαι more clearly, and is likely to be right.

40. συ[γγενεις] so BT. Elsewhere (ll. 45 and 282) the first hand uses the ξ-form, which the corrector preferred here.

89. κ[αι] χαλασαι: these words were bracketed by Cobet.

114. [υσ[τερον]]: this word is in the MSS. and can hardly be dispensed with. It may well have been omitted here by the corrector because it was written twice over (cf. ll. 271-2, 436, 593-4, nn.); but the preceding words are corrupt in BT (ἡγοῖτο πρότερον instead of ἦτοι τὸ πρότερον) and may have been equally corrupt in 1624, in which case the omission of υστερον is possibly part of an extensive alteration.

169. γ εμ[οι]: so some edd. since Bekker; but γε μ[οι] (BT, Burnet) can of course be read equally well.

173-4. εσ[τι]: so T; ἐστιν B, like the corrector.

176-7. [κα[ι]] εν | Κρη[τ]ηι: ἐν K. τε MSS. The corrector may have added τε after εν.

180. α[λλα] makes the line rather long, but the division αλλ' | εξαρν. would be unusual. Cf. l. 280.

281. εαυτοis: αὐτοῖς BT. Cf. l. 286, n.

283. The letter before ναι is almost entirely lost, but has clearly been crossed through, and there seems to be a letter above the line, so that it is not satisfactory to suppose that the corrector simply altered the division ξυνειναι, which is legitimate but rather unusual, to ξυνειναι. No variant is known here.

286. εαυτων: αὐτῶν B, edd.; αὐτῶν T. Cf. l. 281, n.

288-9. εν τω[ι] μερει: om. τωι MSS. The article is sometimes inserted, sometimes omitted, in this phrase by Plato; cf. Gorg. 462 a ἐν τῷ μέρει ἐρωτῶν τε καὶ ἐρωτώμενος with 496 b ἀλλ' ἐν μέρει οἶμαι ἐκότερον καὶ λαμβάνει καὶ ἀπολλύει.

319. δ]ώσει[ν]: δώσει BT rightly; δώσειν W.

357. ισχυροὶ (B) suits the probable length of the lacuna better than οἱ ισχυροὶ (T, edd.).

360. [εἰ] οἱ: so t, edd.; οἰεῖ B; οἶεῖ T.

396. γε: so Stobaeus, Burnet; τε BTW, Schanz. Cf. ἀπὸ μανίας γε καὶ θυμοῦ a few lines before l. 394, where Wt Stobaeus have γε, and BT τε.

397. [απο μανία]ς: the s is fairly certain, and the length of the lacuna does not suit the restoration [μανίας ω]σ[τε], omitting απο in accordance with Naber's conjecture.

398-400. The division of lines in this fragment is quite uncertain.

431. [απα]: ἀπα BTW; ἀμα a corrector of the Coislinianus, Burnet. The difficulty is caused by the late position of ἀπα in the sentence.

435. δ]νοιν: so W, Vat. 1029; BT agree with the corrector in adding καί, but place it after instead of before δνοίν. BT's order seems preferable.

436. [ονο]μα[σι]: probably ονο had been written twice by the first hand; cf. l. 114, n.

436-7. προσαγο]ρε[υωμεν: so edd.; προσαγορεύομεν BTW. Line 437 is already rather short (11 letters), and the substitution of ο for ω, though possible, is not satisfactory. ρε[νομεν αὐτα πρω]τ[ον] μ[εν] is inadmissible, for, though τ could be read instead of π, the only alternatives to the τ of π[ρω]τ[ον] are γ and π.

444-6. The position assigned to this fragment is far from certain.

481. [οτ]κ]: the corrector omitted this word, which is in the MSS., presumably because (δηλον) οτῖ had occurred in ll. 479-80; cf. int.

486. [ῖως]: this word is in the MSS., but can be dispensed with.

490. [η]: the omission of this word is distinctly an improvement, if ῆ (so MSS. and edd.) was meant. This question simply supplies the answer to the preceding one κατὰ τί δὲ κτλ., and does not introduce a fresh alternative of any kind. If η is retained, ῆ seems preferable to ῆ.

535-8. The division of lines in this fragment is uncertain.

582. [τη]: so MSS.; there would be room for two more letters in the lacuna.

588. ωσαντ[ως]: the σ above the line does not seem to be due to the ordinary corrector, but it is not quite certainly by the first hand.

589. [αι]: αι is not in the MSS., but Heindorf's insertion of it has been accepted by practically all editors. The absence of αι can however be defended by supplying οῖσαι with ῖσαι (cf. Ast's note), and it is not at all clear that the first hand was right, even though there is a doubt about the deletion. αι has had dots placed above it, but through these is a horizontal stroke, such as is used in ll. 114 and 272 to indicate the deletion of the letters below. Seeing that in l. 592 the corrector has eliminated double dots marking a change of speaker not by running his pen continuously through them, but by crossing them out separately, we prefer to suppose that the corrector in l. 589 substituted one mode of expressing deletion for another (possibly for the sake of clearness, owing to the presence of a diaeresis by the first hand over the following ι of ῖσαι), rather than that he changed his mind about the omission of αι and meant to cross out the dots indicating deletion and let αι stand, or that this was the meaning of a possible second corrector. The bracketing of the paragraphi below ll. 51, 167, 592, and 593 may have been due to a desire on the part of the corrector to avoid confusion between paragraphi and horizontal strokes indicating deletion.

590. [μεν]: nothing seems to be gained by the omission of this word, which is in the MSS., but is not essential. Since the following word began μει, the intrusion or omission of μεν would be easy.

592. σμικροτεραι: so MSS. except Vat. 1029, which has ἐλάττους καὶ σμικρ., a conflation of the alternative readings found here. The corrector's reading ἐλάττους is in accordance with μείζω . . . ἐλάττω in ll. 584-5.

593-4. The MSS. have εἰ οὖν ἐν τούτῳ ἡμῖν ἦν τὸ κτλ., except Venetus 184, which places οὖν after τούτῳ. ἡμῖν can be dispensed with, but hardly ἦν. του[τῶι ἦν] may have been the reading of the first hand, but this restoration, even if ἦν had dots placed above it by the corrector, fails to account satisfactorily for the position of the insertion ημειν ἦν, and του[τῶι γε] is less probable than a mistaken repetition of the syllable του: cf. ll. 114, 436, nn., and for the omission of ἦν after ἡμῖν l. 637, n.

596-7. The lacuna after μηκη is not very adequately filled by a wedge-shaped sign. If μηκη [και] be read, in the absence of any known variant for μήκη καὶ πράττειν the simplest course would be to suppose a mistaken repetition of και: cf. the preceding n.

629. ἀνθρ[ωποι]: so BT (ἀνθ.); οἱ ἀνθρ. W, Vat. 1029, Burnet. ἀνθρωποι may have been meant if the first hand omitted οἱ, which, though probable, is not quite certain. The ω of ἀνθρ[ωποι] apparently projected slightly to the left of the μ of οἰμολογοί in l. 628 and α of ημ[ας] in l. 630.

632. ἀν: so BT; om. Vat. 1029 like the first hand. ἀν is necessary in view of ἔσωσεν ἀν (l. 627) and ἔσφεν ἀν (lost in l. 646).

637. ἦν: so BT. ἦν is indispensable; cf. ll. 593-4, n.

640. και: so BT. The corrector's reading η, i. e. ἦ, seems to suit the argument better.

662-3. ἐ[π]ει[δὲ] δε: so BT; ἐπὶ δὲ δὴ W, Vat. 1209; ἐπεὶ δὲ δὴ Burnet, following Adam. The vestige before ιδ suits ε better than π.

665. [τῇ]: τῇ Bt; πῇ T. Vat. 1029 omits ἐν in l. 664, and possibly the first hand or the corrector differed there from the ordinary reading ἐν ὀρθῇ (e. g. by having τῇ ὀρθῇ or ἐν τῇ ὀρθῇ). The mere omission of τῇ in l. 665 is however more probable. The article can easily be dispensed with.

666. ἡμῖν: so MSS. The corrector's reading ὑμῖν gains some support from the proximity of εἰεν, ὧ ἀνθρωποι (l. 662), which introduces the summing-up of the argument, and the constant use of the second person plural throughout the dialogue with imaginary objectors in pp. 353 sqq. ἡμεῖς, however, not ὑμεῖς, is used in the previous steps of the argument (e. g. in ll. 594, 637), and the theory that good and evil ultimately meant pleasure and pain is not the starting-point of the opponents of Socrates in this part of the Protagoras, but on the contrary is forced upon them by him, so that there was no need for Socrates to dissociate himself from his opponents just at this point.

671-3. πορρωτέρω[ι] και ἐγγυτέρω[ι]: so T, and with the omission of the final iota B and modern edd.; πορρωτέρου και ἐγγυτέρω Ald. (1513); πορρωτέρου και ἐγγυτέρου Basileensis 1 (1534), agreeing with the corrector. Stephanus objected to the coupling of the adverbs without an article to the preceding adjectives, but his criticism has been answered (e. g. by Stallbaum and Ast) by citing (1) numerous parallels in Plato for the omission of the article in enumerations after the first noun, (2) instances of the coupling of adverbs with adjectives in e. g. Protag. 356a ταῦτα δ' ἐστὶ μείζω τε καὶ μικρότερα γιγνόμενα ἀλλήλων καὶ πλείω καὶ ἐλάττω καὶ μᾶλλον καὶ ἥττον, Phileb. 41e τίς . . . μείζων καὶ τίς ἐλάττων καὶ τίς μᾶλλον καὶ τίς σφοδρότερα λύπη. The objection to πορρωτέρου and ἐγγυτέρου here is that these adjectival forms are in general post-classical. Thucydides, however (viii. 96), has δι' ἐγγυτάτου ἐθορύβει, while Xenophon frequently uses ἐγγύτερον adverbially, and there is an obvious advantage in substituting adjectives for adverbs at this point, so that the corrector's reading is not lightly to be rejected on philological grounds alone.

1625. AESCHINES, In Ctesiphontem.

32.5 × 25 cm.

Second century.

This fragment of a roll consists of three incomplete columns and a few letters from a fourth, covering §§ 14–27 of Aeschines' oration against Ctesiphon, written in a clear cursive hand of the second century, probably not later than the reign of Hadrian or Antoninus, to which a document found with 1625 belongs. There were 51 or 52 lines in a column, and 24–30 letters in a line. Iota adscript was regularly written, and elision generally avoided. Punctuation was effected by paragraphi and high stops. Diaereses are sometimes placed over initial ι and υ; accents, breathings, and marks of quantity are rare (ll. 53, 63, 111). That the syllable inserted above the line in l. 53 is in a different hand is not quite certain, and a still greater doubt attaches to the supposed distinction of hands in l. 21. Seven other fragments of Aeschines from Egypt are known, of which three (457, 703, and Hartel, Vortrag über die Griech. Pap. Erz. Rainer, 45 sqq.) belong to different parts of this oration, two (458 and 440; cf. Blass, Archiv, iii. 293) to the De falsa leg., and two (Nicole, Textes grecs inéd. de Genève, pp. 5–12 and P. Halle 6) to the Contra Timarchum.

The MSS. of Aeschines number about 27, and fall into three main families, called by Blass A, B, and C. In this oration A consists of ekl, B of agmn Vat. Laur. Flor., C of dfq Barb. h generally supports A rather than C, p usually agrees with B. d (10th century) is the only MS. older than the thirteenth century, but C, the family to which it belongs, has generally been regarded as inferior to the other two, of which A is now usually considered superior to B. The untrustworthy character in general of the MSS. has been clearly shown by the papyri, most of which present a number of new and better readings, not infrequently establishing conjectures. 1625, which is much longer than 457 and 703 and much older than Hartel's vellum fragments, is a carefully written papyrus, and naturally does not fail to make several improvements upon the ordinary text. The chief of these is in § 20, where two of the three families have an omission and the third, A, is corrupt. Here the papyrus confirms the simpler emendations of Lambinus, another early scholar (probably Scaliger), and Wolf against the more elaborate changes proposed by later editors (ll. 81–2). A gloss which had found its way into the text of all the MSS. in § 15 can now be detected and explained with the help of the scholia (l. 19), and a gloss found in B and C, but not in A, in § 24 was absent from 1625 (l. 154, n.). Hamaker's conjecture ιερὰ for γέρα in § 18 is confirmed (l. 61), and Cobet's objection to the repetition λέγει . . . φησί in § 21 is justified, though by the omission of φησί, not λέγει, as he proposed (ll. 94-5). A passage in § 19, in which the variation between present and past participles had caused difficulties, is probably set right (ll. 69-70). The other new readings mainly concern the order of words (ll. 3-4, 58-60, 97-8, 144-5), a lacuna having obscured a variant of some magnitude in ll. 135-6. In numerous instances evidence is provided for words which recent editors have wished to delete, generally in order to avoid hiatus, about which 1625 (and probably Aeschines) was not more particular than the MSS. The general relation of 1625 to them is very similar to that of most other Aeschines papyri. A is on the whole supported more frequently than B and much more frequently than C, especially in important points of divergence, there being at least 6 agreements with A (or 2 of the 3 MSS. composing it) against BC (ll. 24, 77, 81-2, 93, 116, 154 sqq.), 1 or 2 with AB against C (ll. 78, 134?), and 3 or 4 with AC against B (ll. 25, 70, 117; cf. ll. 92-3, where most of the B group and one member of A are on the wrong side). On the other hand 1625 agrees with B against AC in l. 73, with isolated members of B against all the other MSS. in ll. 62 and 131, and with BC against A at least 5 times (ll. 22 twice, 52, 53, 120, 187?). C thus comes off the worst of the three families in relation to 1625, since it gains no support for any of its peculiar readings; but when C is in combination with A or B its relationship to 1625 is much the same as that of B in combination with A or C, 1625 agreeing with the majority in about half the instances in either case, whereas A in combination with B or C is confirmed in 6 out of 7, or (if ll. 62 and 131 are included) 9, instances.

3. ο νομοθετης, which must have stood in the lacuna, was bracketed by Weidner and Blass. Whether 1625 had προ[σειπων with most MSS. and edd., or προ[ειπων with dnq, is uncertain. Cf. § 17, where BC have προσειπείν, A rightly προειπείν.

3-4. απ[σας | [αρχας: ἀρχὰς ἀπάσας MSS. Probably 1625 is right, and the reading of the MSS. is due to the influence of ἀρχὰς ἀπάσας in ll. 1-2.

6-7. [Δημοσθε]νης was bracketed by Schanz and Blass, while after τειχοποιός Halm inserted ὦν, for which there is not room here.

8. πα[ν]τα[s: so most MSS. and edd.; but πα[ν]τε[s could be read with e.

18. και ευθυ[νας was bracketed by Dobree and Blass.

19. προς τους [ι.] λογισ[τας: πρὸς τὸν γραμματέα καὶ τοὺς λογιστὰς MSS.; cf. Schol. B (on the margin of a printed book; source unknown) γραμματέα λέγει τὸν εἰωθότα ἐν τῷ κοινῷ τὰ τοῦ δήμου γράμματα ἀναγνώσκειν, and Schol. gm Vat. Laur. λογιστῆς ἐκάστης φυλῆς εἷς. γραμματέα δὲ ἕκαστοι εἶχον. λέγει οὖν νῦν τὸν τῶν λογιστῶν. ἄλλως· ἄρχοντες ἦσαν δέκα ἡρημένοι καλούμενοι λογισταί . . . The omission of τὸν γραμματέα καὶ in 1625 brings this passage into line with ll. 79-80 ε[γ]γραφε[ιν] προς τους [λογιστας and 109-10 αποφερειν] κελευει λογ[ον] προς τους λογιστας, where the MSS. equally ignore the γραμματεῖς. The scholia do not really support the longer reading. The logistae no doubt had γραμματεῖς, but the order of the words and the use of the singular γραμματέα show that these are not meant here, while the explanation of Schol. B is not at all convincing, for the γραμματεῖς who read the laws, &c., in the assembly was quite a different kind of official from the λογισταί, and not likely to have been specially concerned with εἰθύναι. A comparison of l. 22 ἀναγνώσεται (sc. ὁ γραμματεῖς) with § 124, where most MSS. have ἀναγνώσεται ὑμῖν ὁ γραμματεῖς (ἀνάγνωθι Blass with e), indicates that Schol. B has been misplaced, and really refers to l. 22, while τὸν γραμματέα καὶ in the MSS. at l. 19 is a corruption arising out of this very scholium or one like it owing to a mistaken idea that τὸν γραμματέα occurred in the text about this point, the accusative case suggesting l. 19 as a suitable point for the insertion of the words with καὶ to restore the construction. With regard to the deletion before λογιστας there were, as the scholium states, 10 of these officials; but it is unlikely that a second-century scribe would place a diaeresis instead of a stroke above ι (which is fairly certain), if it meant 10, and he seems to have written or begun to write another letter after ι, though it is not clear how much ink belongs to a stroke of deletion.

21. κελευει, which must have stood here, is deleted by several editors, but not by Blass.

αληθη: of the supposed η above the line only a vertical stroke remains, and the correction may be due to the first hand: the nature of the original reading is still more doubtful.

22. αυτοις υ]μιν: so BC; ὑμῖν αὐτοῖς A, Blass.

αναγνώσεται: so BC, Blass; ἀναγνώτε A. Cf. l. 19, n.

23. νομ]οι: so most MSS. and edd.; νόμος a; om. ep Vat.¹

24. ανδρε]ς: so A, Blass; om. BC.

25. as ο νομοθετης αρχας] ονομαζει [(οι)τοι: so AC, Blass; ὁ μὲν νομοθ. ἀρχὰς ὀνομάζει οὗτοι δὲ B, Schultz.

52. εν: εὔ kl.

53. αρχαιαι: so MSS.; ἀρχαία (τ') Blass, to avoid hiatus.

τηλικαυτη]ι: so BC, Blass; τοσαύτη A.

55. και: om. lp Vat. προς: εἰς p.

57. οιον: οἷς p. ἱερεῖς: so MSS.; ἱερέας edd.

58-9. ο νομος κελευει: κελ. ὁ νομ. MSS. Cf. ll. 66-7, n.

59. παντας: ἀπαντας MSS.

60. και τους: om. και MSS.

61. ι[ε]ρα: so Hamaker; γέρα MSS., Blass. The top of the ι is lost, but one of the two dots is visible. ἱερά is no doubt right, the point being that priests got no public money.

The confusion was easy; cf. the spellings Ιεμη and Γεμη for the same Oxyrhynchite village (1285. 98 and 1444. 34) and εγερον for ιερον in P. Weil vi. 6.

μονον: so most MSS., Blass; μόνα ag Vat., Laur.

62. τας: om. MSS. ημων: so A; ύμων the rest, Blass.

64. τα: so most MSS., Blass; κατά hm γρ.

66-7. ειναι κελεύει: κελεύει είναι p Vat. Cf. ll. 58-9, n.

67-8. διαχειρισαντας: the last a is corr. from ε. διαχειρίζοντας some edd., but cf. ll. 69-70, n.

69. προσοδων was bracketed by Bake and Blass.

70-1. επιδιδοναι [δ]ε: so MSS.; οὐδ' ἐπιδιδόναι μὲν Blass.

73. τας πα[τρω]ας: so B, Blass; for τοὺς τὰς πατ. (AC, except d) there is not room.

77. δικ[αστων]: so kl; δικαστηρίων the rest, Blass.

78. την: so AB, Blass; om. C.

81. διδοναι, which must have stood here, was deleted by Cobet, but not by Blass.

81-2. και τον εκ[ει] σκυθρω[πον και των] μεγιστων [κυριο]ν αγει: so Orelli, Baiter and Sauppe, Simcox (τὸν . . . σκυθρωπὸν Lambinus and marg. Bern.; ἄγει Wolf); κ. τῶν ἐκεῖ σκυθρωπῶν κ. τ. μεγ. κύριον ἄγειν B; om. AC; κ. τὴν ἐκ σκυθρωπῶν . . . κύριαν ἄγει Wolf, Reiske, Bekker, and, with ἄγων instead of ἄγει to avoid hiatus, Blass; cf. int. There is not room for [κυρια]ν in l. 82, even if τον in l. 81 did not require [κυριο]ν.

84. η βουλη η εξ Αρειο]ν παγον was bracketed by Blass to avoid hiatus.

92-3. απισ[τει τοις υπ]ευθυνοις: so Cahkl Vat. γρ., edd. ἀπαιτεῖ τοὺς ὑπεύθυνους egmnp Laur. Vat.

93. ευθυς: so A, Blass; εὐθέως BC.

94. λεγει: this was deleted by Cobet, the MSS. having after ὑπεύθυνον in l. 95 φησί, which was clearly omitted in 1625 and is not necessary.

αρχην: this was deleted by Hamaker, while Dobree preferred ἀρχῆς.

97-8. The MSS. have προλαβὼν χρήματα τῆς πόλεως ἢ πράξεις, from which 1625 clearly varied in regard to the position of τῆς πόλεως and χρήματα, and possibly by the insertion of τά after προλαβὼν.

103-4. ενε]χυραζε[ι: so B; ἐνεχυριάζει A; ἐνεχειράζει or -ρίζει C.

104. ο] ν[ομοθετης τας ουσιας των: so A; τὰς οὐσίας ὁ νομοθέτης τὰς τῶν BC, Blass; om. ὁ νομοθέτης Cobet. τ[ας ουσιας can be read in place of ο] ν[ομοθετης, but the insertion of τας before των would make the line too long, while the omission of ο νομοθετης would leave it too short, so that A's reading is the most probable, especially since 1625 shows no tendency to avoid hiatus.

105. The supplement is rather short, and perhaps 1625 had ἀποδίδωσιν with c; ἀποδῶσι most MSS., Blass; ἀποδώσῃ hq Bern., ἀποδώσει Vat. Laur.

116. ανυπειθυ[ν]ον: so A; ἀνεύθυνον BC, Blass.

117. αζητητον και ανεξετα[σ]το[ν]: so AC, Blass; ἀνεξ. καὶ ἀζήτ. B.

120. των νομων: so BC, Blass; τῶν ἐν τῇ πόλει A.

121. νομοι: so most MSS.; νόμος l; om. agp Vat.

124-5. αυτα[ι: so most MSS.; αὐτὸ glm; om. Blass on account of hiatus.

127. κηρυκα: κύριον g.

131. επιδ[ε]δωκας: so g; ἀπέδωκας q; ἐπέδωκας the rest, Blass. απο, which must have stood in the lacuna, is omitted by ek.

132. εχει[s: so MSS., Blass; εἶχες (Bake) is inadmissible.

134. εἰς ταῦτα ἐκ τῆς πόλεως is restored from most MSS., but C omits εἰς and ἐλ have πολιτείας for πόλεως, while Blass omits ἐκ, and Bekker reads ἐκ τῶν τῆς. The length of the lacuna favours the presence of both εἰς and ἐκ, but not τῶν as well.

135-6.|λον: α and μ are the only alternatives to λ, and the lacuna may be 2 or 3 letters shorter than as printed, but hardly any longer. The MSS. have nothing between φιλοτιμίαν and μηδέ. An imperative either preceded by μή or governing ἀρπάζειν (instead of ἀρπαζε) seems most likely, but ἐλῶ is not satisfactory.

140. Whether 1625 had κοινὰς with the MSS. or κενὰς, the generally accepted correction of Stephanus, is uncertain.

144-5. τὴν ἀρχὴν τὴν ?] | ἐπὶ τῶ[ι θεωρικῶι: τὴν ἐπὶ τῷ θ. ἀρχήν (MSS., except h ἐπὶ τῶν θεωρικῶν) does not suit. τὴν before ἀρχήν can be omitted from the restoration, but cf. l. 154. Blass proposed ἐπὶ τῷ θεωρικῶν in both places, comparing § 25 and avoiding hiatus in l. 145; most MSS. in l. 154 have τῶν θεωρικῶν (which may of course have been the reading of 1625 in both places), but cdq have τῷ θεωρικῷ.

146. δε is omitted by df, πω by Ap Vat., and it is not certain that both these words should be restored.

153. The restoration is rather short, containing only 16 letters compared with 21 in the two lines above (l. 154 may be short for special reasons; cf. n.); and ο may be inserted before Δημοσθενὲς. The loss of it would be easy owing to the hiatus.

154. After τῶι θεωρικῶι (or τῶν θεωρικῶν; cf. ll. 144-5, n.) BC proceed ὅτι μεσοῦντα τὴν ἀρχὴν ἔγραψεν αὐτὸν στεφανοῦν ἀναγίνωσκε (ἀναγινώσκετε some MSS.) διαλογισμὸς τῶν ἡμερῶν. (διαλ. τ. ἡμ. om. B), while of the A group e has only ψήφισμα (so Blass) and kl omit the title as well as the preceding sentence. ὅτι . . . ἀναγίνωσκε was deleted by Bekker and subsequent editors as a gloss, but some retain διαλογισμὸς τῶν ἡμερῶν as the title. Allowing for a title at the top of Col. iv corresponding to l. 121, there is certainly not room for more than 27 lines of continuous text, and there may have been only 26, so that it is practically certain that the gloss was omitted by 1625, as in A.

187. The papyrus may have had καθαπερ καὶ οἱ ἄλλοι with C, but is unlikely to have omitted ἄλλοι with A.

EGYPT EXPLORATION FUND

GRAECO-ROMAN BRANCH.

THE EGYPT EXPLORATION FUND, which has conducted Archaeological research in Egypt since 1882, in 1897 started a special department, called the Graeco-Roman Branch, for the discovery and publication of remains of classical antiquity and early Christianity in Egypt.

The Graeco-Roman Branch issues annual volumes, each of about 250 quarto pages, with facsimile plates of the more important papyri, under the editorship of PROFS. GRENFELL and HUNT.

A subscription of One Guinea to the Graeco-Roman Branch entitles subscribers to the annual volume, and to attendance at the Fund's lectures in London and elsewhere. A donation of £25 constitutes life membership. Subscriptions may be sent to the Honorary Treasurers—for England, Mr. J. GRAFTON MILNE, 13 Tavistock Square, London, W.C. 1; and for America, Mr. CHESTER I. CAMPBELL, 503 Tremont Temple, Boston, Mass.
